COLINSBURGH is a large village in the parish of Kilconquhar and small debt court district of Anstruther, on the road from Elie to Cupar-Fife, 2½ miles north-west from the former and 10 south-east from the latter and 4 miles east from Largo. Kilconquhar, on the Thorn on Junction and St. Andrews section of the North British railway, is the nearest station. This place was originally built by Colin, third Earl of Balcarres, who died in 1722, and is named after him. There is a United Free church here, and a branch of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited. The "Galloway" Library and Reading Room was built in 1903, from money bequeathed for the purpose by the late Thomas Carstairs Galloway esq. who also left a sum of £600, the interest on which provides three bursaries and a similar amount for the yearly benefit of the deserving poor. A weekly corn market is held every Thursday.

COLLESSIE (a Gaelic word denoting the bottom of a glen) is a parish with its kirktown 4 miles south-east of Newburgh and containing the village and police burgh of Ladybank (which see). It is in the small debt court district of Cupar and extends 8 miles from north to south by 5 in breadth; it is bounded on the north by Newburgh and Abdie, west by Auchtermuchty, south by Kettle, east by Monimail; there are railway stations at Ladybank and Collessie, the former on the main line and the latter on the Ladybank, Newburgh and Perth section of the North British railway. Here is an Established church. The Earl of Leven and Melville, Oliver Haig esq. J. Boyd Kinnear esq. J.P. and Mrs. Milbank Leslie-Melville are the principal landowners. The area comprises 8,782 acres; rateable value of landward, £11,991; the population in 1911 was 2,215, including 1,266 in the burgh of Ladybank. Population of ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 734.

The hamlet of Giffordtown lies between Collessie and Ladybank.

COWDENBEATH, a growing town in the parish of Beath, was constituted a police burgh in 1890 and is situated just below the junction of the Dunfermline and Kinross and the Dunfermline and Thornton Junction sections of the North British railway, which has a station here. This company has constructed a single line for mineral traffic from this place to Burntisland. The burgh is supplied with water from works constructed by the local authority in 1887, and now under the control of the Town Council, and is lighted by electricity from works the property of the burgh and by gas from works the property of a company. The parish church lies a mile north-west of the town, and there are also three United Free churches, a Baptist chapel, and two Board schools. A drinking fountain, surmounted by three lamps, was erected in the High street, and presented to the town, in 1887, by H. Mungall esq. J.P. in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The area of the burgh is 573 acres; rateable value, 1915, £45,130; population in 1901, 7,467 and in 1911, 14,029.

CRAIGROTHIE, see CERES.

CRAIL is a seaboard parish, occupying the extreme north-easterly shore of the Firth of Forth, the Fife Ness promontory marking the mouth of the Firth; the seaport of same name as the parish lies a few miles south-west of the Ness, is a royal and parliamentary burgh; it was known formerly as Cathair-uille or Carr-uille, and has a station on the Thornton, Anstruther, and St. Andrews section of the North British railway. The parish extends 5 miles along the shore of the Firth of Forth, and its breadth of 2 miles lies along the North sea, besides which a part almost as large lies inland north of Kilrenny and Carnbee parishes, and on the north-west and north the boundaries are the parishes of Denino, St. Leonard and Kingsbarns. The burgh, which consists of two main streets, one containing some massive old houses, is mentioned by old historians as a town of considerable note so early as the middle of the 9th century. Its importance in latter days has, however, greatly declined, notwithstanding it possesses great capabilities as a port, and with the exception of crab fishing, for which it is famous, it enjoys but very little trade. This in some measure may be ascribed to the inconvenience of its harbour, for it is otherwise eligibly situated. Its principal exports consist of grain and potatoes; the imports are chiefly coal. Crail was erected into a royal burgh by David I. and confirmed by Robert Bruce, and it is governed by a provost, two bailies, and six councillors. In conjunction with St. Andrews, Cupar Fife, the Anstruthers, Kilrenny, and Pittenweem, it forms the St. Andrews parliamentary district, constituted under the "Reform Act of 1832," and returning one member. It is now a place of summer resort, and has two golfing courses and public bowling greens, and there is also a public library of 2,000 volumes. A little to the east of the harbour are the fragments of a castle, or palace, once the residence of David I., the remains of which consist chiefly of a wall, now partly enclosed in a garden. The parish church was anciently collegiate, and here John Knox preached. The United Free church was erected in 1909 at a cost of £4,200 to seat 600 persons. The celebrated James Sharp, Archbishop of St. Andrews, 1661-79, was minister of the church for 12 years, and his handwriting is still to be seen in the session records. The Golf Hotel is a small but comfortable inn. The Earl of Lindsay J.P. Capt. Sir Thomas Wilfred H. J. Erskine bart. J. B. Monypenny esq. Philip G. Anstruther esq. John Duncan esq. Mrs. Mary Anderson Horsley, Rev. Henry A. G. Sheppard M.A. and S. B. Armour-Hannay esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 6,318 acres; rateable value, £16,046, viz., burghal, £6,174; landward, £9,871; area of burgh 128 acres; the population in 1911 was 1,592, of which the burgh contained 1,060.

The population of the parliamentary burgh in 1911 was 1,096; number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 212.

CREICH is a parish in the north of the county, with its kirktown 5 miles north-west of Cupar. The Newburgh and North of Fife railway, opened on January 25th, 1909, is under the control of the North British Railway Company, and connects Newburgh with St. Fort. LUTHRIE station, in this parish, is half a mile south of the village of that name. Creich parish is in the small debt court district and public health district of Cupar, and extends 3 miles from north to south by 2 wide; it is bounded on the north by Flisk, on the south by Moonzie and Monimail, on the east by Balmerino and Kilmany, and on the west by Dunbog. There is an Established church here, and a United Free church at BRUNTON. At Luthrie is a village hall, presented to the parish in 1910 by James Carnegie esq. On a little eminence near the ruins of the old church are the vestiges of a Roman camp, and at a short distance therefrom are the remains of a castle, which formerly belonged to Cardinal Beaton. The parish was the birthplace in 1583 of the Rev. Alexander Henderson, who represented the Scottish Church at the Westminster Assembly in 1643, but died in Edinburgh, 19 Aug. 1646; here also was born in 1652 John Sage, educated at St. Andrews, and consecrated in 1705 as the first of the post-revolution bishops in the Scottish Episcopal communion; he was the author of a remarkable production, the "Fundamental Charter of Presbytery," and other works, and died 7 June, 1711. The surface of the parish is undulating, and the soil sandy and thin. James Carnegie esq. D.L., J.P. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 2,338 acres; rateable value, £2,671; population in 1911, 309.

BRUNTON and LUTHRIE are hamlets in this parish.

CROSSFORD, see DUNFERMLINE.

CROSSGATES, see DUNFERMLINE.

CULROSS is a parish on the Firth of Forth, originally included in the county of Perth, though surrounded by Fifeshire, to which county it was transferred by a Local Government Order dated 23 February, 1891. The parish contains the town of Culross, a royal and parliamentary burgh within the sheriff court district of Dunfermline, 4 miles south-east from Kincardine, 9 south-east from Alloa and 7 west from Dunfermline. There are three stations in the parish—Culross, to the east of the town, on the Dunfermline and Kincardine section of the North British railway, and BOGSIDE and EAST GRANGE, in the northern part of the parish, on the Stirling and Dunfermline branch of the North British railway. The burgh is situated partly on the acclivity of a hill rising from the Forth, the principal street running east and west along the shore. An extensive traffic in salt and coal was at one time carried on here, as well as the manufacture of the famous Culross girdles. Culross was erected into a royal burgh by James VI. in 1588, and is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors. Together with Stirling, Queensferry, Inverkeithing and Dunfermline, it forms the Stirling Burghs constituency, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. This place affords a peerage title to the Colvill family, Barons Colvill of Culross. The town and its vicinity possess many objects of antiquity. In 1217 a monastery of the Cistercian order was founded here on rising ground behind the town by Malcolm, Thane of Fife; considerable portions of the building are still extant; of the church, which stood on the north side, the Early English choir, transepts and central tower remain, and since 1905 have been restored, at a cost of over £5,000, under the direction of Sir R. Rowand Anderson kt. LL.D. architect, and fitted for divine service. In a chapel, erected in 1642 in honour of Sir George Bruce kt. who died 6 May, 1625, are recumbent effigies in alabaster of Sir George and his lady, and figures of their eight children in a kneeling posture. There is also a United Free church. To the west of the town, on the bank of the Forth, are the ruins of Dunimarle (the hill near the sea), an ancient stronghold of the Macduffs, and according to tradition the scene of the murder of Lady Macduff and her children. The present house of Dunimarle, occupied by the Rev. Canon James Walker Harper M.A. is a modern castellated edifice, built by the late Mrs. Sharp Erskine, who also erected in the grounds a beautiful mortuary chapel, within which she is interred; the house contains some beautiful paintings, rare old china and other articles of vertu, to which, and the extensive grounds, the public are admitted on certain days of the week. Culross Abbey House is the property of Lord Bruce, but now (1915) unoccupied. Culross Park is the residence of the Rev. David Whyte Buist Fleming. Near the abbey church was a school endowed by the late Patrick Geddes esq.; a new building was erected by the late Miss Davidson, of The Park, at a cost of £1,500, and in 1896 this was enlarged, and is now combined with the public school, under the style of the Geddes Public School, which is available for 250 children. Lord Balfour of Burleigh K.T., P.C., G.C.M.G. Robert Hoyer Millar esq. J.P. the trustees of the late Mrs. Magdalene Sharp Erskine, the Hon. Sir James Sivewright K.C.M.G. Mrs. Johnston, John James Dalgleish esq. D.L., J.P. and Lord Bruce are the principal landowners of the parish. The area comprises 7,591 acres; rateable value, landward £13,019, burghal £3,028; the population in 1911 was 1,499 in the parish and 456 in the royal burgh.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 111.

CULTS is a parish, having its kirktown 2½ miles east of Ladybank, which is the nearest railway station, and is a junction on the North British line; the parish extends 5 miles from north to south by 2 wide, and is bounded north by Cupar and Monimail, east by Ceres, south by Kettle and Leven, and west by Kettle and Collessie; it is in the small debt court district of Cupar, and contains the village of Pitlessie. It abounds in lime and freestone, and is generally well cultivated and enclosed. The name of the parish is derived from the Gaelic "coillte," which signifies "the woods." Sir David Wilkie R.A. the celebrated artist, was born here 18 Nov. 1785, his father having been minister of Cults for over 30 years. The Sir David Wilkie Memorial Hall was opened in 1898, and is used for public meetings. The Hon Thomas H. A. Cochrane and Lady Gertrude J. G. Cochrane and the trustees of the late Mrs. Mary Watt Wilson are the sole landowners. The area comprises 2,811 acres; rateable value, £6,139; population in 1911, 617 civil and 588 ecclesiastical.

PITLESSIE is a small village in this parish, 2 miles north-east from Kettle, on the road between Kirkcaldy and Cupar, 4 south-south-west from the latter town and about 2 east from Ladybank station. There is a public school here which serves for the whole of the parish. The population in 1911 was 361.

CUPAR,

WITH THE VILLAGE AND HAMLET OF CUPAR MUIR.

CUPAR, a royal burgh and parish and the capital of the county of Fife, and is contributary to the St. Andrews district of parliamentary burghs. The town is 32 miles north (by rail via Forth Bridge) from Edinburgh, 12½ south from Dundee, 9 west from St. Andrews and 9 north-east from Falkland, situated on the left bank of the Eden, and with a station on the Edinburgh, Thornton and Dundee branch of the North British railway. As a royal burgh Cupar is governed by a provost, four bailies, and a dean of guild, with a treasurer, and 7 councillors. The ordinary sheriff court and the sheriff small debt courts are held every Thursday during the session. It is a place of considerable antiquity, but in the present day its aspect is that of a modern town, nor are there any ancient remains to be discerned in or about Cupar. Of its castle, so frequently alluded to in Scottish history, not a vestige is now visible; the Castle hill, where that fortress once stood, and in which the plays of Sir David Lindsay and the "Satire of the Three Estates" were acted in 1555, is now the site of a public school. The principal streets of the town are the Crossgate, the Bonnygate and St. Catherine street, which last is built on the plan of the houses in Edinburgh. The burgh is lighted with gas, supplied by the Cupar Gas Co. Limited. The places of worship are the old parish church in Kirkgate, the parish church of St. Michael, in Westport, three United Free churches, a Roman Catholic church, and a Baptist chapel. The Episcopal church of St. James, in St. Catherine street, an edifice in the Classic style, occupies the site of a convent of Dominican or Black Friars. The Rev. Gordon Walker Paterson M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford, and St. Andrews University, has been rector since 1907. The Town Hall is in St. Catherine street and the County buildings are also in the town. On the south side of the river is the old prison, now used as a private warehouse; the later gaol, built on rising ground a little to the north of the Dundee road, is now disused. The principal trade of Cupar arises from the linen manufacture, but tanning, coach building and other avocations are carried on. There are branches here of the British Linen Bank, the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the Clydesdale Bank Limited, the Royal Bank of Scotland and the National Bank of Scotland Limited, together with a savings bank. Four newspapers are published in Cupar, the "Fife Herald and Journal," the "Fife News and Coast Chronicle," the "St. Andrews Citizen" and the "People's Journal for Fife and Kinross." The Duncan Institute, in Crossgate, founded by the late Miss Duncan, of Edengrove, for the benefit chiefly of the working classes, comprises a reading room, library, recreation and billiard room and lecture hall, and is managed by trustees. Near the station is a stone statue erected to the memory of David Maitland McGill Crichton, a prominent county gentleman, who took a leading part in the disruption of the Free Church in 1843. The Cupar Bell-Baxter school, an endowed secondary school, with a primary department, was endowed in the year 1832 by the famous educationalist, Dr. Bell, and received a second endowment in 1873 from Sir David Baxter bart. of Kilmaron. It is governed by a body of eleven persons. The Adamson Cottage Hospital, opened in Dec. 1901, is maintained by the Adamson Trust Funds and public subscriptions. It is managed by the trustees of the late Alexander Adamson, and contains two public wards with three beds each, and one private ward. Kilmaron Castle is the property and residence of Sir James Low bart. D.L., J.P. James Carnegie esq. D.L. and Patrick J. Home Rigg esq. are the principal landowners. The weekly market for corn is held on Tuesday, and a cattle market on Tuesday once a month. The area comprises 5,713 acres; area of burgh, 532 acres; rateable value, £42,012; the population in 1911 was 6,736, including 4,380 in the burgh. Population of the wards:—First, 4,380; Second, 93; Third, 1,479; Fourth, 784. Included in the total population were 98 officials and 626 inmates of Fife and Kinross District Asylum. The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 3,59.

The villages of SPRINGFIELD and CUPAR MUIR are in this parish. The first named is given under a separate heading.

BRIGHTON is a village 1¼ miles to the south-west.

DAIRSIE is a parish and village, the latter being 3 miles north-east from Cupar, with a station on the Thornton, Ladybank and Dundee section of the North British railway. The parish extends 2½ miles from north to south by 2 miles in breadth, and is bounded on the north by Leuchars and Logie, and on the south by Kemback, east by Leuchars, and west by Cupar, and is in the small debt court district of Cupar. The river Eden, which skirts the parish, is crossed by a good bridge of three arches, supposed to have been erected by John Spottiswood, archbishop of St. Andrews 1615-61, who was the proprietor of the Dairsie estate. The church was erected in 1621 by the same archbishop, at the time when he designed to established Episcopacy in Scotland; there is also a United Free church. At Dairsie Castle, now a ruin, a parliament was convened in the year 1335. The Pitcairn Institute, Library and Recreation Rooms, opened in 1897, were built and furnished at a cost of about £900. The late Mrs. Pitcairn, of Pitculls, left the interest of £2,000 to be expended annually in part in the purchase of books, and in the maintenance of the recreation park. The large farm of Craigfoodie is owned by the trustees of the United Free Church of Scotland. James Cheape esq. D.L. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 2,550 acres; rateable value, £5,212; population in 1911, 503.

DALGETTY is a parish in the parliamentary division of West Fife and the poor combination and small debt court district of Dunfermline, about 1½ miles from Inverkeithing station on the Edinburgh, Thornton and Ladybank section of the North British railway; it extends 5 miles from north to south, by from 1 to 3 broad, and is bounded on the north by Beath, north-west by Dunfermline, west by Inverkeithing, south by the Forth and east by Aberdour. The Park of Donibristle, which includes the site of Dalgetty House and the fine gardens formerly attached to it, stands partly in this parish and partly in Aberdour; the house, which is a seat of the Earl of Moray, is in this parish, as are also the ruins of Couston Castle on an island in Otterston Loch, and Fordell Castle and Mansion House, the seat of the Henderson family: the castle, erected in the 12th century, was restored about 1850, but is only occasionally used: it possesses a fine banqueting hall. Dalgetty old church is roofless, but the walls are standing, and there are many monuments in the church and yard; in a vault at the west end of the church lie the remains of Alexander Seton, high chancellor of Scotland, and created, in 1606, Earl of Dunfermline, d. 1622: above it is a fine stone-panelled room, open on the east side to the church, and once serving as a pew for the Earls of Dunfermline, a title which became extinct on the outlawry of the 4th Earl in 1690; the new church is about a quarter of a mile further north, and was built about 1830. There is also an Established church at Moss Green in this parish.

FORDELL is a village in this parish, about a mile south-east of Crossgates railway station. It has a fine reading room, provided for the use of workmen.

SAINT DAVID'S is a small port in this parish, about a mile and a half to the east of Inverkeithing. The rise of this place can be mainly ascribed to the advantages it affords for the shipment of coal, brought from the extensive collieries at Fordell by means of a private railway five miles in length. At the pier here, which has been extended at a cost of from £4,000 to £5,000, upwards of 500 tons of coal can be shipped daily; and there is an average depth of 18 feet at high water, being greater than that of any other port on this part of the coast, admitting vessels of upwards of 600 tons to receive their cargoes at the pier. The nearest railway station is Inverkeithing, a mile and a half distant. The northern part of the parish is rich in coal, of which great quantities are exported from St. David's. Fordell House is a seat of the Earl of Buckinghamshire. The Earl of Moray, Major W. Mowbray and the trustees of the late George W. Mercer Henderson esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 3,341 acres; rateable value, £6,563; population in 1911, 1,206 civil and 405 ecclesiastical.

DUNBOG is a parish extending along the southern shore of the Firth of Tay for about 1 mile, and running inland in a southerly direction for 4 miles; the parish is 6 miles north-west from Cupar. The nearest station is Lindores, on the Newburgh and North Fife railway, 1½ miles distant. The parish is bounded south by Monimail, north and north-east by Flisk and Creich and west by Abdie. It consists of a valley lying between two ridges of the Ochil Hills. There is an Established church and a Parish Hall. Aytoun Hill is the residence of Lieut.-Col. William C. Middleton. The Marquis of Zetland K.T., P.C. James Carnegie esq. and Alexander Niven esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is of a rich black mould, which produces abundant crops of every description. The area comprises 3,471 acres; rateable value, £3,246; population in 1911, 301 in the civil parish and 335 in the ecclesiastical parish, including part of Flisk parish for ecclesiastical, school and registration purposes.

DUNFERMLINE

DUNFERMLINE is a parish, city and royal burgh, the seat of a presbytery, the head of a poor combination and small debt court district and the chief town in the western part of Fifeshire. It is 16 miles north-west from Edinburgh, 47 north-east from Glasgow, 31 south-south-west from Cupar, 14 east from Alloa, 21 south-by-east from Stirling, 15 south-west from Kirkcaldy and 6 north from North Queensferry, and is situate on rising ground, 3 miles north from the Firth of Forth and 300 feet above the level at Limekilns, the nearest part of the coast. Thus elevated, it commands a prospect remarkably varied and beautiful, extending over fourteen different counties, and comprises a fine marine view on the south; its salubrious position making it one of the healthiest cities in Scotland. There are two stations here, the upper on the Dunfermline branch of the North British railway and the lower on the main line from Inverness and Perth to Edinburgh; another line, about 4 miles in length, from this place to Charlestown, is used principally for the conveyance of coal for shipment at that port, but a passenger service of trains has also been established. The West of Fife mineral railway runs from the town, north into the rich mineral district, which contains immense quantities of coal, ironstone and limestone, and there is a line to Kincardine and one between Dunfermline and Edinburgh by North Queensferry and across the Forth by means of the Forth Bridge, which was finished in 1890, and opened by His late Majesty, Edward VII. then Prince of Wales, March 4th of that year. By Local Government (Scotland) Act, which took effect May 15, 1914, the boundary of the parish of Dunfermline was extended and now includes Rosyth, formerly in Inverkeithing. The early history of this city is varied and interesting. Malcolm Canmore, who ascended the Scottish throne in 1057, besides founding the monastery of Dunfermline, built a strong tower on a height in the adjacent glen, from which this place derives its name and dates its existence. The burgh of Dunfermline, it appears, was held of the monastery, which formerly possessed paramount jurisdiction and exclusive privileges here for nearly two centuries, and it became a royal burgh by a charter from James VI. dated 24th May, 1588. In this document the monarch ratifies sundry charters, donations and indentures, by John and Robert, abbots of Dunfermline, particularly one dated the 10th of October, 1395, by which the abbot and convent renounce in favour of the aldermen and community the whole income of the burgh belonging to their revenue, with the small customs, profits of courts &c., "reserving, however, the power of punishment, should any of the magistrates be guilty of injustice in the exercise of their office." In 1724 the burgh was placed on the footing it still maintains as respects its government, which is vested in a provost, four bailies, and a dean of guild, together with a treasurer, a chamberlain, a town clerk, and 15 councillors, elected pursuant to the terms of the Municipal Reform Act. Dunfermline, together with Stirling, Inverkeithing, Culross, and South Queensferry, form the Stirling parliamentary district, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. Dunfermline is also the seat of the sheriff substitute for the western district of Fife, who holds a regular court on the first and third Tuesday of every month during session. Burgh courts are held daily if required in the Corporation buildings. James VI. here subscribed the first covenant, and Charles I. was born in the palace which had been added to the old Royal Tower of Malcolm Canmore, the south-west wall of which still remains: here also Charles II. signed the Dunfermline declaration. In 1873, by a decision of the House of Lords, the ruins, and a portion of the grounds adjoining, were apportioned to the Crown, but admission is granted to the public.

The city consists of streets stretching from east to west, with a number of smaller streets crossing down hill at right angles, or proceeding in a northerly direction, and of late years has been greatly enlarged by the extension of the cross streets and the addition of a large suburb to the west and east. It is well supplied with water, the Corporation having obtained an Act of Parliament in 1876 to ensure a plentiful supply from Glensherrup, the works costing about £70,000. The streets are lighted with gas. There is an efficient fire brigade, with quarters in Campbell street, and fire plugs on the gravitation principle are placed at numerous points throughout the streets and lanes. There is a service of electric cars to some of the outlying districts. The sewage of the city is conveyed by means of pipes to the sea at Charlestown, a distance of three miles. The plans were prepared by Mr. J. L. Stewart C.E. Edinburgh, and the cost of the undertaking was about £7,000.

The constantly increasing population and prosperity of Dunfermline may be entirely ascribed to its manufacture of table linens and damask goods. This branch of industry was started about the commencement of last century, and is carried on here to a greater extent than in any other town in Great Britain, many firms being engaged in this business. There are several large factories where power-loom weaving is carried on. It is said that the chest of the Incorporation of Weavers contains two curious specimens of their art—a man's shirt and a woman's shift, both wrought in the loom without seam, and without the assistance of a needle. Here are also large fire-clay works, and the Fife Coal Co. Limited, at Crossgates, as well as iron and brass foundries and engineering works. The coal trade in the neighbourhood is very extensive, and large quantities are annually exported. About 4,000 men are employed in connection with the collieries. Eight branch banks are established here, in addition to a Savings Bank, for which a fine building has been erected in East Port, at a cost of £3,000. There are five newspapers, namely, the "Dunfermline Press," the "Dunfermline Journal," the "Dunfermline Express," the "West Fife Echo" and the "Rosyth and Forth Mail." The public park, at the east end of the town, extends over between 30 and 40 acres, is finely laid out and planted with trees, and has a polished granite fountain, given by the late Provost Donald, and a band-stand with a gilt dome, the gift of Mrs. Carnegie. The park, on a clear day, commands a fine view of Edinburgh and the Firth of Forth.

The Town House, in Kirkgate, on the site of the Old Town House, was begun in 1875 and finished in 1879, at a cost of about £20,000. The building, which presents a combination of the French and Scotch Gothic styles, is from a design by Mr. J. C. Walker, Edinburgh, and has two frontages, and at the north-east angle is a tower, 150 feet, containing a clock with four illuminated dials, and striking the hours on a bell, weighing 33 cwt. The exterior is adorned with carvings of the royal Scottish and burgh arms, and has also canopied niches with busts representing Malcolm Canmore and Queen Margaret and King Robert the Bruce and Elizabeth, his second queen, all of whom are buried in the abbey. On the Kirkgate front are eight carved stone panels from the old Town House, some of which are said to have originally belonged to the old market cross of 1620. The interior of the building includes a burgh court room and a council chamber, and offices for the town clerk and other officials of the burgh. The County buildings, on the south side of the High street, are in the Classic style, and include a tower with spire 132 feet; they contain a sheriff court room, justice of peace court room, and a suite of rooms for the sheriff, sheriff clerk, procurator fiscal and other county officials. In 1903, Andrew Carnegie esq. of Skibo, Dornoch, presented Dunfermline with Pittencrieff Park and Glen, and with 2,500,000 dollars in 5 per cent. bonds, which yield an annual income of £25,000; in 1911 he gave a further sum of £250,000. The trustees, in addition to laying out the park and glen and providing entertainments, have established a college of hygiene and physical training, a gymnasium, baths, a school of music, an arts and crafts school, a women's institute, horticultural exhibitions, and libraries and recreation rooms. The Trust is administered by 25 trustees, 16 nominated by the founder for life or until resignation, 6 by the Town Council annually and 3 by the School Board triennially. In Pittencrieff Park is a statue of Andrew Carnegie esq. erected by his fellow citizens in grateful appreciation of his many gifts to his native city, 1914. The Post Office, a building in Queen Anne street, stands on the site of the old High school. The Carnegie Public Baths, in Pilmuir street, were erected in 1875 by a gift of £5,000 from Andrew Carnegie esq. LL.D. of Skibo Castle, and a native of Dunfermline, from designs prepared by Mr. Andrew Scobie, architect, of Dunfermline. New baths and a gymnasium were erected in 1905 in Pilmuir street, at a cost of about £35,000, given by Mr. Andrew Carnegie, from designs by Mr. Hippolyte J. Blanc, architect, of Edinburgh. The memorial stone was laid by Mrs. Carnegie, on the 16th July, 1902. The Carnegie Public Library, in Abbot street, was erected in 1881-3, at a cost of £8,000, also given by Mr. A. Carnegie, and is a building in the domestic Tudor style, from plans prepared by Mr. J. C. Walker, architect, of Edinburgh. The library comprises 28,000 volumes, and there are reading rooms for ladies and gentlemen, recreation and smoke rooms and lavatories. The library is now (1915) being enlarged and reconstructed at an estimated cost of £14 000. The memorial stone was laid July 27th, 1881, and the building was opened by the Earl of Rosebery, August 29th, 1883. The library system has been organised and subsidised by the Carnegie Dunfermline Trust. In accordance with the provisions of the Public Libraries Act the library is managed by a committee; at Townhill, a neighbouring village, is a Branch Institute and Library, opened in 1906, with reading, recreation and billiard rooms, and during the summer outdoor recreation is provided by bowling greens &c. Another Branch Institute and Library was opened at Baldridgeburn in 1909, and a further Branch Institute was completed at Kingseat, 1910, with a library formed mainly of books from the Central Library, and there is also the Nethertown Institute. St. Margaret's Hall, in St. Margaret street, was begun in 1876, and completed in 1878, at a cost of about £12,000, from plans prepared by Mr. Starforth, Edinburgh; the style is an adaptation of Early English, and the building contains a large hall, seating 1,600 persons, another seating 300, and several committee and board rooms. In the large hall is a splendid organ, purchased and presented by the ladies of the town and district at a cost of over £1,300. The building belongs to the St. Margaret's Hall Company Limited. The principal hotels are the City, in Bridge street and the Royal, in High street. The Dunfermline and West Fife Hospital, in Nethertown Broad street, containing 20 beds, was erected at a cost of about £4,500, and opened on September 1st, 1894; it is supported by voluntary subscriptions, the hospital was enlarged in 1903, and now has 34 beds. The West Fife Joint Hospital for Infectious Diseases, situated at the west end of the town, was opened on November 1st, 1894, and is maintained by the Dunfermline committee of the West of Fife County Council, and local authorities of the burghs of Dunfermline, Inverkeithing, Culross and Cowdenbeath, and contains 55 beds.

The Abbey, the church of which is now the Parish Kirk of the burgh, was founded as a Priory of Benedictines on the site of a Culdee cell in 1080 by Malcolm Canmore, who was buried in the church in 1093; there must have been a church here previous to 1080, as King Malcolm is said to have been married at Dunfermline in 1070 to Margaret, sister of Edgar Atheling; in 1124 it was created an abbey, and in 1224 the abbot received the mitre, but in 1301 most of the abbey buildings were burnt by order of King Edward I. At the Reformation in 1560, the remaining buildings and church, except the nave, which the "New Religion" reserved for their own parish kirk, were destroyed, and only this nave remained until 1821, when a new parish kirk, consisting of chancel, transept and a central tower, 100 feet in height, was added to the east of the nave; the west doorway of the old church, between the two western towers, is Norman, and above it is a fine Decorated window; the Norman nave is of eight bays, with a north porch containing a rich Norman doorway; the transept, central tower and choir composing the present church are in a modern Gothic style, and beneath the tower the remains of King Robert Bruce have been re-interred; the nave contains 17 other royal tombs, besides those of the Regents, Thomas, Earl of Moray, and Robert, Duke of Albany; on the south side of the church are some remains of the refectory and cells. The tower has the words "King Robert the Bruce" in massive stone letters, four feet high, round the four sides at the summit. The parish church has been collegiate and under the care of two ministers since 1645. There are other Established and United Free and Roman Catholic churches, besides Baptist and Congregational chapels. The Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity is in Viewfield place: the Rev. Leopold Octavius Critchley M.A., B.Sc. of Edinburgh University, has been rector since 1908.

The Grammar School, instituted towards the end of the 15th century, was, in 1873, by the operation of "The Education (Scotland) Act, 1872," transferred to the burgh School Board, the interest of the original sum of £2,000, which belonged to the school, being made over annually to that body. In 1877 the board, with the approval of the Board of Education, converted the school into one for the imparting of higher or secondary education. The present building was erected in Buchanan street at a cost of £7,500, and the school transferred to it in January, 1886. Adjoining is an annexe for Technical Instruction, erected in 1899 by the munificence of Mr. Carnegie, at a cost of £10,000, and extended in 1910 at a cost of about £11,000. The board have also erected a school in the west end of the town at a cost of £4,136, and a central school has been substituted for the Rolland and Commercial schools, at a cost of £5,143. A new infants' department was built in 1895 at an estimated cost of £2,800. There is also a school originally erected in connection with St. Leonard's steam power weaving factory, but which the board purchased at a cost of £1,200. In May, 1914, the Burgh and Parish School Boards were amalgamated, and there are eighteen schools under the control of the board. Broomhall, the seat of the Earl of Elgin and Kincardine K.G., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E., P.C. and Pitfirrane House, the seat of Lady Halkett, are in this parish. The market is held on Tuesday for grain, which is disposed of by stock and sample. The entire parish of Dunfermline comprises 21,042 statute acres; rental value of burgh, £154,215; rateable value of burgh estimated at £140,791; landward, £46,835; the population in 1901 was 31,697 and in 1911, 35,731, including 28,103 in the royal burgh. Population of the wards in 1911—First, 4,983; Second, 5,760; Third, 10,541; Fourth, 6,837; Fifth, 1,821; Sixth, 3,160; Seventh, 2,647. Population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911—Parish church, 20,135 (of which 8 only were in Kinross-shire); North Church, 5,219; St. Andrew's, 4,714; St. Leonard's, 4,411. Included in the total population were 8 officials and 195 inmates in the combination poorhouse.

The population of the parliamentary burgh in 1911 was 24,855; the number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 4,414.

CROSSFORD, Halbeath, Townhill, Wellwood, Kingseat and Miles Mark are small villages and hamlets in this parish, and in the parliamentary division of West Fife, from one to three miles distant from Dunfermline. At Halbeath is a board school. At Townhill are collieries, fire-clay works, and a board school. At Wellwood are the collieries of Messrs. Thomas Spowart and Co. Limited, and a school. At Miles Mark a school has been built by the joint aid of the parish and burgh School Boards, at a cost of £3,000, for 100 children.

CROSSGATES is a village partly in the parish of Dalgetty and partly in this parish, 1 miles east-north-east from Dunfermline and 4 north from Inverkeithing, with a station on the North British railway. The inhabitants are principally employed in the collieries surrounding the village. There are Established and United Free Presbyterian churches and a Board school.

DUNSHALT, see AUCHTERMUCHTY.

DYSART is a seaport extending 3 miles from north to south and lying along the north shore of the Firth of Forth for about 2 miles east to west, and is a royal and parliamentary burgh, in the Kirkcaldy and Dysart poor combination, with a station on the Edinburgh, Thornton and Ladybank section of the North British railway. The parish was amalgamated with that of Kirkcaldy, Dec. 3rd, 1901, and is bounded on the north by Kinglassie, east by Wemyss and Markinch and west by Kirkcaldy burgh, and is within the small debt court district of Kirkcaldy. Dysart town is 2 miles north-west from Kirkcaldy, on a gentle declivity towards the Firth of Forth. The central street contains many substantial houses, and has a very ancient appearance. The streets are lighted with gas supplied by a company formed in 1843. So early as 1546 Dysart is mentioned as one of the principal trading towns on the coast of Fife. The trade now consists in the weaving of ticks, checks and similar linen fabrics, also woollens, tweeds, druggets and winceys. There are besides power-loom factories in the burgh, besides two flax spinning mills, and in the vicinity are mines of coal, extensively wrought. The harbour is very good, and there is an excellent wet dock with about 14 feet of water. Coal is the principal export. Dysart was created a royal burgh in the 15th century, and is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors, and, together with Kirkcaldy, Kinghorn and Burntisland, forms the Kirkcaldy parliamentary district, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. The most remarkable object of antiquity near the town is the castle of Ravenscraig, which stands on a steep crag, fronting the sea, within the burgh of Kirkcaldy; this castle is alluded to in Sir Walter Scott's "Lay of the Last Minstrel," under the name of Ravensheugh. It was inhabited in the time of the Commonwealth, and was assaulted by the Parliamentary troops, but has for many years been deserted, and is now ruinous. Dysart gives the title of earl to a branch of the Murrays of Tullibardine. There is an Established church, and two United Free churches. The Normand Memorial Hall, a building of stone, was erected at a cost of between £5,000 and £6,000, and presented to the town by Mrs. James Normand, in memory of her deceased husband. There is also a Mechanics' Institute, Masonic Hall, and Police station, and near the town is a golf course of 9 holes. Dysart House, formerly the residence of the Earls of Dysart, is the seat of Michael Nairn esq. The area of the burgh is 238 acres; rateable value, £16,026; the population in 1901 was 3,562, and in 1911, 4,197 in the civil parish, and 14,835 in the ecclesiastical parish.

The population of the parliamentary burgh in 1911 was 18,524, and the number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 3,606.

EARLSFERRY, a royal burgh, formerly in the parish of Kilconquhar, but transferred on 15th May, 1891, to that of Elie, lies at the head of Elie bay, in the civil parish of that name, which adjoins Earlsferry and is the nearest railway station and telegraph office, Elie possessing the harbour. The royal burgh, which is in the debt court district of Cupar, is 13 miles south-east from St. Andrews and 5 east from Largo, and remains in the ecclesiastical parish of Kilconquhar. The date of its erection into a royal burgh is uncertain, as its earliest charter was destroyed by fire in Edinburgh. A new one was granted by James IV. (1488-1513), by which all its ancient privileges were renewed and confirmed; it is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors. The chief industry here is the manufacture of golf clubs and balls; but many of the inhabitants obtain a living by the letting of furnished houses through the summer. The National Bank of Scotland Limited and the Clydesdale Bank Limited have branches at Elie. Earlsferry has in recent years been extensively rebuilt, owing to its great popularity as a summer resort: it has an excellent beach, well adapted for sea bathing on the south and west sides, and there are golf links on the north. The area is 47 acres; value of the burgh is £3,635 gross rental; population, 1911, 322.

Town Sub-Post, M. O. & Telephone Call Office & Telegraph Office for dispatch; Robert Cumming, postmaster. Letters received through Elie, Fifeshire, which is the nearest telegraph office, for delivery. Dispatched at 10.15 a.m. & 3.15, 6.15 & 8.45 p.m

EASTER FERNIE, see MONIMAIL.

ELIE is a parish and police burgh and seaport, with a station on the Thornton Junction, Anstruther and St. Andrews section of the North British railway. The parish of Elie extends 3½ miles along the north shore of the Firth of Forth by about 1½ inland, and is in the Cupar debt court district. Earlsferry, formerly in the parish of Kilconquhar, was in 1891 transferred to this parish. The parish boundaries are St. Monance on the east, Kilconquhar on the north and Newburn on the west. The burgh is situated on the north-east part of Elie bay, 14 miles south-east from St. Andrews, 32 north-east from Edinburgh and 5 east from Largo, and is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors. There is a small, well-sheltered harbour, but no docks. The trade of the district consists in the export of potatoes. There are Established and United Free churches. The National Bank of Scotland Limited and the Clydesdale Bank Limited have each a branch here. There are golf links both for ladies and gentlemen and a good beach, and, in conjunction with Earlsferry, this place is a favourite summer resort. In one of the streets near the sea are several ancient and substantial residences, evidently once occupied by families of distinction. At the lower end of the parish, close to the sea coast, is the hill of Kincraig, which rises to a height of 200ft. above the level of the sea, and its rocky slopes contain several large caves. Elie House, the residence of William Baird esq. D.L., J.P., is a fine mansion of stone standing in good grounds. William Baird esq. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 1,990 acres; area of burgh, 80 acres; rateable value for the burgh, £5,826, and landward, £3,877; population of the parish in 1911, 1,147, including 672 in the police burgh of Elie, and 322 in Earlsferry burgh.

Post, M. O., T. & Telephonic E. D. Office; Mrs. Janet Ovenston, postmistress. Letters should have Fifeshire added to them. Deliveries, 9.30 a.m. & 7.30 p.m.; dispatches, 6.30 & 11.50 a.m. & 4 & 7.10 p.m.; sunday, 2.30 p.m

Williamsburgh and Liberty are small hamlets in the parish and form part of the police burgh.

FALKLAND is a royal burgh and parish, with a station on the Thornton, Ladybank and Dundee section of the North British railway, 2¼ miles east of the burgh, and known as Falkland Road. The burgh lies 25 miles north from Edinburgh, 15 south-east from Perth and 10 south-west from Cupar. The parish extends 6 miles from east to west by 4 broad, and is bounded north by Auchtermuchty, west by Strathmiglo, south by Leslie and Markinch, and east by Kettle. The town was erected into a burgh by James II. in 1458, and its charter was confirmed and renewed by James VI. in 1595. The government consists of a provost, two bailies, a treasurer, a town clerk and nine councillors. Falkland consists principally of one street, the eastern part of which is broad and spacious, but towards the west is narrow. The few good houses are of an antique character, somewhat in keeping with the architecture of the palace, a building for a long time only a ruin, but rescued from total decay and repaired by the late Mr. Bruce of Nuthill, and since 1895 restored at the expense of the late Marquis of Bute K.T. The royal family of Scotland resided here occasionally up to the time of Charles II. who called here on his return from the continent in 1650. James V. died here in 1542. In the old castle of Falkland, David Stewart, Duke of Rothesay, eldest son of Robert III. was confined, and here he died, 27 March, 1402. Sir Walter Scott, in his "Fair Maid of Perth," wove in the traditional story. In 1715, it is said, the famous Rob Roy garrisoned the palace with a party of Macgregors, and laid the country under heavy contributions. The house in which Richard Cameron, the Covenanter, was born, is still standing. The manufacture of linen and floorcloth is carried on here. A town hall was erected in 1804, in which balls and other public assemblages take place. A large common, which belongs to Falkland, and on which the inhabitants had a right to turn their cattle &c. was in 1818 divided among the heritors, and is now nearly all enclosed. The parish church, erected by the late O. T. Bruce esq. at an expense of £7,000, is a fine structure, with a tower and spire. There are also United Free and Roman Catholic churches. A monument to Mr. Bruce has been erected on Black Hill, near the Lomonds, and in the square behind the palace is a memorial to Col. Robert Bruce, and John Bruce, king's printer for Scotland. The House of Falkland, erected by the late Mr. Bruce, and one of the finest mansions in the county, is now, with the estates, the property of Lord Ninian Edward Crichton-Stuart M.P. The Lomond hills in this district are cone-shaped; the eastern Lomond, which is the most regular and beautiful, is about 1,335 feet above the level of the sea, and appears to have been fortified. The western Lomond is 1,450 feet, and has on its top a large cairn. Lord Ninian Edward Crichton-Stuart M.P. Charles J. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton and Edward Balfour esq. D.L., J.P. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 8,179 acres; rateable value of parish, £11,035; area of burgh, 346 acres; rateable value, £3,163; population, 1911, of civil parish, 2,356, including 830 in the royal burgh, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 1,369. Population of wards: First, 830; Second, 987; Third, 539.

FREUCHIE is a village in this parish and quoad sacra parish. The manufacture of linen is carried on here, and there are Established and United Free churches, a Reading Room and a Subscription Library. There is also a public school. Falkland Road is the nearest railway station, one mile distant. Population in 1911, 987.

NEWTON OF FALKLAND is a hamlet about midway between Falkland and Freuchie, where there is an extensive trade carried on in brewing. Falkland Road is the nearest railway station, 2 miles distant.

FERRY-PORT-ON-CRAIG, see TAYPORT.

FLISK is a parish on the south shore of the Tay, its kirktown being 9 miles west from Newport and 6 east from Newburgh and 3 north from Luthrie station on the Dundee and Newburgh branch of the North British railway; it is bounded on the west and south by Dunbog, south-east by Creich and east by Balmerino, and is in the small debt court district of Newburgh. There is an Established church here, and a United Free church at Brunton. The land is almost wholly arable. There are several salmon fishing stations along the banks of the Tay. At the west end of the parish are the extensive ruins of Ballinbreich, once the seat of the Earls of Rothes, some of whom are interred in the parish churchyard. The Marquess of Zetland K.T., P.C. James Carnegie esq. D.L. and H. S. Wedderburn esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 2,697 acres; rateable value, £3,281; population in 1901, 232 civil and 195 ecclesiastical.

GLENDUCKIE is a hamlet in this parish.

Letters should be addressed Newburgh, Fifeshire. The nearest post & money order office is at Newburgh & telegraph office at Luthrie

FORDELL, see DALGETTY.

FORGAN parish extends for about 5 miles in length and about 2½ in breadth, along the south bank of the Firth of Tay, exactly opposite the town of Dundee. It is bounded by Ferry-Port-on-Craig on the east, Balmerino on the west, Kilmany and Logie on the south-west and Leuchars on the south, and is in the small debt court district of Cupar. It contains the town of Newport, which has three stations (East and West Newport and Wormit) on the North British railway. A little north of Wormit station is the Tay railway bridge, connecting the southern lines with Dundee. The parish church of Forgan is nearly two miles inland, being 9½ miles north-east from Cupar and the same distance north-west from St. Andrews. The landward part of the parish is richly wooded and well cultivated. The mansion house of St. Fort, in this parish, is occupied by Reginald M. Pilkington esq. and about 1 mile west from Newport pier is the small harbour of Woodhaven, off which the industrial ship "Mars" is moored. The principal landowners are David Gillespie esq. Marquess of Zetland K.T., P.C. William Berry esq. J.P. Commander William Maitland-Dougall R.N., D.L., J.P. Lieut.-Col. Henry Scrymgeour-Wedderburn and the trustees of the late Mrs. Jane F. Stewart. The area comprises 5,203 acres; rateable value, £40,140, which includes the burgh of Newport; the population in 1911 was 4,771, being Newport burgh 3,643, landward 1,128, including 246 on ships of the Royal Navy and 381 on the training ship "Mars."

INVERKEITHING is a burgh and parish and seaport on the north shore of the Firth of Forth, in the poor combination and small debt court district of Dunfermline. The town is a royal and parliamentary burgh, with a station on the main line of the North British railway, the Forth railway bridge terminating at North Queensferry in this parish. The burgh is 11 miles north-west from Edinburgh, 13 south-west from Kirkcaldy and 4 south-east from Dunfermline, and occupies a slight hill sloping up from the north-west side of Inverkeithing Bay, commanding an extensive view of the south side of the Forth. The parish extends 6 miles from north to south by 3 miles broad; the outlying portion having been transferred by Boundary Order 67 to Dunfermline, a detached portion of the parish of Dunfermline at North Queensferry being at the same time attached to Inverkeithing. By Local Government (Scotland) Act No. 54, sec. 51, and to take effect from May 15th, 1914, a western portion of the parish lying within the extended boundaries of the burgh of Dunfermline was disjointed from the parish of Inverkeithing and added to the parish of Dunfermline. This burgh, together with Stirling, Culross, Dunfermline and South Queensferry, forms the Stirling parliamentary district, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. So early as the days of David I. Inverkeithing was a royal residence, and received a charter of confirmation in the reign of William the Lion, confirming charters of earlier but unknown dates; a number of intervening charters were confirmed by one from James VI., in 1598. The government is vested in a provost, or sheriff, two bailies, a dean of guild, and a treasurer, elected by the councillors. The trade of the burgh consists principally of paper making. Freestone and whinstone are abundant in this neighbourhood, and of excellent quality, and considerable quantities of each are annually exported. The harbour is capacious, and the bay is noted as a place of security in all winds. The town consists chiefly of two streets, which are lighted by gas; the town house comprises a gaol and apartments for the courts. Branches of the Clydesdale Bank Limited and the National Bank of Scotland Limited are established here. There are many remains of antiquity, some of which are coeval with the earliest periods of Scottish history. Among these is the "Inns," or old Palace, which is said to have been the residence of Annabella Drummond, Queen of Robert III., who died at Inverkeithing in 1401. This Queen is supposed to have presented the burgh with its cross, on the occasion of the marriage of her son, Duke of Rothesay, in 1400, with Mary, daughter of Archibald, 3rd Earl of Douglas; the top of the cross is adorned with shields charged with the royal arms of that Queen and the Earl of Douglas. Here are Established and United Free churches, and a Baptist chapel. The parish church contains a beautiful font, said to have been the gift of Queen Annabella, and discovered in 1806, when the church was undergoing a series of repairs. The Episcopal Mission church of St. Peter is attached to Holy Trinity, Dunfermline, and affords 64 sittings. The Rev. Alexander Leslie Ross M.A. of Aberdeen University, has been priest in charge since 1909. There is a large public school, under the School Board, opened in 1913. A fair is held on the first Friday in August. The Earl of Elgin and Kincardine K.G., P.C., G.C.S.I., G.C.I.E. the Admiralty Commissioners and the trustees of the late Hon. Hew A. D. H. Haldane-Duncan-Mercer-Henderson (d. 1900), are the principal landowners. The area comprises 4,027 acres; area of burgh, 193 acres; rateable value of the burgh in 1915, £30,641; landward, £50,891; the population of the parish in 1901 was 3,468, and in 1911, 6,274, including 6 on Inchgarvie Island and 3,291 in the burgh, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 5,489.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 524.

HILLEND and Jamestown are hamlets in the parish of Inverkeithing.

NORTH QUEENSFERRY, in the parish of Inverkeithing, is 2 miles south from Inverkeithing, and is well known to travellers as the port and point of land opposite to Queensferry (or South Queensferry), in Linlithgowshire, and a steamer passes between the two several times daily. Here is a United Free church. The Forth bridge, which carries the North British railway over the Firth of Forth, was opened by his late Majesty King Edward VII. then Prince of Wales, on the 4th of March, 1890, the cost of its erection being about £3,000,000. Two of the spans of this gigantic undertaking are 1,710 feet in length, and have a height of 150 feet above high water at spring tides. There are two other spans of 680 feet, fifteen of 168 feet, four of 57 feet and three of 25 feet each; the total length with the viaduct approaches is a mile and a half (for full particulars see Queensferry, Linlithgowshire). By its erection the direct journey north can be taken without break, whereas formerly passengers had to cross the Forth by ferry from Granton to Burntisland. A short distance to the west of the village is the anchorage ground, resorted to by vessels in stress of weather or contrary winds, called "Saint Margaret's Hope." Here is a fishing ground for a kind of sprat, of which quantities are taken. There are also large whinstone quarries, employing a number of men. Population in 1911, 971.

The population of Inchgarvie Island in 1911 was 6.

KETTLE (KINGSKETTLE) is a parish, including the village of Kingskettle, which is situated 4 miles east from Falkland and 17 south from Dundee, with a station, called Kingskettle, on the main line of the North British railway. The parish extends about 9 miles east to west by 3 broad; is in the small debt court district of Cupar, and is bounded north by Collessie and Cults, east by Largo, south by Kennoway and Markinch, and west by Falkland. The name of Kingskettle, by which the village is now called, has arisen from its being the property of the Crown. There are Established and United Free churches. This district forms a large portion of the rich and beautiful territory on the north side of the Bow of Fife. The river Eden bounds the parish on nearly the whole of the northern side. The manufacture of linen is the principal trade carried on here. A fire engine is maintained here by public subscription; the brigade consists of a superintendent, captain and seven firemen. The cemetery, opened in 1896, is under the management of the Parish Council, and contains a beautiful marble monument, erected by H. V. Haig esq. of Ramornie, to the memory of his wife, Archie Anne Lindsay Fraser. C. J. M. Crichton esq. Edward Balfour esq. D.L., J.P. Oliver Haig esq. J.P. and Alexander Lawson esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 7,589 acres; rateable value, £11,712; population in 1911, 1,715.

KETTLEBRIDGE is a village in this parish, about 1 mile south of the church, and about half a mile from the village is the hamlet of Balmalcolm, where there is a United Free church.

KILCONQUHAR is a parish and village, with a station on the Thornton junction, Anstruther and St. Andrew's section, of the North British railway, is 4 miles east of Largo and 10 south of St. Andrew's. The parish is in the small debt court district of Anstruther, and contains the village of Colinsburgh (which see); it extends about 6 miles from north to south by a breadth varying from 2 to 3 miles, and is bounded south by Elie, west by Newburn and Largo, north by Ceres and Cameron, and east by Carnbree. Until the 15th May, 1891, the royal burgh of Earlsferry was in Kilconquhar parish, but the Boundary Commissioners then transferred a detached portion of Elie parish (consisting of Muircambus and part of Charlston estates) to Kilconquhar, and in exchange gave to Elie parish all the land formerly belonging to Kilconquhar to the south of Cockle Mill Burn and the North British railway. This area included the burgh of Earlsferry, which now forms part of Elie parish. Coal and lime are found in the parish. The parish church has a fine square tower 80 feet high. Balcarres House, the seat of the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres, and about one mile north of Colinsburgh, is a mansion in the Tudor style, situated on a southern slope about 3 miles from the sea-coast; Kilconquhar House is the residence of the Earl of Lindsay, and Charleton House, of Col. C. F. St. Clair Anstruther M.V.O., D.S.O. Balcarres Craig, near Balcarres House, is a remarkable hill, rising abruptly 200 feet above the level of the land. Kilconquhar Loch is a fine sheet of water, three-quarters of a mile in length and nearly the same in breadth, and about 2 miles in circumference, with two small islands, which harbour swans and wild fowl. The Earl of Crawford and the Earl of Lindsay, Col. C. F. St. Clair Anstruther M.V.O., D.S.O. William Baird esq. J.P. of Elie House, and the trustees of the late David Adams esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 6,633 acres; rateable value, £13,312 (gross). The population in 1911 was 1,419 in the civil parish and 1,423 in the ecclesiastical parish.

Post Office; Miss Marjory Mathieson, postmistress (letters should have Fifeshire added to them. Deliveries, 9 a.m. & 7 p.m.; dispatches, 6.40 & 11.10 a.m. & 3.30 & 7.10 p.m.; sundays, dispatched, 10.30 a.m. Nearest money order, telegraph & telephone office is at Colinsburgh, 1 mile distant KILMANY is a parish and village, the latter 5 miles north of Cupar, and 5 south-west of Newport. The parish, which is in the small debt court district of Cupar, extends 6 miles from north-east to south-west by a breadth varying from 1 to 3 miles; it is bounded north by Balmerino, north-east by Forgan, east by Logie, south by Cupar and west by Creich. Here is a station on the Dundee and Newburgh section of the North British railway. There are Established and Free churches. With the exception of a few acres which are chiefly woodland, the entire parish is in a high state of cultivation, being well watered and drained by numerous streams. In 1680, David Hackston, at that time proprietor of the estate of Rathillet and a bigoted leader of the Covenanters, was executed for complicity in the murder of Archbishop Sharpe, of St. Andrews. Major Henry A. Bethune J.P. and Major William Anstruther-Gray M.P., J.P. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 5,340 acres; rateable value, £7,639; population 1911, 476.

RATHILLET is a village in the parish of Kilmany about 3 miles from St. Fort railway station.

KILRENNY is a royal and parliamentary burgh, also a parish, and contains the port and village of Cellardyke. The burgh is 1 mile north-east of Anstruther Easter, 3 south-west from Crail, and 11 south-east from St. Andrew's. The nearest station is at Anstruther, on the North British railway. The parish extends 3 miles along the shore of the Firth of Forth, by 2 inland, and is bounded on the west by Anstruther Easter and Carnbee, north by Airdrie and east by Crail; it is in the small debt court district of Anstruther. The coast here is one continued range of rocks, with two small creeks, which form the harbour of Anstruther, and the port of Cellardyke, or Nether Kilrenny, while the burgh of Kilrenny is composed of Upper and Nether Kilrenny, or Cellardyke, and is governed by a provost, two bailies, a treasurer and six councillors, and in conjunction with St. Andrew's, the two Anstruthers, Crail, Cupar and Pittenweem forms the St. Andrew's district of burghs, and returns one member to Parliament. There is an Established church. The Town Hall, which includes council, reading and amusement rooms, was erected and presented to the burgh by Stephen Williamson esq. and the representatives of the late James Fowler esq. Capt. Philip George Anstruther, Capt. Sir Thomas Wilfred Hargreaves Erskine bart. David W. Clement esq. Andrew Morris esq. William Baird esq. David Gibb esq. James Cairns esq. and Edwin R. J. Sandys-Lumsdaine esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 3,775 acres; rateable value, burghal, £5,807, and of the parish, including part of Anstruther Easter, £11,183. The population of the entire parish in 1911 was 2,979, 2,557 being in the burgh of Kilrenny and 156 in the burgh of Anstruther. Population of ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 1,181

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 575.

The village and quoad sacra parish of CELLARDYKE (or Nether Kilrenny) is an extensive fishing village, but forming part of the burgh of Kilrenny. There is a small harbour for fishing boats. Here are an Established church and a United Free Church hall. Cellardyke is specially noted for its oil clothing, fishing material, and net manufacturing, a considerable number of persons being employed in these industries. Canvas buoys were first made here, A. Black and Co. being the patentees and inventors. The greater number of the inhabitants are fishermen, about 200 boats and 50 drifters belonging to the place. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 1,798.

KINCARDINE (or Kincardine-on-Forth) is a town on the north bank of the Firth of Forth, and in the parish of Tulliallan, transferred to this county by a Local Government Order in December, 1890, having up to that time been included in Perthshire. The town is a seaport, 15 miles west from North Queensferry and 5 south-east from Alloa, and has three stations on the North British railway. At one time this place was called "West Pans," from the salt works established in it, but these have long ceased to exist. The town, although irregularly built and the streets narrow, contains some good houses. There is an Established church and a United Free church, and a branch of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited.

KINGHORN is a seaport and a royal police burgh and contributory parliamentary burgh, also a parish, 3 miles south from Kirkcaldy, and 2½ east-by-north from Burntisland, and has a station on the Edinburgh, Thornton and Dundee section of the North British railway. The parish is 4½ miles in extent from north to south by about 4 wide; it is in the poor combination of Kirkcaldy and Dysart and small debt court district of Kirkcaldy, and is bounded south by Burntisland, west by Aberdour and Auchtertool, and north by Kirkcaldy and Dysart. Kinghorn was invested with the privileges of a royal burgh by King David I. (1124-53), and about that time was said to have been a royal residence. It is governed by a provost, two bailies, a treasurer, and six councillors. The burgh, in conjunction with those of Dysart, Kirkcaldy and Burntisland, forms the Kirkcaldy parliamentary district, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. There are two principal streets in the town, one running from east to west, and the other from south to north. The harbour has fallen to decay, and the nearest existing harbour is now at Pettycur, about half a mile distant. There is an ancient Established church, which has been restored at a cost of £3,000, and two United Free churches. The Town House is a good building, and there is a library and museum at the school, and a sub-branch of the British Linen Bank. In 1887 the municipal authorities purchased Links Park, adjoining the town, for public and recreation grounds, at a cost of £1,050, and expended in addition £300 in laying out the golf course and bowling green, and in 1903 Castle Rigland was purchased, at a cost of £2,400, thus extending the golf course to 18 holes. A golf club house was erected in 1894, facing the links. About a mile to the eastward of Kinghorn and near the coast, is the Kirkcaldy Combination Poorhouse for the parishes of Kirkcaldy, Dysart, Burntisland and Kinghorn. About 1 mile from Kinghorn, on the Burntisland road, is a monument in the form of a Celtic cross, erected to commemorate the death of Alexander III., who was killed by falling from his horse in 1286. The inscription reads, "To the Illustrious Alexander III., the last of Scotland's Celtic Kings, who was accidentally killed near this spot, March 19th, MCCLXXXVI. Erected on the Sexcentenary of his death."

The island of INCHKEITH forms part of the parish of Kinghorn, distant about three miles from Pettycur. It has a large harbour, erected by the government at a considerable cost, and a lighthouse with a revolving light on the highest point of land standing 235 feet above the sea level. Certain writers say Inchkeith was so called from an old noble family named Keith, while others connect it with Gudi. Here, they supposed, was raised the town or fortress of Guida, described by Bede, more than 1,100 years ago, as situated in the middle of the great arm of the sea which runs into Britain from the east. About the year 700 a church or monastery, founded by St. Adamnan, successor to St. Columba in the abbacy of Iona, was erected on the island. Inchkeith was seized by the English in 1547, and a fort built on it, but during the regency of Mary, queen of James V. it was captured by the French.

The area of the parish comprises 5,333 acres; rateable value of landward, £10,855; burgh, £9,313; population in 1901, 3,400, and in 1911, 2,295, of whom 1,519 were in the burgh, and 41 on Inchkeith Island. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 2,259. Included in the civil population were 7 officials and 94 inmates in Kirkcaldy Combination poorhouse. The area of the burgh is 325 acres; rateable value,

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 267.

KINGLASSIE is a parish and village, the latter 3 miles south from Leslie, 4½ north-east from Lochgelly, and 3 north from Cardenden station on the Dunfermline and Thornton Junction section of the North British railway; there is also a station at Leslie on a branch line from Markinch. The parish, which is in the small debt court district of Kirkcaldy, and extends 5 miles from east to west by a width of 2 to 4 miles, is bounded north by Leslie and Portmoak, west by Auchterderran, south by Dysart, and east by Markinch. It is watered by the Lochty and the Ore, tributary streams of the Leven. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in mining. There are Established, Free and United Free churches. A Public Hall was erected in 1896, at a cost of £3,000, by the late Mr. Alexander Mitchell, of Redwells, and is now held by the Parish Council for behoof of the inhabitants. A fair is entitled to be held on third Wednesday in May, and on the Thursday before Michaelmas (o.s.). A large pit has been sunk by the Fife Coal Co. at a cost of over £200,000. John M'Nab esq. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 8,415 acres; rateable value, £20,925 3s. 9d.; population in 1901 1,478, and in 1911 1,944 in the civil parish and 1,649 in the ecclesiastical parish.

KIRKCALDY,

WITH ABBOTSHALL, CHAPEL, PATHHEAD, SINCLAIRTOWN AND GALLATOWN.

KIRKCALDY is a royal, parliamentary and police burgh, a seaport and parish, in the Kirkcaldy and Dysart poor combination and of a small debt court district, with a station on the Edinburgh, Thornton and Ladybank section of the North British railway, 12 miles east of Dunfermline. The burgh of Kirkcaldy is 3 miles in extent from north to south, by one mile wide, and is bounded north and east by Dysart, south by Kinghorn, and north and west by Auchterderran; the parish extend along the northern shores of the Firth of Forth, at the base of a range of rising ground for upwards of 3 miles. By an Act of Parliament the suburbs of Abbotshall Pathhead, Gallatown and Sinclairtown are comprised within the boundaries of the burgh, as are also the quoad sacra parishes of St. James, Invertiel, Raith and Pathhead. On the 3rd of December, 1901, the parishes of Kirkcaldy, Dysart, Abbotshall, and a part of that of Kinghorn were amalgamated and are now under the Kirkcaldy and Dysart Parish Council. The civil government of the town, which was made a royal burgh by Charles I. is vested in a town council consisting of 27 members including a provost and admiral of the burgh and harbour, four bailies, a dean of guild and a treasurer. The council are also commissioners of police under the General Police Act, and local authority under the Health Act. The management of the harbour has been vested since 1904 in the Town Council, and in the same year considerable extensions were commenced which were finished in 1909. The burgh, together with Kinghorn, Dysart and Burntisland, forms the Kirkcaldy parliamentary district, constituted in 1708, and returning one member. The sheriff holds a court every Wednesday for the disposal of ordinary debt recovery, and small debt cases. The justices of the peace sit here for the trial of offences within the Kirkcaldy district of county, and here also hold licensing courts; this is also the meeting place for the County Council of the district. When Charles I. erected Kirkcaldy into a royal burgh, it had, according to tradition, 100 ships belonging to it, and ranked as the sixth place of maritime importance in Scotland; but in 1673 the number of vessels in its possession had decreased considerably. On the return of peace in 1763, the trade of the port revived, and the number of shipping consequently increased and progressively augmented, so that in 1792 it boasted 26 vessels; from this period Kirkcaldy has gradually risen into repute, both as a port and a manufacturing town. The principal importations are cork, linseed oil, whiting, potters' clay, grain &c.; the exports are floor cloth, linoleum, linen, yarn, machinery and coal. The new dock was opened in 1909, and has an area of 4½ acres, 21 feet of water over the sill at ordinary spring tide and 15 feet at neap. The tidal basin dries to 5 feet; the quayage extends over 1,000 yards, and a branch from the main line of railway traverses the entire length of the harbour. The number of vessels that entered the port in 1909, from and to foreign countries, with cargoes and in ballast was 273, of 38,191 tons. Cleared: 12 British, 1,253 tons; foreign, 180, 60,031 tonnage. In the coasting trade, 601 vessels entered of 77,065 tonnage, and 318 cleared of 43,586 tons; in intercourse with Great Britain and Ireland, 7 only entered, of 508 tons. In 1909, 54 vessels, aggregating 1,757 tons, were registered in this port; the number of fishing boats registered at the port was 421, aggregating 6,411 tons, requiring 1,767 men and boys to work them. Fishing boats and their implements are to be distinguished by the letters K. Y. There is a customs and mercantile marine office here, also an excise office. The prominent trade of Kirkcaldy and neighbourhood bears an intimate affinity with that of Dundee, consisting of the spinning of flax, tow, jute, and the weaving of linen goods for home and foreign consumption; striped hollands, dowlas, ticks, checks, sailcloths &c. are amongst the fabrics produced, and in the manufacture of which there are several extensive power-loom factories in full operation; there are also several bleaching fields and dye works, and also china and earthenware factories, where a superior class of goods is made. Kirkcaldy is now the centre of the floor cloth and linoleum manufacture of the kingdom. The other branches include brass and iron founding, machine and steel pipe, cabinet, fishing net and rope and twine making, and a considerable corn, malt and meal trade. The town, owing to its disproportionate length, has from an early period been styled "the lang toon o' Kirkcaldy, but it now comprises many well-built cross streets and detached dwellings. Electric tramways and lighting are provided by the Corporation, who have a large power station in Victoria road; the principal streets were lighted with arc lamp and private consumers supplied in December, 1902; other streets being lighted with gas; and an overhead system of tramways was opened for traffic in Feb. 1903. The streets are paved. The Town Hall, erected in 1829, contains a hall for burgh and district meetings, and record room, an office for the town clerk, and other apartments. The Sheriff Court Buildings, in Whyte's Causeway, were opened May, 1894, at a cost of £6 000. Here the sheriff holds a court every Wednesday. The district committee meetings of the County Council are also held here, and the Justice of Peace Courts. There are two good hotels, the "George," in High street, and the 'Station" near the railway station. Adam Smith, author of "The Wealth of Nations," was born here 5 June, 1723. The Adam Smith Public Hall in St. Brycedale avenue also contains the Beveridge Hall and Library, built with money left for this purpose by the late Michael Beveridge esq. of Beechwood, and provost of Kirkcaldy; the library contains about 12,000 volumes. An organ was presented in 1901 by Andrew Carnegie esq. LL.D. of Skibo Castle. Provost Beveridge also gifted to the inhabitants a fine public park, some 100 acres in extent, with an artificial lake in the centre, which in winter is used as a skating pond. At the western end of the park is a golf course of 18 holes, and a club house was erected in 1906 at a cost of £1.000. The Burgh Police Buildings, erected in 1902-3, at a cost of £20.000, are of Grange stone in the Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. William Williamson, and contains a police court and offices for the burgh police. The Pavilion, formerly the Corn Exchange, between Market street and Cowan street, the first stone of which was laid with masonic honours in May, 1859, is the property of the Corporation, and is now used for theatricals, public meetings, concerts &c. The King's Theatre, in High street, was erected in 1903, and will seat 3,000 persons. The Combination Poorhouses were erected in 1849, at a cost of over £5,000, and opened May, 1850; the buildings are available for 130 inmates and are the joint property of the parishes of Kirkcaldy and Dysart, Burntisland and Kinghorn, nearly all being held by the parish of Kirkcaldy and Dysart. The management is vested in the Parish Councils; one of these is situated on the lands of Abden, in the parish of Kinghorn, and commands an extensive view of the Firth of Forth; the other at Thornton was erected in 1862, at a cost of about £6.000, and will hold 155 inmates. The Swan Memorial, a building of red stone, was erected in 1895, at the bottom of Kirkwynd, as a memorial to the late Provost Swan, and contains a set of rooms for the Young Men's Christian Association, to whom it belongs.

The parish church of Kirkcaldy, mainly erected in 1807, stands on rising ground in the centre of the town, the principal feature of the building being the fine Norman tower, dating from the middle of the 13th century, and formerly part of the old church of St. Brisse, dedicated in A.D. 1244: in the south porch is a marble monument to George Gillespie, one of the commissioners to the Westminster Assembly in 1643, and there are two stained windows, designed by the late Sir E. Burne-Jones bart. D.C.L. and executed by the late William Morris F.S.A. of London. St. James's church, built in 1841 as a chapel for the original seceders, has belonged since 1853 to the Church of Scotland. St. Brycedale United Free church, an edifice in the Gothic style, was erected at a cost (exclusive of the site, which is valued at about £8,000) of fully £22,000. It contains a number of memorial windows, two of which are from designs by the late Sir E. Burne-Jones bart. The other places of worship are the parish churches of Inverkiel, Abbotshall, Raith, Sinclairtown and Pathhead; there are also United Free and Original Secession and Roman Catholic churches, besides Congregational, Wesleyan, Unitarian and Baptist chapels. The Episcopal church of St. Peter is in Townsend place; the Rev. John Smith Begg M.A. of Edinburgh University, has been rector since 1913; there is also a mission church in Tram street. The High School, built on the site of the old burgh school, by Sir M. B. Nairn, of Rankeilour, when chairman of the Kirkcaldy School Board, includes an elementary department. The school established under the will of the late Robert Philp esq. of Edenshead, for children of both sexes, have been transferred to the care of the School Board, and the children entitled to the benefits of this foundation are educated at the board schools, and receive clothing as before. A number of bursaries are also provided for the purpose of enabling the children of poor parents to attend the High School, or to prosecute their studies at the universities. There is also a charitable trust left by John Thomson, for educating poor children, and for providing annuities for the support of poor inhabitants. There are branches here of the National Bank of Scotland Limited (with sub-branch at Pathhead), the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited (who have also a branch at Pathhead and sub-branches at the West End and at Dunnikier road), the Bank of Scotland, the Union of Scotland Limited, the British Linen Bank, the Royal Bank of Scotland, the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited and the Clydesdale Bank Limited. There is also the Kirkcaldy Savings Bank, with branches at Pathhead and Links street. Four newspapers are issued here, the "Fife Free Press," "Fifeshire Advertiser," "Kirkcaldy Mail" and "Kirkcaldy Times." The market, which is for the sale of grain, is held on alternate Saturdays. The ruins of Ravenscraig Castle are near the northern boundary of the burgh, and Seafield Tower, also a ruin, is on the south; both are on the coast overlooking the Forth. Raith, a mansion with a lofty tower and fine grounds, is the residence of the Rt. Hon. Sir Ronald C. Munro-Ferguson P.C., G.C.M.G., D.L. The principal landowners are John Oswald esq. D.L., J.P. the Rt. Hon. Sir R. C. Munro-Ferguson P.C. Sir M. B. Nairn bart. and the trustees of the Earl of Rosslyn. The area of the parish comprises 9,575 acres; rateable value, £253,049; area of burgh, 1,743 acres; rateable value, £210,767. The population of the entire parish in 1901 was 39,904 and in 1911, 45,410, viz.:—Burgh, 39,601; Dysart burgh, 4,197; landward, 1,612. The population of the municipal wards in 1911 was: First, 11,852; Second, 12,916; Third, 14,833. The population in the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was:—Parish Church, 11,326; Raith, 3,578; St. James', 4,047.

The Parliamentary burgh had a population in 1911 of 25,274; number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915, 4,377, and in the whole district of burghs, 9,412.

ABBOTSHALL, formerly a distinct parish, was merged in the amalgamated parishes of Kirkcaldy and Dysart, 3 Dec. 1901 and is partly in the burgh of Kirkcaldy, and in Kirkcaldy and Dysart poor combination, and is a quoad sacra parish. The district, the extent of which is about 2 miles either way, rises gradually from the coast northward into tolerably high ground. The present parish church was built in 1788 to replace the original church erected at the first disjunction of the parish in 1650. The small village of Chapel is in this parish. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 3,623.

INVERTIEL is a quoad sacra parish formed from those of Abbotshall and Kinghorn. Here are Established and United Free churches. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 2,891.

PATHHEAD, now included within the burgh, is in the parish of Kirkcaldy and Dysart, and is a quoad sacra parish, situated chiefly on the face of a hill, looking towards the Firth of Forth; it is joined by two other districts, respectively named Gallatown and Sinclairtown, also in the same burgh and parish. The manufacture of linoleum, floorcloth and linen goods is briskly followed in these places. Dowlas, ticks, sheeting &c. are produced; flax spinning is also carried on to some extent. At Gallatown are earthenware manufactories. The Public Hall, in Commercial street, was erected about 1883; a branch of the Beveridge library is located in this building, and there is also a reading room. At Pathhead are branches of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, and the National Bank of Scotland Limited. A cottage hospital was erected in 1889, in Nether street, at the expense of Sir Michael B. Nairn bart.; in addition a wing was built in 1915 consisting of a large circular ward, two private wards, X-ray room and operating theatre, also at the cost of Sir M. B. Nairn. There is an Established church, three United Free churches, a Free church, and Evangelical Union, Wesleyan and Baptist chapels. The population in 1911 was 4,756.

LADYBANK is a village, 5 miles south-west from Cupar, ecclesiastical parish formed from Collessie parish, and in conjunction with Monkston a police burgh, governed by a chief magistrate, two junior magistrates and six commissioners; it is in the parish of Collessie, and is an important railway station on the North British system, being the junction for the lines from Edinburgh, Alloa and Perth with the line to Dundee. The chief business is linen manufacturing, but malting and bobbin making are likewise carried on. A United Free church, with spire, was erected here in 1876; an Established church has also been built, and there is an Episcopal Mission church, which is served from Cupar. The area of the burgh is 105 acres; rateable value, £4,917 6s.; population in 1911, 1,286 burgh, and 1,172 ecclesiastical parish.

LARGO,

INCLUDING LARGO (UPPER & LOWER) & LUNDIN.

LARGO is a parish on the north shore of the Firth of Forth, at the head of Largo bay, in the small debt court district of Cupar, and contains the villages of Upper or Kirkton of Largo, Lundin Links and Lower Largo, the latter a small seaport with a station on the Thornton, Anstruther and St. Andrews section of the North British railway, and there is another station at Lundin Links, one mile from Largo. The parish is 4 miles in extent from north to south by 3 in breadth, and is bounded on the north by Ceres, east by Kilconquhar and Newburn, and west by Scoonie. A striking feature in the landscape is Largo Law, a conical hill, rising to a height of 950 feet above the level of the sea, and green to the summit, where it is cleft in two. From its top a splendid view of the Firth of Forth, with its islands, and the opposite shore of the Lothians is obtained. The minerals worked are coal and limestone, the latter being most excellent in quality. The National Bank of Scotland Limited has a branch here, and there is also a Savings Bank. Largo was the birthplace of Sir Andrew Wood, a celebrated admiral in the reign of James III. who presented him with the barony of Largo in recognition of his services, and the shore for an extent of 5 miles is still claimed by his descendants. Sir John Leslie, the philosopher, was also born here. Within the grounds of Largo House is a conical-topped tower, which formed part of the old castle built by Sir Andrew Wood. This tower, it is said, was built by the prisoners taken by Sir Andrew in his sea fights. Lower Largo was the birthplace, about 1676, of Alexander Selkirk, rendered famous by the pen of De Foe as "Robinson Crusoe." A descendant, named Catherine Selkirk, was resident in this village until her death, in 1862. Mr. David Gillies, of Cardy works, also a descendant of the family, has erected, on the site of his birthplace, a life-size bronze statue to Alexander Selkirk, which was unveiled 11th December, 1885, by the Earl of Aberdeen. The tablet bears the inscription—"In memory of Alexander Selkirk, mariner, the original of Robinson Crusoe, who lived in the island of Juan Fernandez, in complete solitude, for four years and four months. He died 1723, Lieut. of H.M.S. Weymouth, aged 47 years." The Simpson Institute Hall, opened May 8th, 1891, was erected by means of a legacy of £4,000 bequeathed by Mrs. Galloway in memory of her father, George Simpson, of Upper Largo. It is an edifice of stone, in the old Scottish style, and is devoted to educational, recreative and social purposes: the interior contains a public hall, library and billiard room, and attached are grounds with a bowling green and tennis court. The institute is controlled by a board of trustees. Wood's Hospital, which stands in the Kirktown of Largo, was erected under an endowment by Mr. John Wood, a native of this place, for "any man or woman of the name of Wood, to whatever part of Scotland he or she may belong. The foundation provides the inmates with two rooms each, beds and bedding, and the produce of the gardens. The parish church is in Upper Largo, and has in the transept a memorial window to Sir Andrew Wood, before named. A Celtic cross of unknown date, found in the parish in the year 1839 by General Durham, then proprietor of Largo, now stands in the parish churchyard. Largo house is a spacious mansion built in 1750, situated a little to the west of the village on a slope with southern aspect, amid richly ornamented grounds; it is the property of C. J. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton esq. but now (1915) the residence of Robert B. Ritchie esq. The soil is partly of a light character, but more commonly of a black loam. The inhabitants are mainly devoted to agricultural pursuits, and the chief crops are wheat, oats, potatoes, rye and flax. Sir John Gilmour bart. C. J. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton esq. Major John Arthur Briggs and Captain Noel Baxter are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 7,371 acres; gross value, £24,245; the population in 1911 was 2,274. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 2,132.

LOWER LARGO is a fishing village in this parish, 1 mile south-west from Upper Largo, 2½ miles north-east from Leven and 3½ south-west from Colinsburgh, on the shore of an indentation of the Firth of Forth, called Largo bay; it stands at the efflux of a rivulet named the Keil, whose estuary forms a harbour to the place.

LUNDIN MILL (now known as Lundin Links) is a village adjoining Lower Largo, with a station on the North British railway. A square tower, which formed part of the ancient castle of Lundin, still remains. Here also are the three "Standing Stones of Lundin," supposed to have once formed part of a Druidical temple. LESLIE is a parish, a burgh of barony and police burgh and a manufacturing town, the latter comprising the burghs of Leslie and the outlying districts of Croftounterly and Prinlaws, and having a terminal station on the Markinch and Leslie branch of the North British railway, 12 miles east from Kinross, 12 south-west from Cupar, 9 north-west from Kirkcaldy and 3 west from Markinch. The parish is in the poor combination district of Dysart and small debt court district of Kirkcaldy, and is bounded north by Falkland, east by Markinch, south by Kinglassie, and west by Portmoak (Kinrossshire). The town, consisting principally of one street, running from east to west, is an ancient place, often frequented by King James when holding court at Falkland, and is governed by a council, consisting of a provost, two bailies and six councillors. The streets are lighted with gas. At the eastern entrance to the town is a public green, which in former times was the scene of various pastimes, and the place of annual meeting for the pedlars or packmen of Scotland. The increase of this town is attributable to the prosperity of its manufactures, consisting of flax spinning and bleaching and paper making, the works standing chiefly on the banks of the Leven. There is a branch here of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited. The places of worship are the parish church, a quoad sacra church at Prinlaws, at the west end of the town, three United Free churches, and a Baptist chapel. There is a library, consisting of about 1,200 volumes, and reading room connected with the Young Men's Christian Association. A fair is held on the first Tuesday after the 11th of April. The Earl of Rothes, Robert Tullis esq. and the Kirkcaldy and Dysart Water Commissioners are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 4,944 acres; rateable value, £16,741 landward; area of burgh, 99 acres; rateable value, £8,099; population in 1911, 3,869, viz.:—Burgh, 2,142; landward, 1,727. Population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911: Parish church, 2,657; Prinlaws, 1,390.

WALKERTON is a village in the parishes of Leslie and Kinglassie.

Post, T., M. O. & Telephonic Express Delivery Office; Isaac Wilson, postmaster. Letters should have Fifeshire added. Deliveries, 8.40 a.m. & 12.35 & 6.10 p.m.; dispatches, 7.50 & 9.20 a.m. & 1.20, 4.20 & 7 p.m.; no sunday delivery of letters; callers, 9.45 to 10.15 a.m

LETHAM, see MONIMAIL.

LEUCHARS is a parish and village on the sea coast to the north of St. Andrews bay; the village is 5 miles north-west from St. Andrews, and has a station on the St. Andrews, Leuchars and Tayport section of the North British railway, and half a mile south is the station of Leuchars junction, on the North British main line. The parish, which is in the small debt court district of Cupar, is about 5 miles from north to south, by the same in extent in width, and is bounded on the north by Forgan and Ferry-Port-on-Craig, west by Logie and south by the Eden. The ancient Established church, supposed to have been erected in the 12th century, is one of the most perfect examples of Norman architecture in Scotland: in 1914 the ancient chancel and apse were restored at a cost of £1,400, and now form part of the church. There is also a Mission church and St. Saviour's Episcopal church at Guard Bridge, and a United Free church. The Pitcairn Institute, the gift of the late Mrs. Pitcairn, of Pitcullo, contains a library and reading rooms, and has recreation grounds attached to it. The St. Michael's Golf Club, established here in 1904, now numbers 150 members, and has a course of nine holes. At Guard Bridge, in this parish, are the works of the Guard Bridge Paper Co. Limited, and here also is a station on the North British railway. Balmullo, a small village, is also in this parish. Near Leuchars is the old castle of Earlshall, which has been restored by its owner, R. W. B. Mackenzie esq. J.P. The parish comprises 13,409 acres; rateable value, £24,490; the population in 1911 was 2,605.

BALMULLO and LUCKLAWHILL form a village in the parishes of Leuchars and Logie.

LEVEN is a town in the parish of Scoonie and is bounded on the west by the river Leven, which here runs into the Firth of Forth, and is crossed by a bridge. As a seaside resort Leven attracts a large number of visitors during the summer months. Inner Leven, connected with Leven by a stone bridge over the Leven, has, in conjunction with Buckhaven and Methil, been made into a police burgh. The town, which is in the debt court district of Cupar, is 9 miles north-east of Kirkcaldy and 3 south-west from Largo, and has a station on the Thornton, Anstruther and St. Andrews section of the North British railway, about a quarter of a mile from the town. The Wemyss and District Tramway Co. Limited also opened a new line, 25 Aug. 1906, connecting the town of Leven with Kirkcaldy. The town is irregularly built, and consists of three main streets and a collection of houses bordering the links, where three golf clubs are established, with three good club houses. There is an excellent water supply, which provides also for Lundin Links and Methil Docks. The police burgh is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors. The staple trade of Leven is the preparation and spinning of flax, and seed crushing, paper making, engineering &c. the mills of the first-named trade especially employing a considerable number of hands; there are a bone dust mill, salt works and rope walks, as well as a large timber yard and saw mill. In the district are collieries. There are branches here of the British Linen Bank, the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the National Bank of Scotland Limited, and the Royal Bank of Scotland. A fair is held on the Thursday after the third Monday in July. The Greig Institute, erected in 1873, contains a news room, library, billiard room and a class room for technical instruction; its name was adopted in compliment to Mr. Greig, of Glencarse, who gave the site and £1,000 towards the building fund. The Established church was erected in 1903 at a cost of £5,000, in place of the old church, then demolished: there are also two United Free churches and a Baptist chapel: the Episcopal church of St. Margaret of Scotland, built in 1881, will seat 200 persons; the rectory, value £242, has been held since 1912 by the Rev. Charles-Cyril Angell M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is also an institute and a reading room. A large public school was erected in 1893, at a cost of £10 000, for 1,200 children, and another in 1910, for 480 children, at a cost of £8,400. The hospital was built in 1910, at a cost of £1,500, as a memorial to the late David Bain esq.; it contains two wards with five beds each. A bequest by the late Edward Boase, of Leven, of £500, yields a bursary of £25, tenable for three years, and the late Alexander Balfour, a former resident of Leven, left £12 per annum for three bursaries for boys or girls. The Caledonian hotel is near the bay shore, and has a large posting establishment attached. The "Leven Advertiser" is published every Thursday, price one halfpenny. The area of the burgh is 173 acres; rateable value, £29 856; population in 1901, 5,577, and in 1911, 6,559; population of the wards, First, 4,128; Second, 1,260; Third, 1,171.

LIBERTY, see ELIE.

LIMEKILNS is a small village, and with the creek of Brucehaven forms a small harbour on the north bank of the Firth of Forth, in the parish of Dunfermline and parliamentary division of West Fife, 4 miles west from North Queensferry and 3 south of Dunfermline town, and has a United Free church. The adjoining village of CHARLESTOWN forms a part of the port, and contains a station on the Dunfermline and Charlestown branch of the North British railway, opened for passenger traffic 1st September, 1894. There is a shipbuilding yard at Brucehaven, and at Charlestown, which is the property of the Earl of Elgin, and contains a harbour formed by him, but now owned by the North British Railway Co. Large quantities of coal and lime are shipped; there are also two salt works and a lime kiln and an iron foundry.

LOCHGELLY is a town, ecclesiastical parish formed from Auchterderran and Ballingry, and police burgh partly in the parish of Auchterderran with a small portion in the parish of Ballingry, and has a station on the Thornton and Dunfermline section of the North British railway, 7 miles west from Kirkcaldy, 8 north-east from Dunfermline, and 6 north from Burntisland. In 1912 the burgh was enlarged by the addition of 92 acres taken from Auchterderran and Ballingry. The loch, which is about a mile south-east, has an area of 100 acres. There are Established, United Free and Roman Catholic churches, and a Baptist chapel. The Episcopal church is dedicated to St. Finnian; the Rev. George Parkin Horne M.A. of University College, Durham, has been priest in charge since 1908. There are also branches of the Union Bank of Scotland Limited and Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in coal mining. Two newspapers are published here. The ruins of Lochore Castle are about a mile distant. The area of the burgh is 360 acres; gross valuation, £27,285; population in 1901, 5,472 burgh; ecclesiastical parish, 8,496, and in 1911, burgh, 9,956; ecclesiastical parish, 14,301.

MARKINCH is a parish extending 5 miles from north to south by 2 to 3 in breadth, in the poor combination of Kirkcaldy and Dysart, and small debt court district of Kirkcaldy, and bounded north by Kettle, east by Kennoway, south by Dysart and Wemyss, and west by Kinglassie and Leslie. Its kirktown, which has a station on the main line of the North British railway, lies 10 miles south west from Cupar, 8 north from Kirkcaldy and 6 west of Leven, and is a police burgh and is governed by a provost, 2 bailies and 6 commissioners. It occupies an open situation on a piece of irregular rising ground, and on the highest part is seated the church. There are extensive paper mills, bleachfields and a woollen manufactory. The districts round abound in coal. In the village there are branches of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, and of the Royal Bank of Scotland. There is a town hall. The Municipal buildings, erected in 1899, were the gift of Edward Balfour esq. of Balbirnie. The places of worship include a church of the Establishment and United Free churches. The parish is traversed by the streams of the Leven and the Orr, and the great road through the county crosses it. The North British railway is carried over the first-named river by means of a viaduct of ten arches, nearly 90 feet in height. Balgonie Castle, the property of C. B. Balfour esq. of Newton Don, but now a ruin, stands on the south bank of the Leven, in the midst of some finely-wooded grounds. About half a mile to the east is Balfour House, also the property of C. B. Balfour esq. and now (1915) vacant. Balbirnie, an elegant mansion, is the seat of Edward Balfour esq. D.L., J.P. and lies about half a mile north-west of the village. Edward Balfour esq. of Balbirnie, and Charles Barrington Balfour esq. D.L., J.P. of Balgonie and Newton Don, are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 9,694 acres; rateable value of Markinch, with Windygates, landward, £55,000; burghal, £8,347; area of burgh, 120 acres; population in 1901, 6,803 in the civil parish, including 1,499 in the burgh, and in 1911, 8,078, including 9 officials and 153 inmates in Dysart Combination Poorhouse, and 1,641 in the burgh. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 3,975.

WINDYGATES, now the head of a post district, in this parish, stands on the high road between Markinch and Leven, about 2 miles west from the latter. Contiguous to the village is the extensive distillery of the Distillers' Company Limited. Close to Windygates is Cameron Bridge, a station on the Leven and East of Fife railway.

WOODSIDE, in the parish of Markinch, is a small village about one mile and a half south-west from Markinch, its post town, and 2 from Thornton. The inhabitants are chiefly employed at the paper mills and bleachfields in the neighbourhood. Population in 1911, 369. The nearest railway station is Markinch.

MILTOWN, or Milton of Balgonie, is a village about midway between Windygates and Markinch, in the parish of Markinch, and quoad sacra parish. The nearest railway station is Markinch, a mile and a half distant. There is an Established church here. Population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 2,262.

COALTOWN, or Coalton of Balgonie, lies one mile and a half south from Markinch, its post town and parish. The Queen Victoria Memorial Hall here was erected in 1906 and is licensed for theatrical entertainments. The inhabitants are principally employed at the Balgonie colliery and bleachfields in the immediate neighbourhood. Population in 1911, 907. The nearest railway station is Markinch.

THORNTON is a village in the civil parish of Markinch, and quoad sacra parish formed from Markinch, Kirkcaldy and Dysart and Kinglassie civil parishes; it is near the south-eastern extremity of the parish, and close to the Thornton junction on the Edinburgh, Perth and Dundee section of the North British and the Leven and East of Fife railways, which have a joint station here. The Kirkcaldy and Dysart Poor Combination Poorhouse, erected in 1862, at a cost of about £6,000, and situated about half a mile from the village, is available for 155 inmates. There is a chapel of the Established church and a United Free church hall. Cattle sales are held here every Monday. Population in 1911, village, 1,870; ecclesiastical parish, 2,263.

BALCURVIE is situated on an eminence about half a mile from Windygates, its post town, in the parish of Markinch, about 3 miles east from the latter place, one mile south from Kennoway, and half a mile from Cameron Bridge, a station on the Leven and East of Fife railway. Here is a Mission hall.

AUCHMUTY and Balbirnie Mills form a village in Markinch parish.

ISLE OF MAY. This small island, only 1 mile by three-quarters in extent, is nevertheless the largest and most interesting in the Firth of Forth; at its widest part it is about one-third of a mile across, and its highest point is not more than 150 feet above the sea level; the shore is extremely rough, stretching out on the north and east into low jagged rocks, and rising on the west and south in precipitous cliffs; there are three landing places, one on the north-west, called "Altar Stones," and two on the east side, of which one, called "Kirk Haven," is a narrow inlet inclosed by rocks; the surface of the island is mostly grass, but is very uneven. On the island is a lighthouse, with a light on the dioptric or refracting principle, visible at 21 miles. The island, though included in the county of Fife, is in the civil parish of Anstruther Wester, and lies at the mouth of the Firth of Forth, 6 miles south-east of Cellardyke and the same distance south-east-by-south from Crail. Above Kirk Haven, on a slope below the lofty cliffs, overhanging the Pilgrims' Haven, are some remains of a priory once existing here, and consisting of a small and long ruinous building, known as St. Adrian's chapel, which in Oct. 1868 was repaired under the direction of the Board of Works; it is a simple rectangular structure, running north and south, internally about 32 feet in length, and is probably of the 13th century: on the west side are two small and deeply splayed windows, obtusely pointed, and portions of others; since its first erection, a circular tower, pierced with oillets, has been built on to the south-west angle of the chapel, and a low structure, with traces of vaulting, across the entire north end. There are several wells on the island, but good water has to be obtained from Crail; the inhabitants keep poultry, cows and sheep, and cultivate barley and vegetables. The population in 1911 was 16.

MILTOWN, see MARKINCH.

MONIMAIL is a parish, in the northern part of the county, and in the small debt court district of Cupar, its kirktown being 5 miles west of Cupar. It is bounded on the north by Dunbog, Creich and Moonzie, on the south by Cults and Collessie, on the east by Cupar, and on the west by Abdie; it is 5 miles from north to south by a breadth of 4. Collessie, 1 mile distant, on the Perth and Ladybank section of the North British railway, is the nearest station. The northern parts consist of a fine range of hills, the highest of which is called Mount Hill. The monument to the late Earl of Hopetoun, erected on its summit, is a plain Doric column, 92 feet in height, and within is a narrow spiral staircase giving access to the top, whence a fine view of the valley of the Eden and the Firths of Forth and Tay is obtained. The greater portion of the parish is in a high state of cultivation, the remainder being pasture and woodland. The parish church at Monimail is a handsome building, and contains nearly 600 sittings. There is also a United Free church at the Bow of Fife. Fernie Castle, a place of great antiquity, and once of considerable strength, is now the residence of William Keir Balfour esq. Melville House is the residence of Mrs. Milbank-Leslie-Melville. The Earl of Leven and Melville, William Keir Balfour esq. James Dunn esq. and Henry W. Hope esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 6,548 acres; rateable value, £8,422; population in 1911, 694.

Bow of Fife is a hamlet in the parish, 1½ miles south-east from the kirktown. Springfield is the nearest railway station, 2 miles distant.

Easter Fernie is a hamlet in the parish. Cupar is the nearest railway station, 3½ miles distant.

Letham is a village in the parish. The nearest railway station is at Collessie, 1½ miles distant.

NEWBURGH is a royal burgh and a parish on the south shore of the Firth of Tay, 33 miles north from Edinburgh, 11 south-east from Perth, 10 north-west from Cupar, and has a station on the Ladybank, Newburgh and Perth section of the North British railway. The town consists of one long street lying east and west, parallel with the course of the river, and a few streets leading towards the shore, where there are quays for shipping and a spacious harbour. The Tay up to this point is navigable for vessels of about 400 tons, and from here to Perth during spring tides for vessels of 300 tons. According to some authorities the town owes its origin to the patronage of the adjacent abbey of Lindores, founded in 1178 by David, Earl of Huntingdon, on his return from the Holy Land. In the year 1266 the town was erected into a burgh of regality, and in 1631 Charles I. granted to the place a charter, forming the community into a royal burgh. There is, however, no evidence of it ever having sent a member to the Scottish parliament. The government of the town is vested in a provost, two bailies and six councillors, with a treasurer and a town clerk, and is a police burgh. The parish, which extends 3 miles from north to south, by 1 to 2 broad, is bounded east by Abdie, south by Collessie, and west by Abernethy in Perthshire and Auchtermuchty. There are branches here of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited and the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited, and also a savings bank. The manufacture of linen goods may be considered the staple trade of the place, exclusive of which the business in corn and potatoes is considerable; and there is a large floor cloth factory; the salmon fishery and the sale of fruit are also of importance. The name of Newburgh is supposed to have been conferred upon it in contradistinction to the ancient decayed burgh of Abernethy, which lies about three miles to the west. The Town Hall stands near the centre of the town.

The Laing Institute, erected in 1895 and incorporating the Free Library, owes its origin to a bequest of Alexander Laing LL.D. of this town, who left £1,000 for the building and £400 as an endowment fund, together with his own valuable library. There are about 4,200 volumes in the lending department and 3,700 in the reference department. In the High street is a fountain, erected as a memorial to John Livingstone esq. of Edinburgh, who was the donor of the Livingstone Hall, a building in the Cupar road. The places of worship include the Established church of St. Catherine, erected in 1833, United Free and Evangelical Union churches and a Baptist chapel. There is also the Episcopal Mission Church of St. Katherine, of which the Rev. Norman Macdonald has been priest in charge since 1912. A fair is held on the third Friday in June. There are two ancient crosses within the parish, one at Mugdrum, about thirteen feet high, and the Macduff cross, now only fragmentary, but of great interest, from its having been granted to Macduff as a sanctuary for his successful aid against Macbeth. About a mile to the east are the remains of the abbey of Lindores. The unfortunate David Stewart, Duke of Rothsay, eldest son and heir of Robert III. who died at Falkland Palace, 26th March, 1402, was buried here. Several stone coffins have at different times been discovered and are still to be seen. Mrs. Amy Balfour Hay-Neave and James T. Cathcart esq. D.L., J.P. are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 1,999 acres; area of burgh, 606 acres: rateable value, landward and burghal, £9,634, and railway, £412. The population in 1911 was 1,898, viz.:—Royal burgh (part of), 1,747; landward, 151. The population of the royal burgh in 1911 was 1,977, of which 230 were in Abdie civil parish. Population of ecclesiastical parish in 1911, 1,865.

Part of the parish of Abdie has been added to the burgh.

Post, T., M. O. & Telephonic Express Delivery Office, Newburgh; Mrs. McMillan, postmistress & sub-distributor of stamps. Letters should have Fifeshire added. NEWBURN is a parish, on the north-east coast of Largo Bay, its kirktown being 2 miles north-east from Largo, 5 from Leven, and 10 south-by-west from St. Andrews. The parish, which extends 3 miles from north to south by 1½ in breadth, is in the small debt court district of St. Andrews, and is bounded north and west by Largo, east by Elie and Kilconquhar, and south by the Bay of Largo. The nearest railrailway station is at Largo on the Thornton, Anstruther and St. Andrews section of the North British railway. Here is an Established church. Three-fourths of the land is under cultivation, and the inhabitants are dependent on agriculture for employment. Col. Charles Frederick St. Clair Anstruther M.V.O., D.S.O., J.P. W Baird esq. J.P. and Andrew J. Rintoul esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 3,046 acres; rateable value, £4,824. The population in 1911 was 283. Letters through Lower Largo, Fifeshire

NEWPORT AND WORMIT

NEWPORT, a handsome village and a police burgh, in the civil parish of Forgan and quoad sacra parish formed from Forgan, stretching along the Firth of Tay, is picturesquely situated, directly opposite to Dundee, and about 2 miles north therefrom, and 3 south-west from Tayport, the ground sloping upwards to a considerable height from the river Tay. Many villas have been erected here; and the climate being salubrious and comparatively mild, it has now become a popular suburb of Dundee. The south end of the Tay Bridge is at Wormit, about a mile to the west of Newport. There is a station on the North British railway at East Newport for goods and passengers, and one at West Newport for passengers only. Newport was made a burgh in November, 1887, and is governed by a provost, two bailies and six commissioners. It possesses five churches, a public hall, erected at a cost of £4,000, and a public park. The Episcopal church is dedicated to St. Mary, and the Rev. Samuel Baggaley Hodson has been rector since 1889. Tayfield is the residence of William Berry esq. J.P. The area of the burgh is 458 acres; rateable value, £31,764. Population in 1911 was, burgh, 3,643, and ecclesiastical parish, 1,951. Population of the wards: First, 1,583; Second, 1,009; Third, 1,051.

WORMIT (now incorporated with Newport) is pleasantly and conveniently situated for Dundee business men; there is a station here on the North British line, and many villas overlooking the river have been erected since the opening of the Tay Bridge. There is an Established Church and a United Free Church. The population in 1901 was 876. In 1911 Wormit was erected into a quoad sacra parish.

PITLESSIE, see CULTS.

PITTENWEEM is a seaport, a royal, parliamentary and police burgh, and a small parish on the north shore of the Firth of Forth, extending from east to west, and has a small harbour for vessels drawing under 12 feet, and a station on the Thornton Junction, Leven and East of Fife section of the North British railway, 5 miles south-west from Crail, 11 south-east from St. Andrews, 21 north-east from Kirkcaldy and 16 south-east from Cupar; together with the two Anstruthers, Crail, Cupar, Kilrenny and St. Andrews it forms the St. Andrews parliamentary district, constituted under the "Reform Act of 1832," and returning one member. It is governed by a provost, 2 bailies and 9 councillors. The parish is bounded north and east by the Anstruthers, south by the Firth and west by St. Monance. The burgh was originally attached to a priory, some remains of which stand on a hill above the harbour and adjoining the parish church; it was created a royal burgh in 1537 by James V. whose charter was confirmed by Charles I. The town consists of three good streets, with a few bye thoroughfares, the houses generally bearing an ancient aspect. The Established church, situated near the ruins of the priory, is an ancient edifice with a turretted spire, and there is a United Free church and a Baptist chapel. The Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, built in 1805, affords 168 sittings; the rectory, net value £176, has been held since 1911 by the Rev. George Cuthbert Mawdon M.A. of Keble College, Oxford. There are branches here of the National Bank of Scotland Limited, High street, and the Clydesdale Bank Limited, in James street. From the time of its being erected into a royal burgh until 1639, it appears that Pittenweem was a place of considerable note and trade; but from that period to the year 1645 it suffered severely, no fewer than thirteen sail of large vessels belonging to this port having been either taken by the enemy or wrecked. It is now a fishing station of some importance and fish curing is carried on rather extensively, and there is also a substantial trade in potatoes and barrel staves; there are two large coopers-ages and sail-making houses. The trustees of W. Douglas Irvine esq. Sir Ralph William Anstruther bart. D.L., J.P. and William Baird esq. D.L., J.P. are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 666 acres; rateable value, landward, £ ; burghal, £6,311; area of burgh, 420 acres; the population in 1911 was, parish, 1,922; royal and parliamentary burgh, 1,888.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 412.

ST. ANDREWS

ST ANDREWS is a seaport and ancient city, a royal burgh and a university, in the parishes of St. Andrew and St. Leonard, which extends 9 miles along the shore of its bay, and is from 1 to 3 miles in breadth, and is bounded on the south by the parishes of Dunino, Cameron, Ceres and Kemback, on the east by Kingsbarns and on the west by Leuchars. The town has a station on the Thornton, Anstruther and St. Andrews section of the North British railway, which forms a junction at Leuchars with the line to the Tay bridge and the north, and is 39 miles north-east from Edinburgh, 10 east-by-north from Cupar and 10 north-west from Crail. St. Andrews was created a free (royal) burgh, by virtue of a charter conferred by David I. (1124-53), and confirmed by Malcolm IV (1153-65); the charter of the latter, together with the silver keys of the city, and the axe used for the decapitation of Sir Robert Spottiswoode and some other royalists, in 1646, are still to be seen in the Town Hall. The city is governed by a provost, a dean of guild and two bailies, twelve councillors and a treasurer. It is lighted by gas by the St. Andrews Gas Co. Limited, and by electricity by the Electric Supply Corporation Limited. The burgh unites with Cupar, the Anstruthers, Kilrenny, Pittenweem and Crail in sending one member to the Imperial Parliament. There are three principal streets: North street, which contains some fine buildings, including those of the United College of St. Salvator and St. Leonard: Market street, which runs through the middle of the town: and South street, a spacious thoroughfare lined with trees, extending from the old west port to the ruins of the ancient cathedral. From the tower of the church of St. Regulus, a structure of the early 12th century, 109 feet in height, a beautiful view is afforded of the Bell rock, the bay, the city and the surrounding country. The ruins of the once formidable castle, the frequent scene of Cardinal Beaton's cruelty to others, and of his own assassination, 29 May, 1546, lie towards the north-east and jut out into the sea. On the shore to the westward is a small eminence called the Witch Hill, where those convicted of witchcraft were tortured or put to death. Near this spot is a monumental obelisk, 30 feet in height, raised in 1842 to the memory of Patrick Hamilton, Henry Forrest, George Wishart and Walter Mill, Scottish reformers, burnt at St. Andrews 1528-1558. In Market street is a cattle trough, erected in 1878 to the memory of George John Whyte-Melville, of Mount Melville, near this city. The ruins of the Blackfriars Convent stand by the Madras college. St. Andrews at one time had an extensive foreign trade. The harbour is not large, and is very difficult of access, but is a safe anchorage, its most dangerous wind being from the north-east. The export traffic is chiefly in potatoes and grain, and the import in coals, paving stones &c. There are branches here of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the Clydesdale Bank Limited, the Royal Bank of Scotland, the Bank of Scotland, and the British Linen Bank. Golf, one of the national games of Scotland, has its stronghold in St. Andrews, the Royal and Ancient Golf Club having been established in 1754; the membership is restricted to 850; two great meetings are held annually in the spring and autumn; there are four 18-hole courses, known as the "Old course," the "New course," "Jubilee course" and "Eden course;" in addition to these are public, ladies' & children's putting greens. The principal hotels are the Grand, Rusack's Marine and the Golf, facing the sea, the Royal in South street, the Alexandra, and the Cross Keys, in Market street. The Memorial Cottage Hospital for medical and surgical cases, in Abbey Park, is supported by voluntary contributions; it contains 16 beds and two cots. The hospital in Argyle street, the gift of the late William Gibson, for aged and infirm persons belonging to the parishes of St. Andrew and St. Leonard only, was erected at a cost of £4,000, and opened in January, 1884. There are six public halls, viz.: the Town Hall, in South street; the City Hall, in Church square; the Good Templar Hall, North street; the Territorial Hall, in City road, the last-named and the Town Hall being large structures, suitable for entertainments and public meetings; the Boys' Brigade Hall, in Greenside place, and the Christian Institute Hall, in South street.

The legendary history of the see of St. Andrews ascribes its foundation to the translation hither of the relics of St. Andrew, by the hands of Regulus, a monk of Achaia, who, about A.D. 370, is said to have been miraculously guided to this spot, but its actual establishment is with much greater probability attributed to Acca, bishop of Hexham, A.D. 709-39, who settled here as a refugee from his own diocese, then ravaged by the Danes. The cathedral of St. Andrew, now a complete ruin, was connected with the ancient Culdean monastery once existing here, and with the later Augustinian priory, founded in the 12th century. It was begun in 1160, and consisted of a nave of twelve bays, transepts with eastern aisles, choir of six bays with aisles, eastern lady chapel and a central tower, 108 feet high; the total length of the church being 377 feet: the monastic building adjoined on the south side. Of the original Norman work there remains the east end of the lady chapel with its flanking turrets, the bases of some of the piers in the choir, the west and south walls of the south transept, and part of the south wall of the nave, the rest of which and what remains of the west front dating from the period 1271-9: beyond these portions scarcely anything now exists. Of the priory, nothing is left save the south wall of the chapter house, its vestibule, and some walling adjacent; the cloister garth was 132 feet square, with an alley on each side; the precincts were enclosed by the existing wall, built 1522-35, and continued along the south-east side of the town; this fine work, reared by Prior Hepburn, includes 14 round or square towers, each with an external niche, and once had a corbelled battlemented parapet. The destruction of the cathedral and the priory has been attributed to the fanatic violence of Knox and his adherents, but recent examinations of the site have suggested that its collapse was really due to the inherent weakness of its construction; in or about 1887 the plan of the cathedral was discovered by excavation, and is now marked out on the turf. The see of St. Andrews was raised to the dignity of an archbishopric in 1466, Patrick Graham, then bishop of Brechin, being appointed the first archbishop. After the Revolution of 1688 the see was abolished, but was revived in 1844, in place of the intermediate see of Fife, which existed from 1726 to 1844, and it now includes also Dunkeld and Dunblane.

The parish church of the Holy Trinity, in South street, was built in the year 1412, and in 1800 alterations were carried out which involved the destruction of the greater part of the mediæval building: in June, 1907, a complete restoration was begun, and the church was rededicated on St. Andrew's Day, 1909. The church is about 161 feet long by 54 feet across the nave: there are also transepts and a chapel. The whole of the woodwork is of oak. The pulpit, of Iona marble, alabaster and onyx, is a public memorial of the brilliant essayist and preacher "A. K. H. B.," formerly minister of the parish. The church contains a fine monument to Archbishop Sharp, erected by his son: it is of white marble, and includes a kneeling figure of the prelate, and below, in relief, is a carved representation of his assassination by the Covenanting faction, 3 May, 1679. There is also the parish church of St. Leonard, a chapel of ease to Holy Trinity, two United Free churches, Baptist and Congregational chapels and a Roman Catholic church and a Scottish Coast Mission station. The Episcopal church of St. Andrew, built in 1869, will seat 655 persons: the incumbency, net value £428, has been held since 1899 by the Rev. E. G. A. Winter M.A. of Keble College, Oxford, and D.D. of St. Andrews University. Attached are All Saints', in Castle street, and the Mission chapel, at Guard Bridge.

The Market is held on Monday, and the fairs (for hiring) on the second Tuesday in August and the first Monday after the 10th of November. Mount Melville is the residence of James Younger esq. The principal landowners are the trustees of St Andrews University and Madras College, James Younger esq. James Cheape esq. D.L. Col. C. V. A. Turnbull, Col. C. St. Clair, Major H. A. Bethune J.P. Dr. J. Watson Wemyss and Alexander L. Meldrum. The area of the parish comprises 12,370 acres; value of landward, £21,467; area of burgh, 851 acres; value, £72,253; the population of the civil parish of St. Andrews and St. Leonards in 1911 was 9,701, and out of these the royal and parliamentary burgh contained 7,581. The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was, St. Andrews, 7,552 and St. Leonards, 898; Boarhills, 292. The population of the municipal wards in 1911 was: first, 2,682; second, 2,655; third, 2,514; total, 7,851.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register for 1915 was, St. Andrews burgh, 1,248, and of the district, 3,644.

Denhead, a small village, is partly in this parish and partly in that of Cameron; for names, see Cameron. Boarhills and Guard Bridge are also small villages, distant about 4 miles from, and partly in the parish of, St. Andrews.

UNIVERSITY OF ST. ANDREWS.

This University, the oldest in Scotland, was first founded in 1410 by Bishop Wardlaw, and in 1411 obtained a charter and endowments, soon after which Benedict XIII. issued a papal bull in its favour.

The original colleges were St. Salvator's, founded in 1450; St. Leonard's, founded in 1512 and St. Mary's in 1537; of these, St. Salvator's and St. Leonard's were united into one college in 1747, by Act of Parliament, and in 1897, University College, Dundee, which had been founded in 1880, was incorporated in St. Andrews University.

The United college occupies comparatively new buildings, and has a principal, with professors of Greek, logic, natural philosophy, moral philosophy, humanity, mathematics, natural history, chemistry, anatomy, physiology, English literature, and education, besides lectures in other subjects, giving courses of instruction, qualifying for graduation. The college of St. Mary consists of a principal and professors of divinity, biblical criticism, church history and Oriental languages.

The buildings of University college are in Dundee, there, besides the teaching from chairs and lectureships in arts and science, are given courses of medical teaching, qualifying for the medical degrees of M.B., Ch.B. Students of medicine may take a complete qualifying course either solely in Dundee or partly in St. Andrews and partly in Dundee.

The University Library, which contains 160,000 volumes, was founded in 1612, and occupies a building sometime used for the sittings of the Scottish Parliament; of the old buildings of St. Salvator only the chapel and steeple remain, and of St. Leonard's only the ruins of the chapel. The insignia of the University comprises three maces of unusual design and of high antiquity and interest: the earliest of these, the mace of the Faculty of Arts, dates from 1418, and is of silver parcel gilt, and 4ft. 2½in. long; the staff is quite plain and divided into three portions by rounded knops, and a foot knop, spreading out into a wider base, and all ornamented with spiral bands; from a foliaged knop springs a hexagonal coved platform or corbel supporting the head, which is of the same form and consists of tabernacle work in three stages: the lowermost displays, within ogee crocketed arches divided by pinnacles, figures of angels, holding respectively the shields of arms of (1) Scotland; (2) Abp. Spotswood; (3) Bp. Wardlaw; (4) Earl of Mar; (5) Earl of Douglas; (6) Duke of Albany; the second stage, diminishing in size, is similar, but the niches contain figures of saints, viz., St. Michael, St. John the Baptist, the Virgin and Child, St. Andrew, St. Leonard, and a female figure, trampling under foot a dragon; in the upper and smallest stage the sides have open tracery and triangular crocketed heads. The mace of the Faculty of Canon Law (now the Theological Faculty) dating from a period antecedent to 1457, is also parcel gilt and 4ft. 1¾in. long: it is similar in design, but the knops of the shaft are more elaborate, and each stage of the head is finished with a cresting; in the lower stage the figures of the angels remain, but the shields they bore are all lost: the middle stage exhibits figures in flat chasing of (1) The Trinity; (2) The Virgin and Child; (3) The Good Shepherd; (4) St. Mungo; (5) St. Andrew; (6) St. Peter: the upper stage displays open tracery of varied design. The mace of the college of St. Salvator made in Paris in 1461 by Jean Mayelle, goldsmith, and presented to the college by James Kennedy, bishop of St. Andrews, 1440-65, and founder of the college, is of silver gilt, and 3ft. 9⅜in. long: it is by far the most artistic and remarkable of the three, and in point of design is probably unique: the shaft, divided into four portions by curious knops, is chased for its whole length with spiral bands, bearing the initials J K united by a tasselled cord and surmounted by a coronet, alternating with columbine flowers; the knops are hexagonal, that nearest the top displaying elaborate tabernacle work with crocketed canopies and niches: on the three principal sides are small pulpit-like projections, in which are figures of angels holding talents: the remaining sides have smaller canopied niches containing figures of monks reading: the central knop is similar, but less elaborate, and has no figures: the lower knop is still plainer, and has in a recess the figure of a man preaching, and in embattled projections above, three figures kneeling, with their faces towards the staff, which terminates below in an elegant expanding foliaged ornament, on which are figures of four lions passant, with their heads downwards: the head of the mace is an elaborately designed open shrine, resting on a base adorned with couchant lions and moulded pendants: within the shrine is an image of the Saviour with hands upraised, and on either side are open projections, terminating outwards in crenellated turrets, and enshrining figures of kneeling angels holding symbols of the Passion: below, on three sides, are figures of a king, a bishop and a mendicant: the other three sides have recesses containing grotesque figures holding shields, with the arms of the see, Bishop Kennedy, and one with an orb: the summit of the head consists of highly enriched double canopies, with crocketing and finials: the whole design is manifestly symbolical.

MADRAS COLLEGE.

Madras College is on the south side of South street, immediately behind and comprehending within it part of the ruins of the Black Friars monastery. The College was endowed by the late Dr. Bell, the distinguished founder of several similar establishments, both in this and in other towns in Scotland. The foundation stone was laid on the 9th April, 1832. Under the plan formulated by the Endowed Schools Commissioners for Scotland, this institution is now converted into a school for secondary education.

The St. Andrews School for Girls Co. Limited has two important schools here for senior and junior pupils respectively. President of the Company, the Dowager Countess of Airlie. Chairman of the Council, Professor Thomas Purdie B.Sc., Ph.D., LL.D., F.R.S.

St. Leonard's School is intended to provide for girls an education equal to that given to boys at the great public schools. It has seven houses for boarders, each holding from 26 to 30 girls. There are also some 20 day scholars. Attached are grounds of 16 acres, including a cricket field, lawn and gravel tennis courts, hockey courts, fives courts, open and covered gardens; instruction is also given, by arrangement, in riding and driving. There is a hospice for non-infectious, and a sanatorium for infectious illnesses. The council give six scholarships, three of the value of £20 per annum, to girls who have obtained one of the higher certificates of the Oxford and Cambridge Board, and have been not less than two years in the school, and these are tenable as long as the holders remain at the school.

The Council also offer two entrance scholarships of the annual value of £60 and £40 respectively, tenable for four years and awarded at an annual examination in July.

Annually, in October, the Council give a scholarship of £30 a year, tenable for three years at any college selected by the scholar and approved by the council. Triennially, in October, Miss Dove's Classical Scholarship of £20 a year, with £15 added by the council, and tenable for three years at Girton College, Cambridge, is awarded.

There is also the "Katharine Smith" scholarship, founded by Mrs. Theophilus Smith, of the annual value of £30, and tenable for four years at St. Andrews University.

Head Mistress, Miss Bentinck Smith M.A., D.Litt.

Boarding Houses: St. Leonard's, Miss Bentinck Smith M.A.; Bishopshall East, Miss Stewart; Bishopshall West, Miss Abernethy; St. Rule East, Miss Story; St. Rule West, Miss Sanders; Abbey Park North, Miss Pearson; Day Girls, Miss Lindsay; Head of Hospice and Sanatorium for both schools, Miss Briggs, The Hospice.

St. Leonard's Junior School (St. Katharine's) is a preparatory school for St. Leonard's, and is intended for girls under 14 years of age. The buildings are situated between North street and the Scores, and include a large workshop, used by all the children, in which carpentry, book-binding and basket-making are taught. Attached are a playground and a garden, together about 2 acres. Head mistress, Miss Preston. House mistresses, Miss Preston, St. Katharine's lodge and Miss P. K. Warren-Jones, Chattan house.

There are now some 300 girls in the two schools, which are managed by a mixed council. Secretary and Treasurer, Col. W. D. Thomson, St. Leonards lodge; medical officer, J. W. Moir esq. M.D. 15 Howard place; legal adviser, J. Gordon Stuart LL.D., W.S. 56 Frederick street, Edinburgh.

ST. DAVID'S, see DALGETTY.

ST. LEONARDS, see ST. ANDREWS.

ST. MONANCE (or Abercrombie) is a parish and a burgh of barony, 2 miles west of Pittenweem, 10 south of St. Andrews and 14 south-east from Cupar, having a small harbour on the Firth of Forth and a station on the Thornton junction, Leven and East of Fife line, of the North British railway. The parish extends 2½ miles from north to south by 1½ in breadth: it is in the debt court district of Cupar, and is bounded north and north-east by Carnbee, east by Pittenweem and west by Kilconquhar. The burgh is governed by three bailies, a treasurer and twelve councillors. The principal employment of the inhabitants is fishing. The parish church stands on a hill above the village, and dates back to the 13th century: there are also a United Free church and a Congregational chapel. Newark Castle, the ruins of which stand on an eminence near the church, was at one time the seat of David Leslie, 5th son of the Hon. Sir Patrick Leslie, kt. of Pitcairlie, and commendator of Lindores; having served under Gustavus Adolphus, he was appointed a major-general in the Scottish forces, under the Earl of Leven, sent in 1644 to help the English Parliamentarians during the Civil war; in 1650, on the invasion of Scotland by Cromwell, Leslie hemmed him in at Dunbar, and, but for the interference of the clerical party, would have been the victor: he subsequently fought at Worcester, and at the Restoration was created Baron Newark, a title which became extinct on the death of the 2nd baron, 15 May, 1694. Up to 1948 this parish was known as Abercrombie or Invery, but has since been called by the name of its kirk. Sir Ralph W. Anstruther bart. and William Baird esq. are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 1,205 acres; rateable value, £6,904; the population of the parish in 1911 was 2,020.

Post, T., M. O. & Telephonic Express Delivery Office; John Ferguson, postmaster. Letters should have Fifeshire added. Deliveries, 7.30 & 9.15 a.m. & 7.45 p.m.; dispatches, 6.30 & 11 a.m. & 3.45 & 7.10 p.m. Telegraph office open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m

STRATHMIGLO is a parish in the north-western portion of the county, 2 miles south-west of Auchtermuchty, 3 north-west from Falkland and 8 north west from Kinross, with a station on the Fife and Kinross branch of the North British railway. The parish extends 4 miles from north to south by 4 in breadth, and is bounded on the north by parts of Abernethy and Arngask, west and south-west by Kinross-shire, south-east by Falkland and north-east by Auchtermuchty; it is in the small debt court district of Auchtermuchty. The burgh consists of two portions, Cashfeus and Strathmiglo, and has two principal streets, with several diverging lanes. There are Established and United Free churches. The Town house, which stands near the centre of the principal street, has a square tower, with a balustraded parapet, the whole being surmounted by a spire nearly 80 feet high. On the front of the tower is a stone sun-dial, now much defaced; and above this are the arms of the house of Burleigh. By a charter granted in 1600 the detached portions of Feus were erected into a burgh of barony, and this grant was confirmed by James VI. in 1605, but the nomination of bailies and admittance of burgesses was vested in the person of the superior. On the opposite side of the Miglo is the village of the Feus of Cash, and between the old town and this village is a level meadow called Town green, intersected by the Miglo and belonging to the burgh. The principal trade is the manufacture of linen, and there is also a large bleach works. A fair is held at Strathmiglo on the last Friday in June. Pitlour House is the residence of Capt. P. G. Moncrieff Skene J.P. Lord Ninian Edward Crichton-Stuart, Charles J. Maitland-Makgill-Crichton, esq. and Capt. George Ronald Hamilton Cheape are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 9,162 acres; rateable value, £12,853, including railway valuation; population in 1911, 1,726 in the civil parish and 1,707 in the ecclesiastical parish.

GATESIDE is a village in the parish of Strathmiglo, distant 2 miles west from the village, with a station on the Fife and Kinross section of the North British railway, and contains a United Free church and a board school.

Post, T. & M. O. & Telephonic Express Delivery Office, Strathmiglo; Miss Ann Peggie, postmistress. Letters should have Fifeshire added. Deliveries, 8.50 a.m. & 6.20 p.m.; dispatches, 6.50 a.m. & 4.15 & 7 p.m. & 10 p.m. saturdays only

TAYPORT,

WITH THE PARISH OF FERRY-PORT-ON-CRAIG.

TAYPORT, known originally as South Ferry, then successively Ferry of Scotscraig and Ferry-port-on-Craig (a name now confined to the parish in which the town is situated), is a seaport town and police burgh and was made such in the year 1887, and is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors. Many houses and villas have been erected on the slopes of the Tay, commanding a fine prospect of the opposite shore; it has become to some extent a residential suburb of Dundee, and is situated on the Firth of Tay, opposite to Broughty Ferry, at about a mile distance by water, 11 miles north-by-east from Cupar, and 5 south-east from Dundee; it has a station on the St. Andrews, Leuchars and Tayport section of the North British railway, and is connected by a branch with the Tay bridge. For facilitating the shipping of goods, the railway company have constructed a dock and a pier, which can be approached by steamers at certain times of the tides. There are two factories here for the spinning of yarns and the manufacture of linen and jute goods, also a foundry, engine works, and an extensive timber yard and works, which provide employment for many of the inhabitants. The North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited has a branch here. Mussel dredging is carried on extensively in the season. Tayport, with the parish, was originally an estate of the bishops of St. Andrews, and having in the reign of Alexander III. been feued to Sir Michael Scott, better known as "the Wizard," acquired the name of Scotscraig. The parish church was built in 1794, rebuilt in 1825, and renovated in 1882; there are also two United Free churches, an Episcopal Mission church and a Baptist meeting room.

FERRY-PORT-ON-CRAIG as a parish is from 4 to 5 miles in length and from half a mile to a mile in breadth, stretching along the south margin of the Tay to its mouth, where it empties itself into the North Sea. It was erected into a separate parish in 1606, having up to that time formed part of Leuchars; part of Tentsmuir forms the eastern portion of it, but this district is now a desolate sandy waste. The land rises to a hilly range extending westwards, and is bounded on the south by the parishes of Forgan and Leuchars, and on the north by the river Tay. The estate of Scotscraig, which comprises the whole parish, was formerly the property of Archbishop Sharp, of St. Andrews, of whose house some remains can still be traced. The present mansion house of Scotscraig, built in 1807, stands amidst fine plantations and well laid-out grounds, and is the property and residence of William Maitland-Dougall, Commander R.N., D.L., J.P. The area of the parish comprises 2,804 acres; assessable value, £17,332; area of burgh, 392 acres; rateable value, £15,272. The population of the parish in 1911 was 3,400, including 3,272 in the burgh.

TORRYBURN is a parish and village, the latter 5 miles south-west of Dunfermline, and 17 south-west from Kirkcaldy. The parish, formed by the union of the baronies of Torry and Crombie, extends for 5 miles along the Firth of Forth, and is about 1½ broad; it lies within the parliamentary division of West Fife, and in the poor combination and small debt court district of Dunfermline, and is bounded north by Saline parish, west by Perthshire, and east by Inverkeithing and Dunfermline, and has a station on the Dunfermline, Kincardine and Alloa section of the North British railway. A new school was erected in 1914, which in addition to having a large central hall for drill purposes has also rooms for the teaching of cookery, laundry, woodwork and dress making; there is also a Public Hall with a reading room and library attached. The inhabitants at one time were chiefly employed in weaving, but this branch of industry has become extinct. From the rocky state of the shore it has been found impossible to form a harbour here; but there is a pier at Crombie point, where steamers can land goods and passengers. The collieries of the Coltness Iron Co. Limited, situated at East Grange, and of the Fife Coal Co. Limited, find employment for most of the inhabitants. A fair is held at Torryburn on the second Wednesday in July. Within the boundary of the parish and adjacent to Torryburn village, is that of Low Torry. It is a very pretty village, having Torry Bay in front, with comparatively high back grounds protecting it from the north wind. Archibald Dominic Smith-Sligo esq. Miss Marindin, the trustees of the late R. George E. Wemyss esq. and John Allan Macorochie-Westwood esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 3,410 acres; rateable value in 1907, £8,460. The population in 1911 was 1,497 in the civil parish and 1,301 in the ecclesiastical parish.

TULLIALLAN is a parish, formerly included as part of Perthshire, though locally situated in Fifeshire, to which county it was transferred by a Local Government Order dated 13 December, 1890, and confirmed 23rd February, 1891; it is in the poor combination of Stirling and small debt court district of Dunfermline and contains the town of Kincardine (or Kincardine-on-Forth), and extends about 5 miles from north-to-south by 2 in breadth. It is bounded on the north and east by the parishes of Saline and Culross, and south and west by the river Forth and part of Clackmannanshire. There is an Established church here; the old church, which remains standing in the burial ground, is a ruin, the steeple, however, being perfect. Tulliallan Castle, the seat of the Hon Sir James Sivewright K.C.M.G. who is lord of the manor, is a modern mansion close to the ruins of the ancient castle. The Marquess of Lansdowne K.G., P.C. Lord Balfour of Burleigh K.T., P.C. and Mrs. Johnston of Sands, are the principal landowners. The area comprises 3,685 acres; rateable value, £9,560; the population in 1901 was 1,862 and in 1911, 2,091. Letters received through Kincardine, Fifeshire, arrive at 7.30 a.m

WEMYSS,

WITH THE VILLAGES OF EAST AND WEST WEMYSS.

WEMYSS is a parish which comprises the villages of East and West Wemyss, the Coaltown of Wemyss, Kirkland and Methilhill and the Police Burgh of Buckhaven, Methil and Innerleven, in the Kirkcaldy district. West Wemyss is a burgh of barony, governed by two bailies twelve councillors and a treasurer. The parish is bounded on the north by Kennoway and Markinch, on the south by the Firth of Forth, on the east by Scoonie and on the west by Dysart; its length is 6 miles east to west, and a mile and a half in breadth. There are four stations in this parish on the branch of the North British railway, which runs from Thornton Junction to Methill, and the Anstruther and St. Andrews line skirts the northern border of the parish; the Wemyss tramways also run through the parish between Kirkcaldy and Leven. Coal is abundant, and is extensively wrought. A large portion of the Wemyss estate consists of coal seams of various depths, and a very large quantity of coal is yet unexcavated. In West Wemyss the coal trade has considerably increased, and several pits have been opened at Muiredge, besides one between the castle and East Wemyss. Within the parish is the ancient castle of Macduff, now a ruin. This massive structure crowns a height above the shore, to the east of East Wemyss, commanding a most extensive view seaward. Near Macduff's Castle are several extensive excavations at the base of the bank, which have evidently been formed by the action of the sea at a very remote period: one of these caves is called the "King's Cave," from the tradition that James V. once joined an encampment of gipsies here. The formation of the caves themselves is a result of the extraordinary force of the sea rolling in upon the new red sandstone rocks forming this part of the Fife coast from the German Ocean. One of them, immediately under Macduff's Castle, is so narrow at the mouth that it is difficult to enter, but it expands so as easily to contain 100 persons. Another near is about fifty feet in height, with a roof formed like a cupola. A third, still larger, between East and West Wemyss, and termed the "Glass Cave," was used at the end of the 18th century for the manufacture of glass from kelp formed from the seaweed. The land generally is in an excellent state of cultivation. This place gives the title of earl to the Wemyss-Charteris-Douglas family, also Earls of March (1697), Barons Elcho, and Wemyss, of Elcho, 1628, in the peerage of Scotland, and Baron Wemyss, of the United Kingdom, 1821. There are United Free and Established churches in the village. The trustees of the late Randolph Gordon Erskine Wemyss esq. (d. 1908) are the principal landowners. The area of the parish comprises 4,814 acres; rateable value, landward, £80,072; burghal (Buckhaven and Methil), £55,144. The population in 1901 was 15,031 and in 1911, 23,104. Buckhaven, Methil and Innerleven police burgh, 15,149 (including 336 shipping), and landward, 7,955. Population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911: Wemyss, 8,920; West Wemyss, 5,662.

EAST WEMYSS is an important village in the parish of Wemyss, one mile north-east from West Wemyss, 5 north-east from Kirkcaldy, and 3 north-east from Dysart, situated on the Firth of Forth. There are Established and United Free churches. In this village there are a colliery, a linen manufactory and a brewery.

WEST WEMYSS is a village and quoad sacra parish, a mile west from East Wemyss, 4 north-east from Kirkcaldy, 5 south-west from Leven, and 2 north-east from Dysart; it is in the parish of Wemyss. The harbour is situated at its western extremity, and has several vessels belonging to it employed in the exportation of coal, which is wrought close to the harbour. A short distance east of the village, on the brink or face of an eminence, and surrounded on the land side by beautiful plantations and pleasure grounds, is Wemyss Castle, the residence of Lady Eva Erskine-Wemyss. The Established church is the only place of worship. There is also a school here. Population in 1911, 2,662.

COALTOWN OF WEMYSS and KIRKLAND are villages in the parish.

FORFARSHIRE,

OR ANGUS,

A maritime county on the east coast, is bounded on the north and north-west by Aberdeenshire, on the west and south-west by Perthshire, on the south, south-east and east by the Firth of Tay and North Sea, and on the north-east by Kincardineshire; its extent from north to south is about 38 miles, and from east to west 36, with 45 miles of coast line. The figure of this county is, perhaps, the most uniform of any in Scotland. The area is 8,737 square miles or 559,037 acres of land; of these there are about 300,000 cultivated and 260,000 uncultivated, and 3,294 of water; the portion occupied by the lakes is inconsiderable. In size Forfarshire is classed as the eleventh, and in population as the fourth of the Scottish counties. The population in 1901 was 284,082, and in 1911, county 116,413, Dundee city 165,004, total 281,417, viz.:—males, county 53,397, Dundee city 73,241, total 126,638; females, county 63,016, Dundee city 91,763, total 154,779. In 1901 the inhabited houses were 65,205; uninhabited, 4,905, and building, 401. In 1911 the inhabited houses were:—county 28,425, Dundee city 38,637, total 67,062; uninhabited, county 2,583, Dundee city 2,432, total 5,015; building, county 60, Dundee city 92, total 152.

Early History.—The district of Angus (now Forfarshire), with the contiguous county of Kincardine on the north, anciently formed the country of the "Horesti," and a portion of the Pictish kingdom. On the dissolution of that government by Kenneth II. about the end of the 9th century, he is said to have divided it between his two brothers, Angus and Mearns, from whom the two counties derived their appellation. The district gave the title of earl to two different families; on the extinction of the first, the earldom was conferred on a relation of King David Bruce, and in 1477 it merged in the family of the Douglasses; it has since devolved on the Duke of Hamilton. There are a number of old ruinous castles in this county, most of which have fallen to decay in consequence of the baronies on which they stand having passed into the hands of the proprietors of other estates. There are also remains of forts, the principal ones being at Castle-Finhaven, Dundee, Law, Monifieth, Dumbarrow and Caerbuddo.

Soil, Surface and Produce.—The great level valley of Strathmore runs through the centre of the county from east to west, and the lines of hills which flank this extensive and fine tract of country, with the Grampians on the north and some minor ranges on the south, may be said to form this district into a series of continuous ridges, generally pursuing a direction from west to east, interrupted occasionally by the different rivers and streams coursing to the sea. The eminences of greatest altitude in the shire are:—Hill of Dundee, 525 feet; Dunnichen Hill, 720; Belmont, 759; Sidlaw, 1,406; Craigowl, 1,609; Oathlaw, one of the Grampians, 2264, and Mount-Battock, 2,465 feet above the level of the sea. The portion of the Grampian mountains in this shire is diversified by many beautiful valleys, and from the summit of these elevations to the ocean on the east, and the Tay on the south, the surface of the land may be considered an inclined plane. From the aerial region of the highest Grampian an extensive and well varied prospect is presented, not only of almost the whole country adjoining the Tay and of the ocean, but of the eastern part of the peninsula of Fife, the coast of East Lothian and the heights of Lammermoor. From the mouth of the Tay to near the Westhaven the coast is sandy, having, from thence eastward, many sunken rocks. Within a mile to the east of Arbroath the shore becomes bold and rocky, presenting precipices to the sea, perforated with caverns by the incessant and insidious workings of the waves; the "Redhead," a promontory upwards of 200 feet in height, is the most striking feature of this rocky front; it forms the southern point of Lunan Bay, and exposes a beautiful beach to the ocean for nearly 3 miles. The capabilities of Forfarshire for agriculture continued for centuries in a dormant state, but it has now a practically enlightened system of farming. The farmers of this county have kept at least equal pace in the improvements adopted with those of similarly situated divisions of the country. The general drainage of the land has been proceeded with to a great and beneficial extent; and several lochs, particularly that of Rescobie, have been drawn off for the purpose of obtaining shell marl, which has long been in high repute with the agriculturists, and the introduction of bone manure has been followed by the most gratifying results. The sowing of permanent pasture grasses and turnips is persevered in, and the quantity of ground appropriated to tillage is annually increasing. Wheat and beans are also grown, but only in the more favoured localities.

The chief crops, as appears from the "Agricultural Statistics for Scotland, 1914," are oats, 48,016 acres; barley, including bere, 25,593; wheat, 10,811; rye, 983; peas, 51; total corn crops, 85,478 acres; turnips and swedes, 31,793; potatoes, 18,293; rape, 24; cabbage, 146; vetches, tares, beans, mashlum &c. 491; total green crops, 50,962 acres; small fruit, 370; hay from rye-grass and other rotation grasses and clover, 22,433 acres; pasture (not for hay), 60,689 acres. The total area of land (excluding water) is 559,037 acres, of which 172,095 are mountain and heath land used for grazing; 27,471 permanent grass, 219,930 arable land; 32,510 woods and plantations.

In traversing the lower parts of the shire, beautiful enclosures and plantations meet the eye, and excellent roads have been formed. The planting of waste lands seems to have made very little progress till about the middle of the last century; Scotch firs were the only sort of trees planted in such situations, but more recent planters introduced the larch as a valuable species of timber, and adapted, as they thought, to every variety of soil and situation; but experience has proved that by the operation of draining the moors and waste lands produce excellent oak and beech, of which a number of proprietors have planted extensively.

The polled black Angus cattle, now less common than at one time, have given place to other breeds, and many young and lean cattle are reared on the hills. The live stock comprised in 1914, 7,430 horses, used solely for agriculture and brood mares; stallions, 24; unbroken horses, 1,466; other horses, 1,267; cows in milk, 9,876; in calf, but not in milk, 748; heifers in calf, 542; other cattle, two years and above, 17,261; one year and under two, 10,063; under one year, 7,317; ewes kept for breeding, 64,559; other sheep, one year and above, 29,956; under one year, 71,348; sows kept for breeding, 1,228; other pigs, 6,237.

AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS:—Above 1 and not exceeding 5 acres, 393; above 5 and not exceeding 15 acres, 485; above 15 and not exceeding 30 acres, 215; above 30 and not exceeding 50 acres, 182; above 50 and not exceeding 75 acres, 240; above 75 acres and not exceeding 100 acres, 165; above 100 and not exceeding 150 acres, 262; above 150 and not exceeding 300 acres, 449; above 300 acres, 182; total, 2,573.

The fisheries of Forfarshire are of great importance; those of the North and South Esk and the coast of the county, are at the present time very valuable, and the mode of packing salmon in ice, for the London market, is a practice which has proved of peculiar advantage to those connected with that branch of the fishery. Haddock, cod, ling, soles, halibut, turbot &c. are also caught, and during July and August the fishermen are engaged in fishing for herring, of which large numbers are taken off the north-east coast. The fishing boats registered in the county, under Part IV. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," on December 31st, 1913, at Arbroath, were, 90 boats, 1,140 tons, 380 hands; Dundee, 113 boats, 1,227 tons, 385 hands; Montrose, 208 boats, 2,473 tons, 1,914 hands. The total value of all fish landed in Montrose district in 1914 was £76,023.

The number of sailing and steam vessels registered Dec. 31st, 1913, under Part I. of the "Merchant Shipping Act," at Dundee, was 83, of 63,067 tons, and at Montrose, 16, of 682 tonnage.

Manufactures and Minerals.—The manufactures of Forfar are of very high consequence; and as Fifeshire is celebrated for the production of the finer linen fabric, so is this county noted for the manufacture of the coarse hempen goods, wrought up from foreign materials; the spinning of yarn in large mills is carried on very extensively. Dundee, Arbroath and Montrose are its principal trading ports; the two first-named enjoy pre-eminence in the making of sailcloths, Osnaburgs, sacking, dowlases, and other linen textures; Brechin participates largely with other places in the preparation of flax; and the towns of Forfar, Montrose and Kirriemuir are seats of material manufacturing importance. Exclusive of these particular stations, the inhabitants of all the little towns and villages are industriously employed in weaving the already prepared materials into cloth, and in the process of bleaching. Besides the branches above mentioned, there are also many engineering works, breweries, tanneries, paper works, distilleries, and starch and tobacco manufactories. This county is not distinguished for its mineral treasures. The output from quarries worked, under the "Mines and Quarries General Report and Statistics" for 1913, was, brick clay, 300 tons; igneous rocks, 87,683 tons, and sandstone, 46,655 tons.

Rivers, Lochs and Railways.—The principal rivers are the North and South Esk, which rise near each other on the northern confines of the county, in the Braes of Angus; the first-named being formed by the Mark and the Lee (which latter river runs through Loch Lee), receiving the Tarf, Westwater, Cruick and Luther, and debouching into the North Sea 3 miles north of Montrose. The South Esk rises on the north-west border, and, passing south-east nearly through the centre of the county, is fed by the Norah, Lemno, Carity and Prosen, and reaches the sea at Montrose; there is a third river of some size, the Isla, which rises near the west border, and flowing south-east receives the Dean, Carleet and Glamis, and turning west, near Alyth, joins the Tay at Kinclaven. There are also two lesser rivers, the Dighty and the Lunan. The former proceeds from some small lakes in the parish of Lundie, and falls into the mouth of the Tay, east from Broughty Ferry; the latter conveys the waters of the lochs of Rescobie and Belgavies to the sea at Lunan Bay. The Lunan is famous for its eels, and the other rivers abound with different varieties of the trout and salmon. The Tay skirts the southern portion, and is the great cause of the commercial prosperity of Dundee; it rises in the western part of Perthshire, a little east of Perth city it becomes an estuary or firth, and about 8 miles below Dundee it expands into the bay of St. Andrews, in which is placed the Bell Rock light. The lakes of most consequence are Loch Lee, in the parish of its name; Loch Brandy, in the parish of Clova; the Loch of Forfar near that town, and the Loch of Lintrathen, in that parish; and of Belgavies, in the parish of Aberlemno. None of these are of great magnitude—indeed few, if any, are more than a mile in extent. The railways are confined to the southern and eastern portions of the county, where they connect the different towns with Aberdeen on the north and Edinburgh and Glasgow on the south. These lines are chiefly part of the Caledonian Railway system, the main line of which enters the county a little east of Cupar Angus, and at Alyth Junction, south of Ruthven, it sends a branch to the north-west to Alyth and one south-east-by-south to Dundee, the main line proceeding on to Forfar (from which place is a line to Kirriemuir), where also a line from Dundee, via Broughty Ferry, comes in on the south, thence to Guthrie, whence a branch goes south-east to Arbroath; the next junction is at Dubton, where the Montrose line joins, after which the Caledonian leaves the county near Craigo; the North British enters at Broughty Ferry, whence the line which belongs to the Caledonian from Dundee becomes joint property as far as Arbroath, and from thence the North British passes through Lunan Bay to Montrose, and on to Marykirk and Aberdeen.

Divisions, Representation &c.—Forfarshire comprises 58 civil parishes, and 68 complete and parts of 6 ecclesiastical parishes in the county and 20 in Dundee city. There are five royal and parliamentary burghs, namely, Dundee, Arbroath, Montrose, Brechin and Forfar; the four last-named burghs, with Bervie (in Kincardineshire), designated Montrose District of Burghs, unite in sending one member to Parliament. There are also three police burghs, Carnoustie, Kirriemuir and Monifieth. In 1913 Broughty Ferry police burgh was annexed to Dundee. Dundee, raised to the dignity of a city by royal charter, returns two members, and the county one; the county parliamentary constituency in 1915 was 13,147.

ABERLEMNO is a parish in the poor combination and small debt court district of Forfar, with a hamlet of the same name, 5 miles north-east from Forfar and 6 south-west from Brechin, the nearest railway station being at Aldbar, on the Caledonian railway, 3½ miles south, near the boundary of the parish. The parish is about 5 miles from north to south by 4 miles wide, and bounded on the north-east and east by the parish of Brechin, Guthrie on the south-east, Rescobie on the south-west, Oathlaw on the west, Tannadice on the north-west and Careston on the north. The river South Esk flows along the north boundary. The Established church here is a good building of stone, and there is also a United Free church. Turin Hill, the highest elevation in the parish, is 826 feet above sea level. In the parish churchyard is an inscribed monolith, and a little to the north of the parish church are three others. A little to the eastward of the church are the ruins of the Castle of Flemington, and about 2 miles north-east from the church are the ruins of Melgund Castle, supposed to have been erected by Cardinal Beaton. The "vitrified Fort of Finhaven" is about a mile west from the parish church. The Earl of Minto is the principal landowner. The area is 8,918 acres; rateable value, £9,391; population in 1911, 728.

AIRLIE (formerly Airly) is a parish with a kirktown, about 5 miles west from Kirriemuir, 10 miles north-west from Forfar and 5 miles north-east from Alyth, in the western part of the county, on the borders of Perthshire, and in the small debt court district of Kirriemuir; its length from north-east to south-by-west is about 6 miles, with a breadth varying from 4 to 5½ miles, and it is bounded on the north by Lintrathen and Kingoldrum, on the east by Kirriemuir and Glamis, on the south by Eassie and Meigle and on the west by Alyth and Ruthven; part of the line of boundary being formed by the river Isla and its tributaries, the Melgum and the Dean. The nearest railway stations are Eassie and Glamis, on the Perth and Forfar section of the Caledonian railway; each about 4 miles south-west and south-east respectively from Airlie kirktown. Here are Established and United Free churches. Within the parish is situated Airlie Castle, the ancient seat of the Ogilvys, Earls of Airlie, much frequented in the summer months by visitors, the public being admitted on Tuesdays and Saturdays. Of the ancient structure only the front wall and entrance tower, the arch of which still retains its portcullis, have been preserved; these are incorporated in the modern mansion, now the residence of the Dowager Countess of Airlie. Lindertis is the property and summer residence of Sir H. T. Munro bart. D.L., J.P. who is the principal landowner; the Earl of Airlie, the Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne, John Andrew Wedderburn-Ogilvy esq. J.P. Col. J. M. Clayhills Henderson and Ernest Cox esq. are also landowners. The area of the parish comprises 8,923 acres; rateable value, £8,326; population in 1911, 723.

ARBIRLOT is a parish and village, the former bounded on the east by the North Sea, north by Arbroath and St. Vigeans, west by Carmyllie and south by Panbride parishes; it is in the small debt court district of Arbroath and extends 4 miles from north to south by 3 in breadth. The village has a station on the Dundee and Arbroath Joint railway (Carmyllie branch), and another station 2 miles east of the church, called Elliot Junction. The village, which is 3 miles west of Arbroath and 14 north-east from Dundee, is on the east bank of the Elliot burn, from which the old name of the parish (Aberelliot) was derived. There are Established and United Free churches. About a quarter of a mile south-east of the village stands Kelly Castle, which originally belonged to the family of Ouchterlony, and is now held by the trustees of the late Earl of Dalhousie; it is at present (1915) unoccupied. The surface of the land is flat and along the sea coast the soil is sandy; inland it is a rich loam, capable of producing various crops. The Earl of Dalhousie is the principal landowner. The area comprises 6,748 acres; rateable value, £8,765; the population in 1911 was 840.

ARBROATH,

WITH THE JOINT PARISH OF ST. VIGEANS AND VILLAGE OF MARYWELL.

ARBROATH is a royal burgh, a seaport and the seat of a presbytery, 60 miles north-north-east from Edinburgh, 110 north-east from Glasgow, 17 north-east from Dundee, 15 south-east from Forfar and 12 south from Montrose, situated on a small plain on the coast of the North Sea, and on both sides of the river Brothock where it flows into the sea. It has a station, which is a junction for the Dundee, Arbroath and Forfar Joint railway of the Caledonian and North British lines with the Arbroath and Montrose section of the North British railway. The railway station was reconstructed at a cost of about £50,000; the work was completed in 1911. The harbour is extensive, and has been greatly improved, at a cost of more than £20,000: steamers of a fairly large size frequent the port. In the coasting trade 208 sailing and steam vessels arrived at the port in 1913 with cargoes and in ballast, of 14,539 tons, and 218 departed, of 17,077 tonnage.

The number of fishing boats registered under Part IV. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," as belonging to the port Dec. 31, 1913, was 90 of 1,140 tons, requiring 380 men and boys to work them.

At the commencement of the 18th century, Arbroath had but little trade, nothing being then directly imported except occasional cargoes of wood from Norway: flax, iron and other useful commodities being purchased from the merchants in Dundee and Montrose. About the year 1758, the manufacture of coarse linens was introduced, and the staple trade of Arbroath at the present day is the manufacture of sail cloth and other coarse linens: the preparation and spinning of the yarns of these productions of the loom is carried on extensively by many firms and individuals. Jute spinning has also been introduced, but is of small extent compared with flax spinning. In addition to the linen trade there are various concerns of magnitude, including engineering works, iron foundries, a tannery and boot and shoe manufactory, roperies &c. and a good trade exists in the exportation of grain and potatoes. There are branches here of the British Linen Bank, the Clydesdale Bank Limited, the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the Royal Bank of Scotland, the Bank of Scotland, the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited and the National Bank of Scotland Limited, and there is also a bank for savings. This town was gifted to the abbey of Aberbrothock (founded in 1178 by William the Lion), and the abbey was erected into a burgh of regality and received a charter as a royal burgh in 1599.

The existing remains of the abbey comprise the south gable of the transept, the north-west tower, about 70 feet high, portions of the chapter house, and the west door and the gate house, with its crow-stepped gable; the style is Early English and Transitional, and has some remarkable arcading in the lower stories. In 1908 H.M. Board of Works commenced making extensive repairs to the abbey, the masonry was cleaned down, jointed with special cement and otherwise strengthened; the condition of the north tower having been found to be precarious, strong iron bands fastened with bolts were clasped round it: the south tower, being in a similar state of decay, has been dealt with in the same manner. In 1909 the tower on the south-western side of the gateway were thoroughly overhauled. The work of strengthening and repairing will be continued until the whole fabric has been put in a proper state of repair. A part of the abbot's lodgings is also extant. In this house King Robert the Bruce was frequently entertained by the abbot, who was also Chancellor of Scotland. The monks first came from Kelso, and Reginald (a monk of Tyron) was first abbot. The abbey was very extensively endowed with lands and other gifts by Kings William I., Alexander II. and Robert I. and their nobility. It possessed 46 parish churches, and extensive lands in several counties, particularly in the north of Scotland, with privileges of regality &c. The abbots of this foundation had privileges which others did not enjoy—they were exempt from assisting at the yearly synods, and had the distinction of making use of and wearing the pontifical ornaments. King John conferred on the inhabitants of the place the same privileges that his subjects enjoyed throughout all England, except in his city of London.

Arbroath is governed by a provost, three bailies, a dean of guild, treasurer and 12 councillors. There is a guildry and a body of seven incorporated trades, but these are now virtually private bodies. This town unites with Montrose, Forfar, Brechin and Bervie in sending one member to the Imperial Parliament. Arbroath is the seat of a sheriff court for the district. The court sits weekly, on Wednesday, during session. Police courts are also held weekly, or oftener when necessary, and burgh and justice of peace courts are also held. The parish of Arbroath is now a joint parish with St. Vigeans for administrative purposes, by Order which took effect from the 15th July, 1895: they are in the poor combination and small debt court district of Arbroath. There are many well built streets, the principal business streets being High street, Keptie street and West port. The town has been greatly improved by paving and sewerage, and by the addition of elegantly fitted and well supplied shops, and possesses several good hotels, the principal being the White Hart. The Public Baths, in Market gate, were opened in 1915: the site was given by Alexander Balfour esq. of Inchock and the baths were built by Andrew Carnegie esq. at a cost of about £7,000. The Victoria Park, adjoining the cliff on the north-east side of the town, was opened in 1897 in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The Town House was built in 1812, and in rear of it are commodious market buildings, erected about 1855 by the magistrates and town council, at an outlay of about £7,000. A large public hall, with subsidiary rooms, in High street, was built in 1866 by an incorporated company. The poorhouse, situated in an elevated and healthy suburb of the town, was erected in 1866. A Free Public Library was opened June 4th, 1898, in the building formerly the High School, purchased by the late David Corsar esq. and by him presented to the town. Andrew Carnegie esq. contributing £1,000 towards the library. The market is held on Saturday, and the fairs on the last Saturday in January for general business and hiring servants; on the 28th May, or first Saturday thereafter, for hiring; July 18th (if it fall on a Saturday, if not, on the following Saturday) for general business and hiring; and 28th November, or first Saturday thereafter, for hiring. Two newspapers are published in the town, the "Arbroath Guide" (every Saturday) and the "Arbroath Herald" (every Friday).

Arbroath is the seat of a presbytery (No. 52), which meets on first Tuesday of February, April, May, July, September and December: it has, with the joint parish of St. Vigeans, six Established places of worship, nine United Free churches, and also Baptist, Congregational, Wesleyan Methodist, Original Secession, Roman Catholic and Catholic Apostolic chapels. The Episcopal church of St. Mary, built in 1855, will seat 568 persons. The Rev. Edward William Millar B.A. of Christ Church College, Oxford, has been rector since 1912. The parish church (with the exception of the steeple) was totally destroyed by fire in November, 1892, but was rebuilt in 1895, at a cost of £10,000, in the Early Pointed style, from designs by John James Burnet esq. A.R.S.A. of Glasgow; the former steeple, built in 1832, and 150 feet in height, remains: the east window is a memorial to John Macdonald esq. town clerk, and his wife; the carved oak pulpit was presented by the Young Men's Guild. The High school, in Keptie road, at the west end of the town, on seven acres of ground, feued from the Hospitalfield Trustees, was erected in 1895 at a cost of £12,000, and is in the Elizabethan style, from plans by Messrs. Carver and Symon, Arbroath, and includes a large mechanical workshop. Annual grants are received from the Scotch Education Department, the Morgan Trust, the Arbroath Education Trust and the Forfarshire Secondary Education Committee. Bursaries for pupils are supplied by the Morgan Trust, the Forfarshire Secondary Education Committee, the Arbroath Education Trust and the School Board. The school is in charge of a rector and a large staff of teachers, and is under the management of the School Board. The Arbroath Burgh and District Epidemic Hospital for Infectious Diseases, on the Forfar road, was begun in 1901, at an estimated cost of £10,000, from designs by Mr. Hugh Gavin, architect, of Arbroath, and opened in 1904; it contains 45 beds, and is under the joint governorship of the Arbroath Town Council and the Arbroath District members of the County Council. A new Infirmary was commenced in 1913, and it is expected it will be finished this year (1915), at an estimated cost of £14,000.

The local charities of the town include the Infirmary and Dispensary at High Common, and Epidemic Hospitals near; two destitute sick societies; and a number of mortifications, viz.: Carmichael's, founded in 1738, for seven widows of ship masters: Colvill's, founded in 1812, providing £60 annually for the education of ten poor children; £10 for Scotch Episcopal clergymen; £10 for the poor of Arbroath; the like sum to the poor of St. Vigeans, and the residue to 20 poor householders; Mrs. Renny Strachan's, of £50, yearly, for providing coals and oatmeal for distribution at Christmas amongst the most necessitous poor; Forbes's Fund, founded in 1864, from which sums of not less than £8 nor more than £10 yearly are given for the relief of destitute widows and old unmarried females in the town of Arbroath; the Gibson Fund, founded in 1868, and consisting of the annual produce of the residue of the trust estate of William Gibson, and applied as follows:—£100 was formerly paid annually to the rector of the High school for the education of eight boys, but this is now altered under the constitution of the Arbroath Educational Trust; the residue to be divided yearly in sums of not less than £20 and not more than £25 among poor householders of the town of Arbroath, preference being given to respectable worthy people of fallen fortunes; the Gibson Christmas Charity, founded in 1868, and being the annual revenue of a sum of £2,000, is applied in the purchase of coals, groceries, oatmeal and clothes for distribution among the necessitous poor of the town; the Gibson Mortification, founded in 1868, and consisting of the annual revenue of a sum of £4,000, divided yearly among 16 poor householders; the Petrie Gift, a fund supposed to amount to about £2,000, bequeathed in 1875, by Mr. William Petrie, manufacturer, to be distributed in £10 shares among "poor deserving women of respectable character, being in and belonging to, and at the time resident in the parish of St. Vigeans, and who have not been in receipt of parochial relief for the preceding five years at least;" the Duncan Charity, founded in 1869, and consisting of the annual profits of three-eights of the residue of the estates of the late David Duncan, for the behoof of poor, aged and reduced persons, not being objects of parochial relief; the Arbikie Fund, bequeathed by John Mudie, of Pitmuies, being the personal estate of his sister, the late Miss Catherine Mudie, of Arbikie, to which he had succeeded, the free revenue being divided into annuities of £40 each, among deserving persons residing in the parishes of Arbroath and St. Vigeans; Arrott's Mortification, bequeathed by the late Dr. James Arrott, of Dundee, and being a capital sum amounting to about £6,000, the free revenue of which is annually distributed in annuities of about £6 each. The George Anderson Fund was created by the late George Anderson, of Denfield, who bequeathed the residue of his estate, about £20,000, the income to be applied in assisting working men and women connected with Arbroath who have worked there for not less than 10 years, and who, through no fault of their own, are unable to maintain themselves; the scheme of administration provides that the benefits of the fund shall consist of (a) payments at the rate not exceeding 10s. a week, in each case to be made in advance, monthly or otherwise as the trust shall provide; (b) special grants to meet temporary need arising out of exceptional circumstances.

The land in the neighbourhood of Arbroath slopes gradually upwards from the shore; the surrounding country is agricultural and for the most part very fertile, the soil, though varied, being excellently adapted for all the different grain and green crops usually grown in Scotland. About a mile north-east the coast becomes very bold, rocky and perpendicular, and contains a number of caves and arches perforated by the action of the waves; these are a great attraction to visitors, having been rendered famous by Sir Walter Scott in his "Antiquary." Near the harbour a Lady Loan is a signal tower for communication with the Bell (or Inchcape) Rock, which rises from the North Sea, about 12 miles in a south-easterly direction from Arbroath. On "the rock" is a lighthouse, the first stone of which was laid in July, 1808, and the light was first shown 1st Feb. 1811: at the lighthouse there are a principal lightkeeper and three assistants: at the signal tower, on shore, each keeper has apartments for his family; the tower is about 80 feet in height and is furnished with an excellent telescope. Signals are exchanged with the persons at the lighthouse on the rock by the lightkeeper on shore daily at nine in the morning, weather permitting; communication is by steamer from Granton. The traditionary story connected with the Inchcape Rock is well known through Southey's popular ballad. Hospitalfield, the mansion of the late Patrick Allan Fraser esq. H.R.S.A. is now a school of art, and has for its object the art education of a limited number of young men who have insufficient means of their own, and who intend to make art a profession. Students who show sufficient promise are permitted to study at the college without payment for tuition, and receive board or lodging for a period not exceeding four years from the date of their admission: the building contains many art treasures, and is open to the public once a week during the months of July and August; it was the Monkbarns of the "Antiquary." The trustees of the late Patrick Allan Fraser esq. of Hospitalfield, and the representatives of George Anderson esq. of Denfield, are the principal landowners of Arbroath parish; and Mrs. McGrath, of Letham Grange, St. Vigeans, Sir Leonard Lyell bart. of Kinnordy, the Earl of Northesk, the Hon. Frederick John Bruce, of Seaton, A. R. Duncan esq. of Parkhill, F. F. Macdonald esq. of Lochlands, C. C. R. S. Carnegie esq. of Tarrie, and Sir Gilchrist Nevill Ogilvy bart. of Baldovan, are those of St. Vigeans.

The area of the burgh is 1,090 acres; rateable value, £93,557; population in 1901, 22,518, and in 1911, 20,047 in the royal and municipal burgh; the population of the wards (exclusive of shipping) in 1911 was: First (including 3 on Bell Rock Island), 6,605; Second, 6,240; Third, 7,789. The area of the united parish of Arbroath and St. Vigeans, including the burgh, is 12,763 acres; the rateable value, £21,258; railways, £2,275, with a population in 1911 of 22,730. Included in the total population were 62 inmates and 6 officials in Arbroath and St. Vigeans Poorhouse, 32 in the Industrial School and 52 in the Infirmary.

The population of the parliamentary burgh in 1911 was 20,651; the number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 3,334.

St. Vigeans is 8 miles from east to west by 4 in depth, lying north of Arbroath, with which, by an Order dated 28 May, 1895, it is incorporated for administrative purposes, and contains the villages of St. Vigeans, Auchmithie and Marywell and half the town of Arbroath; it is bounded on the north and north-east by the parish of Inverkeilor and south-west by Carmyllie, and is in the poor combination and small debt court district of Arbroath. The Arbroath railway station is in this parish. The Established church here dates from the 12th century. The name by which this place is now known is that of a famous hermit who had his chapel and hermitage at the Grange of Conan, near to which was a baronial castle, named Gory, or Gregory. From Whiting Ness, and as far as Auchmithie, the coast is very rugged and precipitous (gradually rising to Dickmontlaw Hill, 250 feet above the sea level) and contains a number of caves and arched rocks, some of which may be passed through in boats and others on foot; these form a great attraction, and are much visited. The stream of the Brothock flows through St. Vigeans and passes through the town of Arbroath, entering the sea at its harbour. The population in 1911 of the ecclesiastical parishes of Arbroath and St. Vigeans was 4,521. The following quoad sacra parishes have been formed out of the parishes of Arbroath and St. Vigeans: Abbey, population 4,900; Inverbrothock, 1,995; Ladyloan, 3,493; St. Margarets 2,960 and St. Vigeans, 1,157. Letham Grange, in the parish of St. Vigeans, the residence of Mrs. McGrath, is a large mansion in the Grecian style, situated about 3 miles north from Arbroath.

AUCHMITHIE, a quoad sacra parish formed from the civil parishes of Arbroath and St. Vigeans and a village, is situated on the shore of a small harbour for fishing boats, on the east coast, about 3½ miles north from Arbroath, in the poor combination and small debt court district of Arbroath. The harbour, towards the construction of which the Fishery Board of Edinburgh made a grant of £3,900, cost in all £5,200. The coast here consists of bold rocky cliffs. Arbroath and Letham Grangs, on the North British coast line from Arbroath to Montrose, are the nearest railway stations, and are distant 3 miles south and west respectively. A public hall was erected in 1888, and is used for entertainments and meetings. The Earl of Northesk is lord of the manor and a landowner. The population in 1911 was 364.

Post & T. (by telephone) Office; Mrs. Eliza Wilkie, sub-postmistress. Letters through Arbroath arrive 9 a.m.; dispatch, 1.15 p.m. No sunday delivery of letters. Nearest money order office is at Arbroath, 3½ miles distant AUCHTERHOUSE is a parish in the south of the county, to the south of the Sidlaw Hills, its kirk town being 7 miles north-west of Dundee: it is bounded on the north by Glamis, east and south-east by Tealing, Strathmartine and Liff, and west and south-west by Newtyle and Lundie: it is in the Dundee small debt court district, and has a station 1 mile west from the village on the Dundee and Newtyle branch of the Caledonian railway; there is also another station at Dronley, on the same branch. The Dronley burn and the road from Dundee to Meigle pass through the parish. There is an Established church, built in 1775. The Sidlaw Sanatorium, at Auchterhouse, a hospital for consumption, was opened by the Countess of Airlie in 1902, and is now under the direction of the Dundee Royal Infirmary. The soil is chiefly black land and the country hilly. The Earl of Camperdown, the Earl of Airlie, John Milne esq. T. W. Ramsay esq. J. W. Colville esq. J.P. and D. S. Cowans esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 6,185 acres; rateable value, £8,800; population in 1911, 629 civil and 615 ecclesiastical.

Post & Telegraph Office; Miss Jessie Bryson, sub-postmistress. Letters through Dundee. Delivery, 9 a.m.; dispatch, 3 p.m. No sunday delivery of letters. Newtyle is the nearest money order office, 5 miles distant
Wall Letter Box, Railway station, cleared at 12.30 & 6.30 p.m

BARNHILL, see BROUGHTY-FERRY.

BARRY is a parish and village, the former extending about 4 miles from north to south by 3½ from east to west, and situated in the south-east angle of the county, and at the mouth of the Tay, which bounds it on the south, the eastern boundary being the North Sea, and the western Monifieth; it is in the small debt court district of Dundee, and contains the village and kirktown of Barry and two-thirds of the burgh of Carnoustie, at which town and at Barry are stations on the Dundee and Arbroath Joint railway. The village is 9 miles north-east from Dundee and 8 south-west from Arbroath, and contains an Established church, a United Free church and a school. The soil is sandy and the country undulating. The Earl of Dalhousie, John Miln esq. and the trustees of Mrs. Lingard Guthrie are the principal landowners. The extensive links in this parish were acquired by the government in 1892, at a cost of £18,000, as a training ground for military purposes; its artillery range is one of the best land ranges in Britain, and the ground is otherwise very suitable for manœuvres, rifle practice and encamping, it being easy of access by rail and water. A Soldiers' Home has now been erected for the benefit of the men while in camp. At Buddonness, on the southern extremity of the parish, are two lighthouses, and close by is a lightship to guide vessels on their entrance into the Tay. The area of the parish comprises 5,286 acres: rateable value of the landward portion, £7,354; burgh, £23,697; the population in 1911 was 4,933, including 4,307 in the burgh of Carnoustie. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 1,531.

BRECHIN

BRECHIN is a royal burgh, the seat of a presbytery and of a bishopric, and the head of a poor combination and small debt court district, 11 miles north-east from Forfar and 70 north-by-east from Edinburgh, situated on the north bank of the South Esk, with a terminal station on a branch line from Bridge of Dun, of the north-eastern section of the Caledonian railway. Brechin more than once suffered by the incursions of invaders and the broils of civil wars; it was burnt by the Danes in 1012, and in 1645 was subjected to a similar calamity by the Marquis of Montrose; two years afterwards it was nearly depopulated by that dreadful scourge, the plague. Formerly the city was walled, but the walls and gates have been long removed. An interesting fragment remains of the hospital of Maison Dieu, founded by William of Brechin in 1264. Between the town and the river, and only separated from the former by a ravine, stands Brechin Castle, an ancient seat of the Maules of Panmure, now represented by the Earl of Dalhousie; it is built on a precipitous rock overhanging the stream, and in 1303 sustained a siege of 20 days from the English army under Edward I. but Sir Thomas Maule, its commander, being killed it surrendered: the south front, towards the river, incorporates some remains of the original structure, together with more recent work, including a square tower: the west front is more regular, and has round towers at the angles. This town has given birth to more men of genius and literary distinction than any place, in proportion to its size, in Scotland, among whom may be enumerated William Maitland F.R.S., F.S.A. the laborious historian of Edinburgh and London, who was born here c. 1693, and died at Montrose 16 July, 1757; John Gillies LL.D., F.R.S., F.S.A. the historian of Greece, b. 18 Jan. 1747, and d. at Clapham, 15 Feb. 1836; his brother, Lord Adam Gillies, Dr. Thomas Guthrie, b. 1800, and Colvin Smith, the eminent artist, to whom Sir Walter Scott sat on five different occasions. The antiquity of Brechin as a royal burgh is of remote date; it is governed by a provost, two bailies, a dean of guild, treasurer, hospital master and seven councillors, who are also police commissioners. The burgh joins with Forfar, Montrose, Arbroath and Inverbervie in returning one member to Parliament. A burgh or bailie court is held every Wednesday, and oftener when necessary; the magistrates are the judges; a justice of peace court is held on the first Wednesday in every month and when required, and a sheriff court on the third Tuesday of January, March, May, July, September and November; the two last-mentioned courts are for adjudicating small debt claims.

The see of Brechin was founded in 1150, by David I., who also richly endowed it, and the cathedral church of the Holy Trinity, erected in the 13th century, originally consisted of an aisleless choir of uncertain length and a clerestoried nave of five bays with narrow aisles; the transepts, removed in 1806, do not appear to have formed part of the original plan, but to have been a later addition, and were small and of no great height: the north-west tower, with its projecting embattled parapet, turret and octagonal spire, dates from about the middle of the 15th century: the height to the top of the spire is nearly 130 feet, and there are 3 bells: the choir, up to the date of the recent restoration, lay in ruins. A fragment of a Celtic tomb slab, formerly on the floor of the choir, has been removed to the interior; in 1806 the church was to a large extent rebuilt in a very debased style, and greatly injured, the aisles being widened and raised so as to destroy the clerestory, galleries carried round the whole interior, and the east and west piers much injured by the erection of stone stairs: the west end of the south aisle now abuts on a fine round tower of the 11th century, 87 feet in height, and tapering slightly towards the top, and finished with a corbelled cornice and octagonal spire; the circular-headed entrance is about 6 feet from the ground, and has over it a figure of the "Crucifixion," and on either side rude carvings of bishops: the west doorway, recessed in six orders, is of the same period as the choir; the window over it displays rich flowing Decorated tracery: the extreme length of the church, excluding the bell tower, is 94 feet; originally, with the choir, it was about 180 feet: the communion plate is of beaten silver, one cup bearing the date of 1631; there are also two pewter flagons dated 1648 and three pewter plates dated 1641. The cathedral was extensively restored in 1900, under the direction of Mr. John Honeyman R.S.A. architect, of Glasgow, at a cost of over £13,000, mostly collected by public subscription. In the course of the reconstruction traces were found of a Norman church, probably built about 100 years after the tower, and demolished to make room for the existing building. The work of restoration included the rebuilding of (1) the whole of the aisle, walls and gables, (2) the erection of a new north aisle, called the Queen's isle, (3) the rebuilding of the north porch, (4) the south transept, (5) more than half the choir, and (6) all the east gable. The windows of the choir are now filled with fine stained glass by Henry Holiday, of London. The cathedral of Brechin was one of the few places of worship in which the service of the liturgy was for some time performed after its promulgation in 1637: the bishop was a man of singularly strong and daring character, and ascended the pulpit with a pair of pistols under his gown, determined to carry the behests of royalty into execution at whatever risk. There is also an Established church for the East parish, and the Gardner memorial church, built in 1897-8, at a cost of £11,000, in memory of the late Rev. Alexander Gardner M.A. for 50 years minister of Brechin, and his son, James Alexander Gardner, advocate, of Edinburgh: £7,000 of the total cost was provided by the late Mrs. Milne, of Moorbank, Brechin; it is endowed under the terms of the will of the late Rev. A. Gardner M.A. There are also four United Free churches, a Roman Catholic church, and chapels for the Congregationalists and Plymouth Brethren. The Episcopal church of St. Andrew, built in 1811, will seat 416 persons: the rectory, net value £267, has been held since 1912 by the Rev. Kenneth L. Reid M.A. of St. Andrew's University.

The Municipal buildings, in Bank street, include a court room, council chamber &c. The Post Office is in Clerk street and Parish Council chambers in Panmure street. Flax spinning and the manufacture of linen and a paper mill employ numerous hands; there are also two distilleries. Branches of the Royal Bank of Scotland, British Linen Bank, the Clydesdale Bank Limited, the Union Bank of Scotland Limited and the National Bank of Scotland Limited are established here. A newspaper, entitled the "Brechin Advertiser," established in 1848, is published on Tuesday morning. The principal hotels are the Commercial, Dalhousie and the Crown. The Mechanics' Institution, erected at the sole cost of the late Lord Panmure, is an edifice in the Tudor style, and has an embattled parapet with pinnacles; a fine tower rises in the centre to a height of 80 feet, and commands a fine prospect: the building contains an excellent library and reading and billiard rooms. Lord Panmure also presented to the institution numerous valuable paintings, and endowed it with £1,000 to be vested at interest, which now yields about £40 a year. The Public Library, near the Railway Station, was erected with a sum of £5,000, given anonymously. The premises of the Young Men's Christian Association, in Bank street, were built at a cost of £1,500, and opened in 1878. The Almshouse, in Infirmary street, was erected in 1878, at a cost of £3,000, and is available for 100 persons; the Infirmary, close by, is a substantial-looking building of stone, erected in 1869, for 36 patients. The cemetery, approached from Panmure street, was opened in 1857 and enlarged in 1899. Trinity Muir, 1 mile north of the town, besides being the site of a fair, is resorted to by cricket and golf players during the summer. The public park, off Park road, was opened in 1887, and subsequently enlarged to commemorate the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria in 1897; in St. Ninian's square are gardens and walks well laid out. Fairs are held on the 3rd Thursday in June for cattle and horses and on the Tuesday after the 2nd Thursday in July for wool; hiring market on 1st Tuesday after 28th May and on Nov. 28th and first Tuesday in March for married ploughmen, which is called the "Carlie Market." The weekly market is held on Tuesday, and a local company conducts weekly a large sale of cattle &c. The area of the parish comprises 13,880 acres; area of burgh, 629 acres; rateable value, £56,574; population in 1911, royal, parliamentary and municipal burgh, 8,439; landward, 1,397; total 9,836. The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1901 was: Brechin parish church, 6,388; East church, 1,792; Gardner Memorial, 1,656. Included in the total population were 46 inmates and 2 officials in the Almshouses.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915 was 1,329.

BRIDGEND, see LINTRATHEN.

BROUGHTY FERRY is a town and was formerly a police burgh, but on November 3, 1913, it was annexed to Dundee municipal borough and civil parish, under which place full particulars will be found.

BUDDONNESS, see BARRY.

BULLIONFIELD, see LIFF.

CARESTON is a small parish about 2 miles by 1½, situated between the parishes of Brechin and Tannadice, 4 miles south-west of Brechin town, on the north bank of the South Esk; it is bounded on the north and north-west by Menmuir and Fern parishes respectively, and is in the poor combination and small debt court district of Brechin. There is a station in the village on the Brechin and Forfar section of the Caledonian railway. The land is composed of beautiful and well cultivated braes, sloping to the south. Here is an Established church. The castle of Careston, erected in the 13th or 14th century, and now the property and residence of William Shaw Adamson esq. J.P. was formerly one of the residences of the Earls of Crawford: above the mantelpiece in the old drawing room are the royal arms of Scotland, with an inscription. W. S. Adamson esq. J.P. is the sole landowner. The area of the parish comprises 2,117 acres: rateable value, £2,142; the population in 1911 was 213.

Post & Telegraph & Telephonic Express Delivery Office; Mrs. Andrew Gardiner, sub-postmistress. Letters received through Brechin, delivered at 11.25 a.m. & dispatched 6.30 p.m.; no sunday delivery. Brechin, 4 miles distant, is the nearest money order office

CARMYLLIE is a parish 3 miles from north to south by 5 in breadth, and bounded by parts of 7 parishes, viz.: Panbride, Monikie, Dunnichen, Kirkden, Inverkeilor, St. Vigeans and Arbirlot. The parish of Carmyllie includes the villages of Redford and Greystone, the former of which is about 4 miles south from Friockheim and about 6 west from Arbroath, having a station on the Dundee and Arbroath joint railway (Carmyllie branch), and being in the Arbroath small debt court district. The river Elliot runs through the parish, and the surface is hilly with a fairly productive soil, and near are some large quarries of paving stone. There are Established and United Free churches. Cattle sales are held in April and October. The Earl of Dalhousie D.L. William Rettie esq. and Lt.-Col. T. H. Ouchterlony are the principal landowners. The area comprises 7,553 acres; rateable value, £6,860; the population in 1911 was 847.

Post Office; Mrs. Alex. Binnie, sub-postmistress. Letters through Arbroath. Delivery, 9.30 a.m.; dispatch, 1.5 p.m.; no sunday delivery of letters. The nearest money order & telegraph office & savings bank is at Friockheim, 4½ miles distant
Post Office, Greystone; Mrs. Jas. Sturrock, sub-postmistress. Letters through Arbroath. Delivery, 10.5 a.m.; dispatch, 2 p.m.; no sunday delivery of letters. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Letham, 5 miles distant

CARNOUSTIE is a thriving town on the North Sea and a police burgh, two-thirds of which are within the parish of Barry and the remainder, known as Newton and Westhaven portions, in the parish of Panbride; it is in the small debt court district of Arbroath, from which town it lies 5 miles south, and is 10 east-by-north from Dundee, with a station on the joint line of the Caledonian and North British railways. The Bay, to the north-west of which the town stands, is large, but too open and shallow to be useful as a harbour. Carnoustie is now much resorted to as a watering-place and has good bathing and accommodation for visitors, besides golf clubs. The golf course is of 18 holes; there are also tennis courts and bowling greens. The town is governed by a provost, two bailies, and six councillors. It is well drained, and supplied with water from the reservoir at Crombie, belonging to the Dundee Water Works. There are jute works, vitriol works, an iron foundry, boot and shoe factories and vegetable preserve works. There is a newspaper published in the town, the "Carnoustie Gazette," every friday. The Union Club Limited, in Park avenue, opened 2 Jan. 1899, was erected at a cost of about £1,500. The Bank of Scotland, the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited and the National Bank of Scotland Limited have branches here, and there is also a Savings Bank. The Municipal offices in the High street were erected in 1897-8, at a cost, including furnishing, of £3,000, from designs by Mr. James P. Bruce, architect, Dundee and Carnoustie. There are Established, United Free churches and Original Secession churches: the Episcopal Church of the Holy Rood, built in 1881, will seat 274 persons, and attached to it is the Monifieth Mission. The Rev. Joseph Brewer Jobberns M.A. of Aberdeen University, has been rector since 1898. The area of the burgh is 730 acres; rateable value, £31,319, of which £23,697 is in Barry parish and £7,622 in Panbride parish; the population in 1911 was 5,358 burgh, and 3,402 ecclesiastical.

Post, T., M. O. & Telephonic Express Delivery Office (letters should be addressed Forfarshire); Charles F. Reid, postmaster. Arrivals, 6.45 & 10 a.m. & 4.10 & 7 p.m.; sundays, 12.30 to 1.30 p.m. callers only; dispatches, 7 & 10.10 a.m. & 1.15, 2, 3.20, 5, 7.30 & 8 p.m.; sundays, 9 a.m

DUN is a parish, 4 miles in extent from east to west and 3½ from north to south, and is bounded on the north by Stracathro and Logie-Pert, on the south by Maryton and Farnell, on the west by Brechin and on the east by Montrose; it lies between Montrose and Brechin, being 4 miles east of the latter place, on the north bank of the South Esk, with a station on the Caledonian railway, and is in the small debt court district of Montrose. The parish church is a plain stone building. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Rt. Hon. James Alexander Campbell (d. 1908), George Bertram McPherson Grant esq. the trustees of the late Augustus J. W. H. Kennedy-Erskine esq. and Augustus Walter Cruikshank esq. Dun House, the residence of Mrs. A. J. W. H. Kennedy-Erskine, is situated in grounds of about 1,500 acres and commands extensive views of the sea and surrounding country. The land is generally fertile. In the parish is a small lake, called Dun's Dish. Near the railway station is a bridge of three arches, erected in the year 1785-7, which crosses the South Esk river. The area comprises 4,391 acres; rateable value, £6,034 5s. 6d.; population in 1911, 498.

DUNDEE

DUNDEE is a seaport, royal burgh and parish, and since 1889 has been a city; it is second in point of commercial position and third in population in Scotland; the city lies on the north bank of the Firth of Tay, about 8 miles from the mouth of the Firth, and the parish, which is about 5 miles east to west and 3 north to south, is bounded on the south by the Tay, on the north by the united parishes of Mains and Strathmartine, on the east by Murroes and Monifieth, and on the west by the united parish of Lift, Benvie and Invergowrie, a large portion of which is incorporated with the burgh. The city is 43 miles north from Edinburgh, 66 south-south-west from Aberdeen, 29 south-west from Montrose, 22 east-by-north from Perth, 17 south-west from Arbroath and 11 south from Forfar. The Caledonian and North British railways have each stations in the city. The Caledonian railway system connects Dundee with Perth, Stirling and the west of Scotland generally, and London and the south by the West Coast lines. One branch runs northward to Newtyle, Blairgowrie and Alyth, and another branch goes direct to Forfar, the county town. The Caledonian are joint owners with the North British Company of the Dundee and Arbroath railway, which connects Dundee with Arbroath, Montrose, Aberdeen and the whole north-east of Scotland. The North British has running powers for a certain distance over the east and west lines, and has a joint right in part of both the terminal stations—one at the east and the other at the west end of Dock street; the company has also constructed the Arbroath and Montrose direct line, which increases the facilities for communication between Dundee and the south-eastern portion of Forfarshire and the south-western portion of Kincardineshire. Alongside the west station, at the end of Dock street, is the North British or Tay Bridge station. In 1870 the North British Railway Company obtained an Act of Parliament for bridging the Tay at Dundee. This bridge was designed by Sir Thomas Bouch, the company's engineer, the plans being for a single line of rails only. On the 31st May, 1878, the bridge was 10,612 feet in length, and consisted of 85 spans, some of these being over 90 feet above high water level, and the cost was said to be £350,000; but on the evening of the 28th December, 1879, during the prevalence of a gale of unusual force, while the mail train from Edinburgh was passing over it, the whole of the "high girders," extending over 13 spans, were blown into the river, together with the train, leaving a gap of 3,000 feet, and upwards of 70 persons perished: the present bridge, erected from plans by William Henry Barlow C.E., F.R.S. was approved by Parliament in May, 1881, and the structure, starting from the south side of the Firth of Tay, at Wormit, comprises 84 spans, varying in breadth from 50 to 245 feet; the first four above high water mark are continued by 23 of varying size, which take the line to the south side of the navigable channel, where they connect with the 13 great spans crossing the mid channel; of these, the southern ones vary in height above high water from 63 to 65 feet; the four main spans have a height of 77 feet clear, and those on the south 58 to 75 feet; 36 spans continue the bridge from the north side of the mid channel to Dundee shore, and seven land spans carry it into Dundee; the trains run on the lower part of the great spans, and on the upper portion of the others; the whole length is about 2 miles, and it has a double set of rails on a steel floor; the foundations are on iron caissons; the contractors were Sir William Arrol and Company, of Glasgow, and the bridge was opened for general traffic in June, 1887.

The situation of Dundee is very beautiful, the river here is 2 miles broad, from the margin of which the town spreads over a gradual acclivity, ascending towards the base of a lofty and sheltering eminence called "Dundee Law," 572 feet in height. The picturesque coast of Fifeshire forms the southern border of the Tay, and a steam ferry-boat affords hourly communication between the opposite shores of the estuary. The mansions of the principal residents are ranged on the lofty bank of the Tay, westward of the town, which commands a view of the river and the beautiful scenery on the opposite coast, including Newport and Wormit. Broughty Ferry, on the north side of the Tay, is 3 miles further down the river; these places are residential suburbs of Dundee.

History.—Dundee is a place of considerable antiquity. From a fishing hamlet it came to be a walled town, with a castle of considerable strength. During the usurpation of Edward I. the town was made the station of an English garrison; and in the course of the struggle for the Scottish crown between that prince and Robert Bruce, Dundee was twice taken and retaken. The patriot Wallace is said to have received his education at the Grammar School of Dundee. Of the castle of Dundee, not a vestige now remains. Its site was near the present Castle street, formed by blasting a portion of the rock on which it stood. The town was destroyed in the reign of Richard II., and again in that of Edward VI., but on each occasion it speedily recovered, and resumed its rank among the principal Scottish towns, being several times pledged as security for ransoms, and for the fulfilment of treaties. It was also a place of royal residence, there being a palace (known as Whitehall) to the south of the Nethergate, and a mint at the foot of the Overgate. Robert III. was the first sovereign who struck coin at the mint. Dudhope Castle, originally the seat of the Scrymgeour family, standard bearers to the Scottish kings, stands on the face of the rising ground to the north of the town, and was at his death the property of Graham of Claverhouse, Viscount Dundee; in recent times it was used as a military barracks, but the castle and grounds now form a part of the Dudhope Park. In Dundee the reformed religion found some of its earliest and warmest defenders. So zealous was the town in its cause, as to be honoured with the appellation of "the second Geneva." In 1544 George Wishart, who suffered martyrdom at St. Andrews, preached here, and on one occasion narrowly escaped assassination at the hands of one of Cardinal Beaton's emissaries; in memory of his escape the East Port or Cow-gate, where he preached, and the only portion of the old walls extant, is still kept standing. In April, 1645, the Duke of Montrose took Dundee by assault. The last calamity of this kind that befell the town was its capture and plunder a few years later by General Monk, an event which is the subject of many local traditions. A few eminent men have conferred honour on Dundee, from its being the place either of their birth, education or labour:—Hector Boece, the historian; Sir William Wallace; John Blair; Ferguson, the poet; Sir George Mackenzie, the scholar and lawyer; and in more recent days Drs. Small, Willison, Davidson and Russell; Nicoll, the poet; George Gilfillan, the critic and preacher; Bishop Forbes; Dr. Thomas Dick, the astronomer and christian philosopher; the naval victor, Admiral Duncan; and Lord Ritchie, a former Chancellor of the Exchequer. The author of the 'Song of the Shirt," Thomas Hood, also resided in the town for a short time, and some of his first efforts at versifying appeared in the columns of the "Dundee Advertiser."

Municipal.—Dundee was created a royal burgh by William the Lion in return for the attention paid to his brother, the Earl of Huntingdon, who, in returning from the Crusades, was shipwrecked near this port. The oldest charter now extant is one granted by Robert Bruce, confirming these burghal privileges. It was made a city by a royal charter granted in 1889, and its chief magistrate was advanced to the dignity of Lord Provost in 1892: in 1894 it was created a county, the lord provost being appointed lord lieutenant of the same. The municipal government of Dundee was exercised by a lord provost, six bailies, a dean of guild, a treasurer, a hospital master and kirk master, and a council, including the magistrates, of 28 members, but on March 31st, 1913, Broughty Ferry was added to the borough and the corporation now consists of seven bailies and 33 councillors.

There are 13 trade guilds, viz.: the Masons, Wrights and Slaters (known as the Three United Trades), the Bakers, Shoe Makers, Glovers, Tailors, Bonnet Makers, Fleshers, Hammermen, Weavers, Dyers and the Maltmen incorporation. Six courts are held within the town—the Burgh or Bailie Court, the Sheriff's Court, the Circuit Court, the Licensing Court, the Police Court and the Justice of Peace Small Debt Court. The city is divided into nine districts or wards. Dundee sends two representatives to Parliament. The city is lighted with gas from works the property of the city, but in March, 1893, the electric light was provided from works, erected by the Corporation, in Dudhope crescent, at a cost for buildings and fittings of £30,000: a larger electric station was erected in 1908, near the river, at a cost of over £50 000. The corporation also own the waterworks, drawing their supplies from Monikie, an artificial loch 11½ miles north-east of Dundee, and from Lintrathen, a large Highland loch, 23 miles from Dundee. In 1899 they acquired the tramway system. The Town House, also called the City Chambers, in the High street, was completed in 1734, from designs by the elder Adam, and comprises a Guild Hall, Record Chamber, Council Chamber and Town Clerk's and other offices; the front has a piazza, and from the centre of the building rises a spire 140 feet high.

Commerce and Manufactures.—Dundee is the principal seat of the linen and jute industries. When Monk captured the place in 1651, 60 vessels were found in the harbour, so richly laden as to afford a booty to the captors exceeding in value the whole of their spoils "in the wars throughout the three nations;" the plunder, however, did not enrich the captors, for the ships sank in passing the bar. For several years subsequently few vessels floated in the deserted harbour: but in 1669 37 vessels arrived in the port; in 1673, 49; in 1680, 85; by 1731 the number had considerably decreased, and the trade continued to dwindle till this once flourishing port was chiefly the resort of fishermen and smugglers. But the situation of Dundee, the commodiousness of its harbour, and the enterprise of its inhabitants, caused the tide of commerce to turn, and the town, from 1792, has continued to progress. In 1745 the port dues scarcely amounted to £1,200; but in 1792 the number of vessels belonging to the town had increased to 116, of 8,550 tons; and about the same period the foreign clearances outwards and inwards were nearly 12,000 tons, while the coasting trade was about 60,000. The Harbour revenue from all sources in 1915 was £70,147. In consequence of the augmentation of its shipping, new sea walls, quays and wharves were built, the tidal harbour was extended, wet docks and graving docks constructed, and there are good facilities for the rapid loading and discharge of vessels. In 1815 the management of the harbour was placed in the hands of 20 commissioners appointed annually under an Act of Parliament; but by an Act passed in June, 1830, the control was vested in perpetuity in trustees to be elected annually, consisting of the provost, the four senior bailies, the Dean of Guild and the Boxmaster of the Fraternity of Masters and Seamen (ex-officiis), one councillor, five merchant members of the Guildry, three members of the Nine Incorporated Trades, one member of the Three Incorporated Trades, and four landed proprietors in the county of Forfar (21 trustees in all). By an Act passed in 1869 the constitution of the trust was altered by the addition of three members from the Chamber of Commerce, three from the shipowners, three from the Harbour Ratepayers and two municipal electors, making 32 trustees in all; the provost, four senior bailies, Dean of Guild, Boxmaster of Fraternity of Masters and Seamen and the Convener of the Nine Incorporated Trades being trustees ex-officiis. In 1873 the undertaking of the Tay Ferries was vested in the trustees, and in 1875 the lighting and buoying of the river and firth of Tay was taken over from the Fraternity of Masters and Seamen. The total expenditure for maintaining the harbour and Tay Ferries to 31st May, 1915, inclusive of interest and debt and amounts credited to sinking, depreciation and reserve funds was £3,693,609 19s. The total cost of the harbour and Tay Ferries property up to the same date amounted to £1,355,122 0s. 11d. The debt due by the Dundee Harbour on 31st May, 1915, amounted to £434,828 4s. 5d.

The number of vessels that arrived at the port with cargoes and in ballast in 1913 (including Perth) from foreign countries was 434, of 429,200 tons, and in the general coasting trade 1,099, of 332,164 tonnage.

The number that departed in the foreign trade was 253, of 223,907 tons, and in the general coasting trade 1,251, of 531,678 tonnage.

The number of vessels registered as belonging to the port under Part I. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," on December 31st, 1913, was 83, of the aggregate register of 63,067 tons. The whale fishery employs several ships from this port. Steam navigation is conducted by the Dundee, Perth, and London Shipping Company, whose vessels ply to London twice a week and to Hull weekly. There is also regular steam communication with Newcastle, Liverpool, Manchester, Hamburg, Rotterdam, Belfast &c. besides several large steamers engaged in the coal trade. Direct steam communication is carried on with New York at irregular intervals. The number of fishing boats registered at Dundee on December 31st, 1913, under Part IV. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," was 113, agregate tonnage, 1,227, requiring 385 men and boys to work them. In 1913 10 vessels were built; net tonnage, 7,450. In addition two were built for foreigners, of 3,170 net tonnage.

The earliest articles produced in the town seem to have been soap and glass, which engaged a number of hands; and the brewing of ale was carried on to some extent. The glass manufacture has died out, as has also the sugar refining, which was once carried on. In 1866, however, linseed crushing was established, and has since been carried on to a moderate extent. The wholesale shoe trade, which at one time flourished in this town, has been revived, and there are two large factories, employing a considerable number of persons. The manufacture of marmalade has for many years employed a large number of hands, Dundee marmalade being famous throughout the world. Messrs. James Keiller and Son Limited and Messrs. Lindsay and Low are both large makers, and there are other firms extensively engaged in this trade. At an early period the wants of shipping led to the introduction of the manufacture of cordage, which still remains a branch of commerce, but not to such an extent as formerly.

The total quantity of the imports of flax in 1913 was 22,531 tons, value £951,577.

Jute was first brought into notice at Dundee by the late Thomas Neish esq. and was at first imported in small quantities to London and Liverpool, and thence transhipped to Dundee; but as the trade grew in importance, manufacturers imported direct from Calcutta, and the direct imports now greatly exceed those into London. Most of the jute received in Liverpool and London also finds its way to Dundee. In 1849 the imports (exclusive of coast-ways) amounted to 8,176 tons: in 1850, 8,127 tons were received. In 1904 (a poor year) 1,080,000 bales of jute, of 400 lbs. each, were imported from Calcutta, the price averaging over £14 per ton; in the year 1913 the quantity was 217,478 tons, of the value of £5,697,827, and of jute manufactures (other than cordage), £256,204.

The quantities and value of other principal articles imported in 1913 was:—Refined sugar, 330,715 cwts. £213,315; margarine, 19,522 cwts. £46,679; timber and wood, 71,827 loads, £214,694; paper making material, 18,988 tons, £79,944; oil-seed cake, 7,638 tons, £52,062; total value of all articles imported, £8,075,651.

The exports of manufactured goods from the harbour by no means represent the extent of business done in the town, the larger portion of the manufactured goods being sent by rail to Glasgow and Liverpool for export to the United States, South America, Australia &c.

The quantities and value of the principal articles of the produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom exported in 1913 was:—Jute yarn, 12,384,400 lbs. £233,258; jute piece goods, 16,027,000 yards, £287,761; line yarn, 1,392,300 lbs. £82,824; bags and sacks, 609,688 doz. £203,107; machinery, 752 tons, £38,048; new ships and boats (not registered as British), with their machinery, 460 gross tonnage, £6,280; total value of all articles, £1,059,597.

The total value of the exports of Foreign and Colonial merchandise in 1913 was £260,506.

The gross amount of Customs Revenue received at this port in 1913 was £204,210.

Originally there were only four steam spinning mills; there are now probably above 100, including spinning and weaving factories, where thread is woven into osnaburghs, sheetings, baggings, sailcloth, sacking, dowlas &c. At the commencement of the civil war in America, the trade of Dundee increased to a most extraordinary extent, fabrics of jute and linen being in great demand to take the place of cotton. The manufacture of machinery, steam engines, boilers and millwright work is in a flourishing condition and carried on extensively by several eminent firms, among whom may be mentioned Urquhart, Lindsay and Co. Limited, Blackness foundry and the Caledon Shipbuilding and Engineering Co. Limited, Lilybank foundry. Iron ship building and marine engineering are also important features in the general prosperity and industry of the city, and give employment to a large number of artisans. The Dundee Ship Building Co. Limited and the Caledon Shipbuilding and Engineering Co. Limited are the principal firms engaged in these important industries. There are also several extensive saw mills and timber yards, the principal of which belong to Messrs. Bell and Sime Limited and Messrs. Fleming and Barry Limited.

Although Dundee is not conspicuous for architectural beauty, it contains several handsome streets. In the central portion is a wide oblong area, called the High street, on the south side of which stands the Town House. Directly south of this street lie the Docks, and to the south-west the terminal stations of the North British and Caledonian railways, and northward various streets lead to Barrack Park and the high ground known as Dundee Law. The Clydesdale Bank, at the east end of High street, is also a good building. Dock street runs from the railway stations along the line of Docks, and from the west end of Dock street, Union street forms a communication with the Nethergate; it contains excellent shops; running north from the centre of Dock street, Commercial street is a splendid thoroughfare, lined on either side by elegant shops and houses, and the old and narrow thoroughfares called Murraygate and Seagate have given place to wide streets. Whitehall street, completed in 1893, runs from the Nethergate southwards: at the lower end it curves semi-circularly towards South Union street on the west, and Green market on the east. In Meadowside new premises were completed and opened in 1899 by the Scottish Provident Institution, the Pearl Life Assurance Co. and the Prudential Assurance Co. The Albert Institute, begun in 1867 and completed in 1889, is to the south-east of the High school; the western portion was erected from designs by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and the eastern and northern portions from others by Mr. Mackenzie, a local architect, and Mr. Alexander, the city architect; the cost of the entire building was about £50,000, exclusive of the site, which cost £8,000. It comprises a large hall (used as the reference library), libraries, reading room, museum, and fine picture galleries. These are free to the public, the town having 48 years ago adopted the "Free Libraries Act:" four branch libraries have been opened at Arthurstone terrace, Blackness avenue, Coldside and St. Roques respectively, the cost in each case being defrayed by Andrew Carnegie esq. Adjoining are the Victoria Art Galleries, opened by the 8th Duke of Argyll K.G., K.T., P.C. October 26th, 1889. In the grounds in front of the Albert Institute is a bronze statue, modelled by Mr. Steele, of Edinburgh, of George Kinloch, the first representative of the burgh in the first reformed Parliament; in the south-west corner of the grounds is a bronze statue of Burns, also by Steele. There is also a statue by John Hutchison R.S.A. of the late James Carmichael, the inventor of the fan blast, and opposite the principal entrance is a splendid colossal statue in bronze of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, by the late Harry Bates A.R.A. erected as a Jubilee memorial in 1887, and unveiled by H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught. A fountain, erected at considerable cost, faces the west front of the Institute. The Royal Exchange and Chamber of Commerce, Panmure street, erected in 1852 at a cost of about £10,000, is a building in the Flemish-Gothic style of the 14th century, with a fine tower. To the south of the Albert Institute stand a Club House, in the Venetian style, the United Free church, and the National Bank buildings. The Royal arch, in the centre of Dock street and spanning the north end of the Mid quay, raised to commemorate the landing near this spot of H.M. Queen Victoria, on her first visit, consists of a wide central arch, flanked by two of smaller dimensions; each front is richly sculptured, and octagonal turrets rise from the summit. The Custom House, in Dock street, is a building with a Classic portico. The Sailors' Home, opened by the 13th Earl of Dalhousie K.T. 16 December, 1881, at a cost of upwards of £12,000, is designed in the Elizabethan style, and has sleeping room for about 65 seamen; and here also are the offices of the Mercantile Marine Department. The Public Hall, in Bank street, is a building in the Italian style; the hall itself is 130 by 60 feet, and 42 feet 6 inches high, with room for about 2,500 people. The organ, provided in 1864, cost £1,500. The orchestra will hold some 280 performers, and there is a gallery for 200 persons. The Court House, in which the assizes are held, is a building in the Classic style, upon the pediment of which the Royal arms are boldly sculptured, adjoining it is the gaol. The Post Office, in Meadowside, opened in 1898, is a building of stone, in the French Renaissance style, and cost £21,366.

The Eastern Club is in Albert square: the New Club, in Commercial street, established in 1901, has about 200 members, mainly gentlemen in practice in the various professions in Dundee; the Liberal club is in Reform street, and there are several other smaller clubs.

The Corporation Public Baths and Washhouses, in Constable street, were opened in 1902.

Ecclesiastical.—The "Old Steeple," in the Nethergate, a little west of High street, is a fine solid tower, built, probably, in the early part of the 15th century; it is 156 feet high, with walls 8 feet thick, and formerly contained 2 bells, the larger recast in 1819 and the smaller bearing the date 1693: but when the "Steeple" was restored in 1872, under the superintendence of the late Sir Gilbert Scott, 6 more bells were provided, being gifts from various citizens, and the whole 8 were rehung in the bell chamber: this "Steeple" forms the tower of the town churches, of which there are three, all connected with it, and known as the "East," "South" and "Steeple" churches; the two first were destroyed by fire in 1841, but were rebuilt in a very short time, the East church being reopened on the 10th March, 1844, and the South church in 1847: the same architect, Mr. Burn, of Edinburgh, designed both churches, which are in the Decorated style: the parish church consists of a nave of five bays, with clerestory and open timber roof and side aisles divided from the nave by arcades of clustered pillars: there are galleries in the aisles and across the west end: the stained east window of three lights was erected in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria: nearly all the other windows are filled with stained glass, and there are two memorial brasses; the South church stands north and south, and has a western transept, containing a gallery. St. Clement's, or "The Steeple" church, which is the westernmost of the three, is a plain edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, erected in 1789: a gallery surrounds all three sides. These three churches are really one large building, the Steeple church being the nave, the South church the north and south transepts, and the East church the chancel, and the whole occupies the site of the original church of St. Mary. Adjoining these churches is the Town or Market Cross, moved here from High street, and consisting of a pillar surmounted by a unicorn supporting a shield.

St. Paul's United Free church and St. Enoch's Established church are in the Nethergate, and St. Mark's Established church, St. John's United Free church and the McCheyne Memorial United Free church, in the Perth road. St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral church for the diocese of Brechin, situated on the Castle Hill, was built c. 1855 and consecrated in 1865, and is an edifice in the Gothic style, from the designs of the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A. and has a tower with lofty spire, containing a peal of bells: it will seat 600 persons. In King street is a meeting-house for the Glassites—a sect founded by Mr. John Glass, who was made a freeman of Dundee by the town council in 1753. The Gilfillan Memorial Hall, in Whitehall crescent, is used for worship: it is also adapted for holding concerts and meetings.

The Episcopal church of St. Luke, Strathmartine, built in 1903, will seat 200 persons; the Rev. George John MacGillivray M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, and Edinburgh University, has been priest in charge since 1915.

For other places of worship, see pages 680 and 681.

Schools.—The High School, in Euclid crescent, was erected in 1834, at a cost of £10,000, since which extensive additions have been made to it, including a gymnasium, workshop, physical laboratory and recreation ground, and class rooms for girls have also been erected in Euclid street: the institution is largely indebted to the late ex-Bailie Harris, who gave £20,000 for the purpose of improving it: Miss Harris, his sister, has also been a great benefactor. The Harris Academy, in Park place, erected with a sum of £10,000, bequeathed for the purpose of promoting secondary education, was opened in 1885. The Morgan Academy, in the Forfar road, owes its existence to the benevolence of the late Mr. Morgan, a native of Dundee, who left the bulk of his fortune, reduced by litigation to £73,500, for its erection and maintenance. It was originally designed for 100 boys, the sons of tradesmen, mechanics and persons of the working classes generally, in Dundee, Forfar, Montrose or Arbroath, the preference being given to the boys of parents belonging to this town, but in 1889 the Endowed Schools Commission converted it into a secondary school; the building, erected at a cost of £15,000, is in the Flemish-Gothic style, from designs by Messrs. Peddie and Kinnear, architects, of Edinburgh, and is quadrangular in form, two storeys in height, with an interior open court, and a centre tower rising to a height of 120 feet. University College, in the Nethergate, was originally founded and endowed through the munificence of the late Miss Baxter, of Balgavies, and the late Dr. John Boyd Baxter, who provided a sum of £150,000 for this purpose: buildings already on the site were utilised as class rooms, laboratories, and a college hall: a large chemical laboratory was erected at a cost of about £12,877, and £69,000 was spent in purchasing and equipping the buildings, and £100,000 appropriated as a permanent endowment fund: the deed of endowment and trust directs that the college shall be for promoting the education of persons of both sexes for the study of science, literature and the fine arts: the later endowments include the John Boyd Baxter chair of natural history, the J. F. White chair of botany, the T. H. Cox chair of anatomy, the Harris chair of physics, the physiology chair, the Armitstead bursaries, the David Myles bursaries, the Smart bursary in engineering, the Laing bursary in engineering, the William Strong research scholarship, the Carnegie physics laboratory, the Peters electrical engineering laboratory, the engineering laboratory, the Fleming gymnasium, the Ellenbank and Unionmount extensions, given by Miss Symers, of St. Helens, and others, and the joint medical school by Sir W. Ogilvy Dalgleish bart. and others; there is also a large general fund for providing and equipping new buildings, and for preserving the open spaces in front, used as botanical gardens: the institution is entirely unsectarian, and has been affiliated to the ancient University of St. Andrews, and Faculties of Arts, Medicine, Science and Law have now been established: there are at present thirteen professors and a number of lecturers. St. Andrews Provincial Committee for the Training of Teachers, in connection with the University of St. Andrews, was formed in 1906. Dundee Training College, formerly the Technical Institute, is in the grounds of University College: the building is now the property of University College, and is leased to St. Andrews Provincial Committee as a training college. A new training college with a demonstration school is now (1915) in course of erection in Park place. The Dundee Technical College and School of Art, in Bell street, a building of stone, erected at a cost of about £80,000, was opened for classes in 1910; the College is used for technical and art instruction for the East of Scotland, and provides for over 2,000 students. The Dundee Orphan Institution, founded in 1815, is at Craigie terrace, overlooking the river. The Dundee Industrial Schools Society's School for girls, at Balgay, Blackness road, was erected in 1896, at a cost of £12,000, and will hold 120; the school for boys is at Baldovan, a healthy village to the north of the town. The "Mars" Training ship for Homeless and Destitute Boys is an old two-decker, moored in the Tay, at Woodhaven, and here four hundred boys are trained, chiefly with a view to their joining the merchant service or entering the Royal Navy. The Institution for the education of the deaf and dumb, established in 1846, and situated at Dudhope Bank, Lochee road, is maintained by the directors of the Dundee Institution for the Education of the Deaf and Dumb, from the interest of invested funds, and from property left by the late James Key esq.: new dormitories were added in 1906 at a cost of about £400; boot makers' and tailors' shops were added in 1910.

The Dundee District Lunatic Asylum, at West Green, in the parish of Liff and Benvie, about 4 miles west of Dundee, was erected in 1852, at a cost of £50,000, from designs by Messrs. Edward and Robertson, architects, of Dundee, and will hold upwards of 400 patients: the Directors of the Dundee Royal Asylum lease the private asylum, erected in 1899 at a cost of about £20,000, from the District Board, and this building is available for about 70 persons: the grounds in connection extend to nearly 100 acres. The Poor House, opened in November, 1856, at a cost of about £10,000, and since enlarged, will now hold 992 inmates. The Curr Night Refuge, in West Bell street, erected by money left by the late Mrs. Curr, affords a retreat for the night to homeless strangers. The Royal Infirmary, erected in 1853, near to Dudhope park, from designs by Messrs. Coe and Goodwin, of London, has two wings, a central tower, and embattled parapets; the infirmary provides for 400 in-patients; in 1895 a new operating theatre was built at a cost of £2,000; in 1895-7 two Nurses' Homes were erected at a cost of £6,000, and in 1900 two pavilions and an additional nurses' home were opened, the whole costing £7,000; in 1906 a further extension for 120 beds was made at a cost of £18,500; in 1910 a new out-patient department was opened at a cost, including alterations to the existing premises, of £4,000. The Royal Victoria Hospital for Incurables, Balgay, Blackness road, established in 1899, at a cost of £10,000, is a building of stone in the Renaissance style, from designs by the late Mr. J. Murray Robertson, and has 40 beds; the hospital has an endowment of £40,000. In 1899 Mr. Alexander Moncur, of this city, gave £10,000 to establish and equip a hospital for consumption; to this hospital a new cancer wing was added in 1907 at a cost of £5,500, defrayed by the late ex-Provost Moncur; the designs were prepared by Mr. James Findlay, architect, and the building now holds 55 patients. The St. Mary's Sisterhood and Home for Incurables, in King street, provides for 23 aged or invalid women and 10 children; seven of the beds are endowed. The Public Gymnasium, in the Ward road, opened in 1892, and designed by Bailie M'Culloch, of Dundee, is in the French Renaissance style: it is spacious and well appointed. Adjoining the old entrance to the barracks is the public bleaching green, and near this spot a time gun has been placed.

Besides the burial grounds belonging to the Corporation, the Dundee Cemetery Co. Limited, has a fine cemetery in the Perth road, covering an area of 12 acres: in this cemetery lie the remains of William Thom, known as the Inverury Poet, and the author of the "Mitherless Bairn." To the east of the Baxter Park is the Eastern Necropolis, a beautifully laid out cemetery, and to the west of the Balgay Park is the Western Necropolis.

Baxter Park, at the east end of the city, 37 acres in extent, was presented to the town in 1863 by the late Sir David Baxter bart. and endowed with funds necessary to maintain it, at a total cost of not less than £50,000; the park was beautifully laid out by the late Sir Joseph Paxton. In 1869 the Corporation acquired Balgay Hill, a wooded eminence at the west end of the town, to be used partly as a public park and partly as a cemetery for the west end of the burgh: the portion retained as a public park is 36 acres in extent, finely wooded, and from the higher parts of the ground magnificent views are obtained. The Law Hill, behind the town, 17 acres; Magdalen Green, 20 acres, close by the river at the west end of the town; Dudhope Park, 23 acres in extent, acquired by the Corporation early in 1895; Lochee Park, 25 acres; Fairmuir Park, 17 acres; Stobsmuir Park, 9 acres, and Victoria Park, 22 acres, are also laid out as public parks; the Castle is used for manual instruction classes. The "Esplanade" was formed by an arrangement with the railway companies when the Tay Bridge Works were constructed, and was later extended westward.

Newspapers.—There are two daily morning papers, the "Dundee Advertiser" and "The Dundee Courier," and one daily evening paper, "The Evening Telegraph and Post." The weekly papers are "The People's Journal," "Thomson's Weekly News," "The Saturday Post," "The Dundee Catholic Herald," "The People's Friend," "My Weekly" and "The Happy Home" (penny weekly magazine journals), and "The Red Letter," "Weekly Companion," "Weekly Welcome" and "Girls' Weekly." Immediately opposite the Kinnaird Hall stands a building, 215 feet in length, the printing establishment of the "Dundee Advertiser," "People's Journal," "Evening Telegraph and Post" and "People's Friend" and "My Weekly" &c. The new Courier buildings are in Meadowside.

The principal market days are Tuesday and Friday; and there is a cattle and sheep market held at Carolina port every Tuesday. Fairs—Stobb's fair, for cattle, sheep and horses, on the 11th July, or the first Tuesday following (o.s.); Dundee first fair, for cattle, sheep and horses, on the 26th August; if that day falls on Saturday, Sunday or Monday, then the first Tuesday after; and the second Dundee fair on the 19th September, the same rule observed as that regulating the first fair. Feeing markets for servants are held on the 28th May and on the 28th November, or on the first Friday thereafter.

In the parish, the Earl of Home K.T., V.D. David Charles Guthrie esq. the trustees of the late H. W. Scott, David Hunter and Walter Lorne Campbell esq. are the principal landowners. The area of Dundee civil parish and municipal borough is 6,548 acres: assessable value, £997,303.

The population of the royal and municipal burgh, which includes part of Mains and Strathmartine civil parish, in 1901 was 161,173, and in 1911, 165,004. The population of the municipal wards in 1911 was: First, 14,908; second, 12,823; third, 16,801; fourth, 19,955; fifth, 23,382; sixth, 18,195; seventh, 18,447; eighth, 19,376; ninth, 20,917; total, 165,004.

Included in the total population of Dundee civil parish was 153 officials, servants &c. and 311 patients in the Royal Infirmary and Maternity Hospital, 53 officials and 932 inmates of Dundee East Combination Poorhouses, 12 officials and 188 inmates of Dundee West Combination Poorhouse, 7 officials and 119 inmates of the Balgay Girls' Industrial School, 75 in H.M. ships and 278 on other ships, and 4 officials and 78 prisoners in Dundee Prison.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was:—St. Andrew, 5,076; St. Clement, 3,833; St. David, 17,005; St. Enoch, 1,529; St. John, 5,308; St. Luke, 4,360; St. Mark, 8,929; St. Mary, 30,816; St. Matthew, 7,528; St. Paul, 9,062; Chapelshade, 5,278; Clepington, 7,504; Fairmuir, 3,061; Lochee, 2,779; Logie, 6,969; Maryfield, 7,481; Rosebank, 8,553; Wallacetown, 3,504.

The population of the parliamentary burgh in 1911 was 160,146; number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915, 21,953.

LOCHEE is an important but scattered suburb, forming part of the royal burgh of Dundee, within the united parishes of Liff and Benvie, and extending one mile and a half northwest from Dundee: it contains several mills and factories for the spinning and manufacturing of flax, jute &c.; the principal of these being the Camperdown Jute, Flax and Hemp Works, belonging to Messrs. Cox Brothers Limited, covering a space of about 25 acres, and giving employment to about 5,000 persons: these works have a tower with a peal of fine-toned bells, and a clock with four dials, which are illuminated at night. There is also a furniture manufactory here. The Dundee and Newtyle branch of the Caledonian railway passes through this place, and is connected by a branch. There are two railway stations, one in Lochee and the other at Lochee West, about a mile north. In the immediate neighbourhood are several quarries of excellent freestone, which have been wrought for a long period. There are branches here of the Royal Bank of Scotland, the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited and the Dundee Savings Bank. The Free Library, in High street, opened in Dec. 1895, was erected with funds provided by the late Mr. Thomas H. Cox, of Duncarse, and comprises a library, reading room and baths. Camperdown House is the residence of the Earl of Camperdown, and Cement Park is the residence of Miss Cox. The Established church of St. Luke was the gift of Thomas H. Cox esq.; there is another Established church, two United Free churches, a Roman Catholic church and a Baptist chapel. The Episcopal church of St. Margaret, built in 1861, and rebuilt in 1888, will seat 450 persons, and attached to it is St. Columba's Mission; the Rev. Henry Burdon B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham, has been rector since 1913. The United Free Church of Scotland, erected at a cost of upwards of £6,000, is a building in the Middle Pointed Gothic style, with a tower and spire rising to a height of 130 feet, and containing 8 bells, the first erected in any church in Dundee, and presented by Messrs. Cox Brothers: the church affords 1,000 sittings. The United Free Church of Scotland, in Logie street, erected in 1895, will hold 700. Four manses have been erected for the ministers of the United Free churches and two Established churches. Lochee Park, presented by Messrs. Cox Brothers, at a cost, including endowment, of upwards of £20,000, comprises 25 acres, and has a lodge of two storeys, with a tower. The population of Lochee ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 2,770.

DOWNFIELD, formerly a village in Mains and Strathmartine parish, is now included in the city.

BROUGHTY-FERRY is a considerable modern town, annexed to Dundee Nov. 3rd, 1913, for municipal and civil purposes; it is seated on the Firth of Tay, with stations on the Dundee and Arbroath joint railway, about 4 miles east from Dundee, nearly opposite to Ferry-Port-on-Craig, or Tayport. The place takes its name from the old castle of Broughty or "Burgh Tay" (the defence of the Tay), situated on its south-eastern extremity, on a rocky eminence jutting into the water. Broughty is divided into three districts, East Ferry and West Ferry and Barnhill: East Ferry and Barnhill are in the parish of Monifieth, and West Ferry in that of Dundee. The town, which is regularly built, and has improved very considerably, is in the small debt court district of Dundee, and is governed by commissioners of police and police magistrates, under the provisions of the Police Act of 1892. It is lighted with gas and electric light from works owned by the Dundee City Commissioners, and is supplied with water from the Dundee waterworks. At one time the East Ferry comprised only a few fishermen's huts, built along the beach, but the population is now considerable, and the place is largely frequented during the summer months on account of its pleasant scenery, pure air and good bathing facilities. The pier, constructed in 1871 at a cost of about £3,800, projects into the river for about 200 feet due south, with a width of 30 feet; at the outer end of the pier is a wooden platform and slip, supported on piles, forming an angle running eastward in the direction of the North British railway pier, which gives it a semi-dock like appearance, and provides berthage for four or five small vessels: the slip is of a uniform breadth of 20 feet, running from the top of the pier down to low water, on a gentle decline; this arrangement permits vessels to lie by at low water, and allows the landing and embarking of passengers from small steamers at any state of tide. A storehouse, office and steelyard have also been added. About half a mile to the north of Broughty-Ferry is Fort-hill, or the Hill of Balgillo, on which fortifications were erected by the English in 1548, during the regency of the Earl of Arran, when they ravaged Dundee and the surrounding country; in 1550 the works on this hill, being surrendered to an allied army of Scots, Germans and French, under M. Des Thermies, were dismantled, and there are now only scattered remains. Here are four Established churches, five United Free churches, Baptist and Congregational chapels, a Roman Catholic church and three Mission halls. The Episcopal church of St. Mary, built in 1858, will seat 384 persons: the rectory, net value £360, has been held since 1913 by the Rev. Harold Thomas Joseph Waring M.A., B.D. of St. Andrews University. The East United Free church, built in 1865, is an edifice in the Gothic style. Branches of the Royal Bank of Scotland and the North of Scotland and Town and County Bank Limited, and a Savings Bank, are established here. There are two public halls. The "Broughty-Ferry Guide" newspaper (1886) is published every Friday. There are two public parks, one Reres Hill Park and the Orchar Park, both opened in 1887, and each consisting of about 6½ acres. The principal seats are Forbes Court, the residence of the Rt. Rev. Walter John Forbes Robberds D.D. Bishop of Brechin; Carbet Castle, of Miss Grimond; Balgillo, of John C. Buist esq. J.P. and Dunalestair, the property of Alexander Bruce Gilroy esq. of Castleroy, but at present unoccupied. The population of Broughty-Ferry town in 1911 was 11,058 (this now (1915) forms part of Dundee civil parish). The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was: Parish Church, 5,256; Beach Church, 1,886; St. Stephen's, 2,392.

BARNHILL, one mile east from Broughty-Ferry, in Monifieth parish, and now included in that burgh, has a station on the Dundee and Forfar direct line, and is now a favourite place of residence. Here is an Established church, and a Convalescent Home in connection with the Dundee Royal Infirmary, erected in 1876, from funds left by the late Sir David Baxter bart. and opened in March, 1877, and enlarged in 1899. There is a cemetery 8½ acres in extent.

DUNNICHEN, supposed to be derive from Dun Achen (the hill or foot of the valley), is a parish, extending 4 miles from north to south and from 2 to 4 in breadth, and containing the villages of Letham and Craichie; it is in the small debt court district of Forfar, from which town it is 4 miles distant, and is bounded on the north-west and west by Forfar parish; south-west by Inverarity, north and east by Rescobie and south-east by Kirriden. The Caledonian railway from Dundee to Forfar passes through the north-west of the parish, the nearest station being a Kingsmuir, 2 miles distant. There is an Established church at Dunnichen and a chapel of ease at Letham, where there is also a United Free church. Dunnichen House, the property of Miss Dempster, is now occupied by Edmund C. Cox esq. The greatest elevations are the hills of Dunnichen, 800 feet. The medium elevation of the parish is 360 feet above the sea level, and consists of undulations of ridges running from west to east, the greatest descent being towards Vinney Water (the only stream which runs through the parish), on the south. Sandstone and freestone abound in the parish. The land, which is nearly all arable, is tolerably fertile. Miss Dempster and John Sharp Callender Brodie esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 4,091 acres; rateable value, £6,628; population, 1911, 1,098 civil and ecclesiastical, 1,256.

Letters through Forfar arrive about 9.40 a.m. Wall Box, Craichie, cleared at 1.10 a.m. Letham, 1¼ miles distant, is the nearest money order & telegraph office

EAST HAVEN, see PANBRIDE.

EDZELL is a parish and village on the north-east border of the county, with a terminal station on a branch line from Brechin, of the Caledonian railway. The parish is bounded east and north by Kincardine, north-west by the parish of Lochlee, west by Lethnot and south-west by Strathmore; it is in the poor combination and mill debt court district of Brechin, and extends 12 miles from south-east to north-west by 6 in breadth. The North Esk flows in a south east course through the entire length and the West Water along its lower border. The village is lighted with gas. The southern spurs of the Grampians occupy the upper part of the parish, which is an agricultural district with a fertile soil. There are Established and United Free churches. The Inglis Memorial Hall, presented to the village by Col. R. W. Inglis, and opened July 22nd, 1898, is an edifice of stone, with a tower containing a clock and chimes; the building includes a large hall, seating about 500 persons, and a smaller hall for about 100; there is a good library of 1,000 volumes, and as an institution, the hall has an annual endowment of £120. The ruins of the Castle of Edzell, once the seat of the Lindsays of Glen Esk, form a prominent object. The Earl of Dalhousie D.L. is the principal landowner. The area comprises 18,967 acres; rateable value, £8,741; the population in 1911 was 878 in the civil and 920 in the ecclesiastical parish, of which 42 were in Kincardineshire.

FERN is a parish in the small debt court district of Brechin, 8 miles west from that town, and bounded on the north and north-east by the parish of Lethnot and Navar, east by Menmuir, south by the Water of Noran and west by Tannadice; its length from north to south is 8 miles, and its breadth 3 miles. The Cruick water, rising in the hills in the north, runs through the centre of the parish. The nearest railway station is at Tannadice, on the Forfar and Brechin section of the Caledonian line. The surface is a rolling country, well cultivated and wooded. Here is an Established church. The free library, containing 2,000 volumes, was presented to the parish by the late F. C. Fletcher esq. in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The Noranside Sanatorium, established in 1913, occupies a well sheltered position among old woodlands. The ruins of the once powerful Castle of Vayne stand on the Noran water. The area comprises 8,797 acres; rateable value, £4,591 15s. 7d.; population in 1911, 308

FORFAR

FORFAR is a royal burgh, parish, seat of a presbytery and head of a poor law combination, a small debt court district and a registration district; it is 57 miles north from Edinburgh, 15 north-west from Arbroath, 15 north-by-east from Dundee and 11 south-west from Brechin, and has a station on the Caledonian railway, whose lines from Newtyle, Brechin, Broughty Ferry and Arbroath (the latter being a joint line with the North British) meet here, and there are two other stations in the parish, Kingsmuir and Clocksbriggs. The town is supplied with gas from works in North street, the property of the Corporation. Water was introduced from the Den of Ogil in 1881. The burgh, united with Montrose, Brechin, Inverbervie and Arbroath, forms the Montrose parliamentary district, constituted by the "Reform Act of 1832," and returning one member. The original charters which constituted Forfar a royal burgh are lost, but the privileges were confirmed in 1669, in virtue of which the burgh is governed by a provost, three bailies and ten councillors, a third of whom are elected annually. The revenue of the burgh, arising from lands, customs &c. may be averaged at about £2,700 yearly. A sheriff's court is held for the trial of civil and criminal cases generally; and a police court for the determination of local, civil and police affairs. The date of the erection of Forfar Castle, which stood upon an eminence to the north of the town, cannot be certified, but it is said to have been the place of meeting of the first Parliament, convened by King Malcolm Ceanmor, 1056-93, and his occasional seat of residence after the recovery of his throne from Macbeth. The magistrates of the burgh some years since removed the market cross from the street to the site of the old castle, to mark the spot where that monarch sojourned, as but few remains of the edifice are now extant. In the old churchyard lie the remains of George Don, a Scottish botanist, who died in 1856. Dr. John Jamieson, the compiler in 1809-10 of an "Etymological Dictionary of the Scottish Language," was minister of the Anti-Burgher congregation of this place from 1780 to 1797, when he left for Edinburgh, where he died 12 July, 1838. About 1 mile east are the remains of Restenneth Priory, which stood near Clocksbriggs. On the west side of the town is a fine loch, nearly a mile in length by half a mile in breadth. Upon a small artificial island, near the north end of the loch, anciently stood a nunnery, founded by Margaret, sister of Edgar Atheling and Queen of Malcolm III. surnamed "Ceanmor." During the partial drainage of the lake, many years since, weapons and instruments, conjectured to have been used by the murderers of Malcolm II. at Glamis, were fished up: a tradition asserting that the assassins, in attempting to cross the lake on the ice, fell in and perished. The Municipal Buildings are in Castle street. The chief trade of the town consists in weaving jute and linen and bleaching; there are eight factories and two bleach works, employing over 3,000 hands. There are branches here of the Commercial Bank of Scotland Limited, the Royal Bank of Scotland, the National Bank of Scotland Limited, the Union Bank of Scotland Limited, the British Linen Bank, the Clydesdale Bank Limited and the Bank of Scotland; there is also a Savings Bank. The market is held on Saturday, for butter and grain, and cattle markets are held every Monday at the Auction Marts, two adjoining the Railway station. A fair is held on the Market Muir for horses and cattle on the second Wednesday in each month from April to November. Three weekly newspapers are published, "The Forfar Herald" and "The Forfar Review" on Friday, and "The Forfar Dispatch" on Thursday. The principal hotels are the County and Commercial, the Royal, Castle street, and Jarman's Hotel, opposite the Railway station. A Public Hall, the free gift of the late Peter Reid esq. sometime provost of Forfar, stands near the Railway station, and a fine Public Park of about 15 acres, on the south side of the town, the gift of the same donor, was laid out in 1895. In 1899 a bronze statue of the late ex-provost, Peter Reid, modelled by Mr. G. Webster, of Edinburgh, was erected in Castle street, at a cost of about £600, provided by public subscription. The Town and County Hall contains a spacious upper room for public meetings. The Meffan Institute, in West High street, opened in 1898, was given to the town by the late Miss Meffan (daughter of a former provost of the burgh), at a cost of over £5,000, and contains a public reading room, lecture hall, museum and reference room, and here also is the Free Public Library, which has about 13,000 volumes; the "Public Libraries Act, 1855," was adopted in 1870.

There are three Established churches, three United Free churches, and Congregational, Baptist and Roman Catholic chapels. The Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, built in 1881, will seat 600 persons: the rectory, net value £310, has been held since 1913 by the Rev. William Magee Tuke. In the steeple of the parish church is a very fine bell, cast in 1656 by Gerdt. Meyer, and presented to the town in the 17th century by a native named Robert Strang, who, having amassed a large fortune at Stockholm, bequeathed a large sum of money for the benefit of the poor of the town. He died in Stockholm, 21 April, 1651. This bell was perfected and augmented by William Strang and his wife, Margaret Patullo, in Stockholm, 1656. The kirk session records date from 1693 onwards and are in a good state of preservation. The Lowson Memorial church was the gift of Mrs. Steele, of Beechill, in memory of her father, ex-Provost Lowson. The church, erected from the designs of A. Marshall Mackenzie LL.D., A.R.S.A., F.R.I.B.A. of Aberdeen, is a building of stone in cruciform style, with central tower and spire. The interior consists of nave, two side aisles, north and south transepts and an apse at the east end: there are sittings for about 700. The organ is the gift of Miss Lowson, of Balgowies. The font is of stone, and is an exact duplicate of the old font of Restenneth Priory, cut out of the Burghmuirhead rock. The ceiling is of oak. There are three stained glass windows. The church, which is only partially finished, was dedicated May 14, 1914. There is also a hall seating 250, and a manse for the minister. The entire cost is estimated at about £15,000.

The Forfar County Hospital for Infectious Diseases, situated in Whitehills, provides for 30 patients.

The Public Baths, built in 1910, erected on a site given by Messrs. Don Brothers, Buist and Co. Limited, were presented to the town by Andrew Carnegie esq. at a cost of £6,000.

The Forfar Academy, now divided into higher and lower schools, commenced its instructive course in 1815, and there are seven other public schools.

There are also a Poorhouse and an Infirmary for the benefit of the town and the neighbouring portion of the county; the former contains 85 beds and the latter 25.

The Public Cemetery, formed in 1850, occupies 16½ Scotch acres on the south side of the town, and is laid out in tasteful walks, with ornamental shrubs &c. forming a pleasant promenade. On a mound at the top of the cemetery a statue was erected in 1852, by public subscription, to the Right Hon Sir Robert Peel P.C., M.P. who died 2 July, 1850. The figure stands upon a large pedestal, beneath a dome supported on eight pillars.

Lour is the property and residence of Mrs. Isabella Carnegy, who is also the principal landowner.

The parish comprises 8,430 acres, and the rateable value is £56,585, including the value of the burgh; of the total £52,378 is general heritages and £4,207 for railways. The population of the civil parish in 1911 was 12,254, including 59 inmates and 7 officials in the Poorhouse. The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1911 was: parish church, 9,263, and St. James', 2,991.

The area of the royal and parliamentary burgh is 979 acres; rateable value, £42,850. The population in 1901 was 11,397 and in 1911, 10,849; number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1915, 1,707.

FRIOCKHEIM is a village in the parish of Kirkden, and quoad sacra parish formed from Inverkeillor and Kirkden parishes, and is in the small debt court district of Arbroath, from which town it is distant 6 miles north-west, 10 south west from Montrose, and 9 east from Forfar, with a station, 1¼ miles west, on the Dundee, Arbroath and Forfar section of the joint Caledonian and North British railway; the village is laid out on a regular plan, and was founded by the late Mr. Andson, who feued it in small lots. The Established church is a building of stone, with a steeple containing a clock with two dials, presented by the late heritor, George Gordon esq. of Melbourne; there is also a United Free church, a Church hall, and Assembly hall, and a Reading Room and Library. The chief trade of the place is bleaching of yarns and turning bobbins for the Arbroath and Dundee factories; there are also some paving stone quarries. Fairs are held for hiring on 28th May or first Thursday after, and 28th November or first Thursday after. The population in 1911 was 1,061.

GLAMIS

GLAMIS (or Glammis) is a parish 5 miles from north to south by 4 broad, bounded on the south by Auchterhouse, south-east and east by Tealing, north-east by Kinnettles, north by Kirriemuir, north-west by Airlie and west by Eassie and Nevay: it is in the small debt court district of Forfar, from which town the village of Glamis is distant 6 miles south-west, the station, on the Perth and Forfar section of the Caledonian railway, being 1½ miles distant. The river Dean runs along the parish through the Glen of Strathmore. In a park of 160 acres, a little north of the village, stands Glamis Castle, the seat of the Earls of Strathmore: it is an ancient mansion clustered round a massive tower 100 feet in height, with angle turrets and a newel stair which leads to the roof; the house has a fine hall and a private chapel, with good paintings: it was a royal residence, and the scene of the death of Malcolm II. in 1034: it subsequently became the property of Macbeth, after whose death it fell to the crown: Robert II. gave it to John Lyon, his favourite, who, on marrying the king's second daughter, became the founder of the family of Lyon (now Bowes-Lyon). Earls of Strathmore, the eldest son of which bears the courtesy title of Lord Glamis: on the conviction and execution of the young and beautiful Lady Glamis for witchcraft, 17 July, 1537, the castle once more became royal property, and a residence of James V., but was afterwards restored to the family: it contains a valuable collection of pictures. Near the castle, on a pedestal, stand the figures of four lions rampant, life size, each holding a dial in the fore paws; from their heads rises a huge mass of stone, something like a pineapple in shape, with the protuberances upon it formed into dials, making in all eighty-four. In the manse garden stands a large stone obelisk, with carvings, said to mark King Malcolm's grave. Here is an Established church. The Episcopal church of St. Michael and All Angels, founded in 1688, is a private chapel, belonging to the Earl of Strathmore, and seats 65 persons: the chaplaincy is at present (1915) vacant. In the village is a Masonic Hall, which is also used for lectures and other purposes. Fairs are held on the first Wednesday in April, first Wednesday in May, first Wednesday after the 26th of May, first Saturday after the 28th of October, and first Wednesday after the 22nd of November. The Earl of Strathmore and Kinghorne is the principal landowner. The area comprises 14,267 acres; rateable value, £10,702; population in 1911, 1,159.

CHARLESTON is a small village in the parish. Charleston and Glen Ogilvie abound with very valuable stone.

GLENISLA is a parish in the north-west of the county, extending 20 miles from north to south and about 6 in breadth; it is bounded on the west and south-west by Perthshire and on the east by the parishes of Cortachy, Kirriemuir and Lintrathen. The river Isla flows down the centre of the parish, and the kirktown stands on the left bank of this river, 10½ miles north from Alyth. The parish is in the poor combination of Dundee and small debt court district of Forfar. The district is mountainous, and in the northern portion contains the large deer forest of Caenlochan, near Tulchan. About 4 miles north-west of the village are the ruins of Fortar Castle, belonging to the Ogilvies, and destroyed by Argyll in 1640. The Earl of Airlie is the principal landowner. The area comprises 41,203 acres; rateable value, £10,613; population in 1911, 501 civil and 344 ecclesiastical.

INVERBROTHOCK, see ARBROATH

INVERGOWRIE, which is now in Perthshire, will be found with the information in that County.

INVERKEILOR is a parish with a sea front of about 5 miles on Lunan Bay, and bounded north by the parishes of Lunan and Kinnell, west by Kirkden and Carmyllie and south by St. Vigeans; it runs inland for about 7 miles, and its kirktown is 5½ miles north of Arbroath; it is in the small debt court district of Arbroath, and has a station on the Arbroath and Montrose section of the North British railway. There are Established and United Free churches. The Lunan water runs through the northern part of the parish, and the Keilor burn through the south-eastern. On an eminence at the mouth of the Lunan river stands a venerable ruin, called "Red Castle," said to have been built by William the Lion, and used by him as a hunting seat. A short way to the south is the promontory of Redhead. The ridge of the coast at this point is very rocky and precipitous, being about 200 feet above the sea level. South-west of Redhead is Ethie House, the seat of the Earl of Northesk, and the residence at one time of Cardinal Beaton. About a mile from Ethie House, eastward, near the sea, stand the remains of St. Murdoch's chapel, formerly a cell of Aberbrothock. The Earl of Dalhousie, the Earl of Northesk, Mrs. Lindsay-Carnegie, David C. R. Lindsay-Carnegie esq. J.P. and Alexander Balfour esq. J.P. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 10,252 acres; rateable value, £14,550; population in 1911, 1,377 civil and 1,160 ecclesiastical.

KIRRIEMUIR

KIRRIEMUIR is a town of considerable antiquity, a burgh of barony, police burgh, and capital of its parish, 62 miles north from Edinburgh, 18 north from Dundee, 6 west-north-west from Forfar and 5 north from Glamis; with a station which is the terminus of a branch line of the Caledonian railway from Forfar. The town is situated near the foot of the braes of Angus, on the south-west side of the hill, along the northern brow of a glen, through which flows the Gairie burn. The prospect from the lower part of the town is bounded by the southern braes of the glen, but from the higher part almost the whole of the Vale of Strathmore is visible. The town council consists of a provost, two bailies and six councillors; a justice of peace court is held when required. The date of the barony of Kirriemuir is unknown, and it is only certain that the jurisdiction of its bailie once extended over a large tract of country. The Earl of Home K.T., V.D. is superior of the burgh. For a long period Kirriemuir has been the seat of considerable manufactures, comprising almost every variety of jute, giving employment to about 1,000 persons. Here are two Established and three United Free churches, and a place of worship for Original Seceders. The Episcopal church of St. Mary the Virgin built in 1905, has 250 sittings; the rectory, net value £260, has been held since 1899 by the Rev. John Anderson Philip M.A. of Aberdeen University. There are branches here of the British Linen Bank the National Bank of Scotland Limited the Union Bank of Scotland Limited and the Bank of Scotland. The principal hotels are the Ogilvy Arms and the Airlie Arms. The library belonging to the Kirriemuir Society for Reading and Recreation contains about 3,000 volumes and is open to the public. There are Public and Good Templars' Halls, a Parochial Almshouse and a public park. The endowed seminary, erected and endowed from a bequest made in 1821 by Mr. John Webster, writer and banker is now a public school. A golf club was formed in 1909, at a cost of over £1,000. Two newspapers, "The Kirriemuir Observer" and "The Kirriemuir Free Press," are published weekly on Fridays. A little to the east of the town is the cemetery, situated on the sloping side of an eminence. Three miles to the north-east, within the boundary of the parish, over the small river Carity stands the Castle of Inverquharity, formerly a stronghold of the Ogilvies, and still in a good state of preservation; 3 miles west are the ruins of Castle Balfour, erected by Cardinal Beaton. The principal seats are Kinnordy, the residence of Lord Lyell D.L., J.P.; Lindertis, the residence of Sir Hugh Thomas Munro bart. D.L., J.P. and Logie, the residence of Major-Gen. Alexander A. A. Kinloch C.B. Fairs are held on the second Wednesday after the 26th May, the 24th July or the Wednesday after, the 19th October or the Wednesday after, the second Wednesday after the 22nd November, and on the first Friday after the 28th of May and the 28th November. Lord Lyell is the principal landowner. The area of the parish is 15,000 acres; rateable value, £31,662; population in 1911, 5,391, of whom 3,776 are within the burgh and 24 in the Kirriemuir Almshouse (Poorhouse). Area of the burgh, 316 acres; rateable value, £ . The population of the ecclesiastical parish (parish church) in 1911 was 3,345, and of South Church ecclesiastical parish, 2,046.

LINTRATHEN is a parish about 11 miles in extent from south to north and 5 broad, situated in the district known as the Braes of Angus, which lies between the Grampian range and the valley of Strathmore; it is bounded by Cortachy on the north and east, Kingoldrum and Airlie on the south-east and south and Glenisla on the west, and is in the small debt court district of Kirriemuir, and contains the hamlets of Pitmudie and Bridgend of Lintrathen, the latter containing the church, and being distant 12 miles northwest from Forfar, 7 north-east from Alyth, and 7 south-west from Kirriemuir station on the Caledonian railway. The loch from which the town of Dundee is supplied with water, adjoins the village of Lintrathen at Bridgend. The streams which intersect the parish are the Melgum and the Isla, the latter dividing the parish on the west side from Glenisla, and having two beautiful waterfalls, the Reeky Linn and the Slug of Achrannie, from the former of which arose the name of Lintrathen. The Earl of Airlie is the principal landowner. The area comprises 22,402 acres; rateable value, £11,071; the population in 1911 was 569 civil and 507 ecclesiastical.

LOCHEE, see DUNDEE.

LOCHLEE is a parish on the northern border of the county and extending 9 miles from north to south by 13 in breadth, and is 12 miles from Edzell station, on the branch from Brechin of the Caledonian railway; the parish is bounded on the west and north by the county of Aberdeen, east by the parish of Edzell and south by Lethnot and Clova, and is in the poor combination and small debt court district of Brechin; it is situated among the Grampians, a mountainous district, chiefly adapted for pasture, and bordering on the counties of Kincardine and Aberdeen. Some of the hills of this district vary from 2,000 to 3,000 feet above the sea level. The soil is light, and the crops are generally remunerative. The principal streams which traverse the parish are the Lee, the Mark and the Tarf, all tributaries of the North Esk, which enters the sea near Montrose. There are Established and United Free churches. The Episcopal Church of St. Drostan, built in 1881, will seat 143 persons; the incumbency, in the gift of the vestry, net value £153, and has been held since 1914 by the Rev. Percy Massey Aldous M.A. of Selwyn College, Cambridge. Invermark is the shooting lodge of the Earl of Dalhousie, who is the sole landowner. The area comprises 58,382 acres; rateable value, £5,803; the population in 1911 was 295.

Tarfside is a village 4½ miles to south west of Invermark Lodge.

LUNAN is a small parish extending about 2½ miles from north to south, along the coast of Lunan Bay, by 2 miles in breadth; it is in the small debt court district of Arbroath, from which it is 7 miles north and 4 south from Montrose, and has a station (Lunan Bay) on the Dundee and Montrose section of the North British railway; its northern boundary is formed by the parishes of Craig and Maryton, the west by Kinnell, on the south the Lunan water, which separates it from Inverkeilor, and on the east by the North Sea. Lunan Bay has a very picturesque coast line of about 5 miles from Red Head to the northern headland, the cliffs rising direct from the shore to 100 or 150 feet. Here is an Established church. About a mile to the north of Lunan house, and standing on high ground, is a monument in the form of an obelisk 45 feet in height erected in 1850 to the memory of Brigadier James Blair (d. 12 Aug. 1847), father of the present proprietor; on a hill at the mouth of the river Lunan are the ruins of Redcastle, built, according to tradition, by William I. as a hunting seat. The Earl of Northesk, Major Hew F. Blair-Imrie, Lord Lyell, Major J. R. E. Stansfeld D.S.O. and John Tindal esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 2,857 acres; rateable value, £4,909; the population in 1911 was 312 civil and 238 ecclesiastical.

Letters are received through Montrose & Inverkeilor, by Montrose, & arrive at 7.30 & 11.30 a.m. from Montrose & 10 a.m. from Inverkeilor. The nearest post, money order & telegraph office is at Inverkeilor, 2 miles distant LUNDIE and FOWLIS are civil parishes and a joint ecclesiastical parish formed by the addition of Easter Fowlis to Lundie, in 1618, its boundaries being Liff and Benvie on the south-east, Auchterhouse on the north-east, Newtyle on the north and Kettins on the west; they are in the poor combination of Dundee and small debt court district of Forfar. Lundie is distant 9 miles north-west from Dundee. The nearest station is at Dronley, on the Dundee and Newtyle section of the Caledonian railway. There are two churches and both have been restored. In 1898 a stained window, designed by the late Sir E. Burne-Jones bart. was placed in the church of Lundie. In the churchyard lie the remains of Admiral Viscount Duncan, d. 4 August, 1804. The church of Fowlis was originally a Collegiate church, founded in 1149 by Sir Andrew Gray for a provost and prebendaries, and also contains a stained window erected in memory of John 16th Lord Gray, d. 31 Jan. 1867. The Earl of Camperdown and W. D. Graham Menzies esq. are the only landowners of Lundie: Sir Patrick Keith Murray bart. is the exclusive owner of Fowlis Easter. The area of Lundie is 4,185 acres; rateable value about £3,250; the population in 1911 was 256. The area of Fowlis Easter 2,823 acres; rateable value about £1,550; the population in 1911 was 249. The population of Lundie and Fowlis ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 505.

MAINS and STRATHMARTINE form a joint parish, with stations at Baldovan and Baldragon, on the Dundee and Newtyle section of the Caledonian railway, 3 miles north of Dundee; the parish is intersected by the river Dighty, and extends 3 miles from north to south by 5½ from west to east; it is bounded by the parishes of Dundee on the south, Murroes on the east, Tealing on the north and Liff and Auchterhouse on the west, and is in the Dundee small debt court district. In 1907 part of the landward portion of the parish was added to the city of Dundee. There are in the parish three Established and two United Free churches: the Episcopal Church of St. Luke, Strathmartine, built in 1903, will seat 200 persons: the Rev. George John MacGillivray M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been priest in charge since 1915. Along the Dighty are several mills, and on the south-east the bleach ground of Claverhouse; the freestone quarries also afford employment to many of the inhabitants. The celebrated John Graham, Viscount Dundee, who was slain at Killiecrankie, 26 May, 1689, took his lairdship title of Claverhouse from a place in this parish. An asylum for the treatment of imbecile children, together with an orphan asylum, was founded at Strathmartine, in 1853, by Lady Jane Ogilvy, who died 28th July, 1861. Sir Herbert Kinnaird Ogilvy bart. John Sharp esq. David Erskine Erskine esq. John Grant esq. and the trustees of the late Thomas Cox esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 6,301 acres; rateable value, £48,334; the population in 1901 was 5,486, and in 1911, 6,737, of which 4,640 are in Dundee burgh. Included in the landward population are 45 officials and their families and 192 inmates of Baldovan Asylum for Imbeciles. The population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 2,907.

MIDMILL is a village; population in 1901, 356.

DOWNFIELD, transferred to borough of Dundee in 1910 (except for ecclesiastical and educational purposes), was formerly in Mains and Strathmartine parish; population in 1901, 1,480.

MONIFIETH is a parish and police burgh with a station on the Dundee and Arbroath joint railway, and likewise a station at Kingennie, on the Dundee and Forfar branch of the Caledonian railway. The parish lies on the shore of the Firth of Tay, extending about 4½ miles from north to south with a breadth of 1½ to 3½ miles, and is in the small debt court district of Dundee; it is bounded on the south by the Firth of Tay, on the east by the parishes of Barry and Monikie, on the north by Monikie and on the west by Murroes and Dundee. The town of Monifieth is situated about 2 miles east from Broughty Ferry and 5½ east from Dundee, on a brae with a southern exposure, and within a short distance of the sea, and was made a police burgh in 1895; it is governed by a provost, two bailies and six councillors: it is lighted with gas from works belonging to the burgh, and supplied with water from the Dundee water works. There are machine works and foundries. The town contains an Established church and three United Free churches. There is also an Episcopal Mission church dedicated to the Holy Trinity; the Rev. Herbert Crosland Bell M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge, has been priest in charge since 1910. The Cottage Hospital, erected in 1902, was built and endowed from funds left by the late Rev. J. Gerard Young D.D. and contains four beds; there is also a sanatorium under the management of the Dundee Public Health Committee. Seaview is the residence of William Low esq. J.P.; Linlathen, of David Erskine Erskine esq. J.P.; Laws House, of Miss Neish, and The Grange, of C. E. Gilroy esq. Thomas Anderson esq. David Erskine Erskine esq. and the trustees of the late William Neish esq. are the principal landowners. The area comprises 5,952 acres; rateable value, £65,963; population in 1901, 11,672 and in 1911, 13,145, of whom 9,132 were in the police burgh of Broughty Ferry and 3,098 in the police burgh of Monifieth. Area of burgh, 344 acres. The population of Monifieth ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 4,217.

The electric tramways of the Dundee, Broughty Ferry and District Tramways Co. Ltd. were extended from the Dundee boundary to Monifieth Dec. 27th, 1905, the cars running through from High street, Dundee, to High street, Monifieth.

MONTROSE

MONTROSE is a royal burgh and seaport, and a parish with stations on the Caledonian and North British railways, and is 72 miles N.N.E. from Edinburgh, 29 N.E. from Dundee, 23 S.S.W. from Stonehaven, 21 E. by N. from Forfar, 13 S.S.W. from Bervie, 12 N. from Arbroath and 8½ E. from Brechin. The North Sea, the rivers North Esk and South Esk, and a large expanse of water, 9 miles in circumference, filled by the tide at high water, and designated "Montrose Basin," constitute the site of the town a peninsula. It was anciently called "Celurca," but the derivation of its modern appellation, Montrose, is said to be from "moin" (marshy-land) and "ros" (a promontory): the town seal, however, bears the ornament of roses, with the motto "Mare ditat, Rosa decorat"—"the sea enriches, and the rose adorns," and two mermaids as supporters. Montrose is connected with many important events: in 980 the town was burned by the Danes, and many of its inhabitants killed. It is mentioned as the port from which Sir James Douglas embarked, in 1330, with a numerous and splendid retinue, on a pilgrimage to the Holy Land, taking with him the heart of Robert Bruce. It also frequently appears in history in connection with the wars of the Covenanters, and was sacked by the Royalists under Irvine of Drum in 1644. During the rebellions of 1715 and 1745 it was the head quarters of the rebels in Angus, and at its Mercat Cross the Chevalier was proclaimed by the Earl of Southesk in 1715. This was the first port made by the French fleet in December, 1715, with the Chevalier on board; and the Prince embarked at the same place in the month of February of the following year, accompanied by the Earl of Mar, the Earl of Melfort, Lord John Drummond, Lieut.-General Sheldon and a number of other gentlemen. It is distinguished as the first place in Scotland where the Greek language was taught, and at its seminary the celebrated scholar Andrew Melville was educated. James Graham, 1st Marquess of Montrose, the Royalist commander, was born here in 1612, and the house in which he was born, although considerably altered, still stands, and was for some years occupied as an inn. In the same house the old Pretender spent his last night in Scotland. Part of it is still used as a private dwelling-house, and is known as the Castlestede. This town is also celebrated as the birth-place, in January, 1777, of Joseph Hume, the statesman, who represented Montrose for a number of years in the British Parliament, and to whose memory a monument has been raised in High street; in the same street is a statue of the Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Peel bart. P.C., M.P. Robert Brown F.R.S. the eminent botanist, was born here 21 Dec. 1773: Paul Chalmers, artist, & Sir James Duke bart. Lord Mayor of London, 1848-9; Lieut.-Gen. Sir Alexander Burnes kt. the diplomatist, massacred at Cabul, in 1841; Sir William Burnett K.C.H., M.D., F.R.S. of the Royal Navy, and Dr. William Hunter F.R.S. the learned Orientalist, were all natives of the burgh. The title of Duke of Montrose was bestowed by James III. in 1488, on David Lindsay, 5th Earl of Crawford, and this appears to have been confirmed to him in 1489 by James IV., but his successors did not assume the ducal title, which is now held by the family of Graham, created Earls of Montrose in 1504-5, who derived their title from their lands at Alt or Upper Montrose, now commonly called Old Montrose, although they do not now own any land in the parish.

The erection of Montrose into a royal burgh has generally been referred to the year 1352, in the reign of David II., but there is good reason for believing that the first charter emanated from David I. The parish and burgh of Montrose has been added to by the transfer of Rossie Island from the parish of Craig, under a Secretary of Scotland's order, which came into force December 6, 1898. The municipal government is vested in the provost, three magistrates, dean of guild, hospital master, treasurer and 12 councillors. The town is protected by a body of police, under the superintendence of the Town Council. A police court is held when requisite, a justice of the peace court on the first Monday in each month, and a sheriff court on the third Friday in the months of January, March, May, July, September and November; the two last mentioned courts are for adjudicating small debt claims. The burgh, united to those of Forfar, Brechin, Arbroath and Inverbervie, forms the Montrose parliamentary district, constituted under the Reform Act of 1832, and returning one member.

The town was first lighted by electricity in 1901.

The High street of Montrose, a broad thoroughfare, was widened in 1736 by the removal of a row of old thatched houses, which extended from the North fort to the Castle gate. The Town House, in High street is a plain building of two storeys, with an arcade below, erected in 1763, and here also is the guildhall, built in 1819. Passage across the river in olden times was obtained by a ferry boat, which plied between Ferryden and the Ferry-boatness. This is still continued, but the traffic was greatly diverted by a timber bridge erected in 1791 between the island of Inchbrayock and the Constable hill. This bridge was pulled down in 1827, and the South Esk is now crossed by a fine suspension bridge, erected in 1828-9, from a design by Capt. Brown R.N. at an expense of upwards of £20,000. The distance between the points of suspension is 432 feet, and the total length, including the approaches, is 800 feet. The river at the bridge has 35 feet of water at spring tides and 20 feet at low water in ordinary tides, and during the ebb it frequently runs at the rate of six miles an hour. The harbour, formed by the river and an arm of the sea, is very commodious and a safe asylum for vessels. Two lighthouses, one on each bank of the South Esk, mark the entrance of the river, while a tower, called the "Scurdyness," on the rock at the south entrance, provides another light. In the keeper's house provision is made for the reception and recovery of persons who have suffered shipwreck, and attached are two lifeboats. The quays are all on the Montrose side of the river, and have been considerably extended. The custom house at the port is now only a branch under the Dundee district. There is also a wet dock. In 1893 the Corporation purchased the island of Inchbrayock (or Rossie Island), in the middle of the river South Esk, which is now in the boundary of the burgh. In 1913 64 vessels arrived from foreign countries and British possessions, of 36,288 tonnage, and 25 departed of 14,212 tons. In the general coasting trade 424 vessels entered of 35,715 tonnage and 459 cleared of 55,619 tons. The number of sailing and steam vessels entered under Part I. of the "Merchant Shipping Act, 1894," as belonging to the port, December 31st, 1913, was 16 of 682 tons. Fishing boats registered under Part IV. of the same were 208 of 2,473 tons, and the number of men and boys employed in the fisheries was 914. The shipping trade includes flax, corn, straw, timber, coal and cured fish. The value of the principal articles imported in 1913 amounted to £450,900, of which £401,443 was flax. The exports amounted to £8,997 in 1913. The principal manufactures consist of flax and jute spinning, but there are various other branches of trading industry, notably fish curing, carried on by Messrs. Joseph Johnston and Sons Limited, who are also the lessees of the salmon fishings on the seaboard, also the export of potatoes. The extent of the wood trade at this port deserves special mention. It is in the hands of the old and enterprising firm of Messrs. Robert Millar and Sons Limited, who export large quantities of dressed timber to Australia &c. Shipbuilding is carried on to a small extent, and there is a patent slip for repairs. There are six branch banks and a savings bank. The principal hotels are the Central, the Star and the Bents. The Central is large and newly built, and is fitted with all modern conveniences. The Star hotel has been long established, and in all respects affords excellent accommodation. The Downs or Links, situated between the town and the sea, are the most extensive of any in Scotland, and include three well laid out golf courses, comprehending a circuit of several miles, finely formed by nature and free to the public at all times for golf as well as for cricket. A large portion of the front Links has been tastefully laid out as public gardens, and contains a bowling green and fountains. There is an assembly room and numerous charitable, educational, scientific and social institutions. Two newspapers are issued weekly, viz.: the "Review" and the "Standard."

The parish church, founded in 1791, has a lofty tower with spire, reaching to a height of 220 feet: the church will seat 2,500 persons. There is also the Melville parish church, five United Free churches, Roman Catholic and other churches. The Episcopal church of St. Mary, built in 1878, will seat 365 persons. The Rev. José Fortescue Lawrence Gueritz has been rector since 1909. The public charities of Montrose are very numerous, the principal being a sum of £3,000, left in 1786 by John Erskine, of Jamaica, for the support of the grammar school, and since 1888, under the management of the Educational Endowment Trust. Another important charity is the ancient Hospital Fund, administered by the Town Council. The relief from this charity is distributed among about 144 persons, not being paupers. The Royal Lunatic Asylum, at Sunnyside, incorporated by Royal Charter in 1810, was first instituted in 1871. The present buildings, situated about 2½ miles from the town, consist of a main block, opened in 1859, for between 400 and 500 patients, store rooms and a new laundry, built in 1877, a spacious dining-room and recreation hall, erected in 1882, and a hospital for the sick and infirm insane, built during the period 1888-91, and available for over 100 patients. A private asylum, named "Carnegie House," after the foundress of the institution, was completed in 1899 at a cost of £25,000, and has 60 patients. Two new villas were erected in the grounds in 1909, to provide for 60 male and 60 female patients. The Royal Infirmary and Dispensary, in Bridge street, was opened in 1839, and was incorporated with the asylum till 1913, when it obtained a charter of its own and is now under separate management. The Infectious Diseases Hospital, situate on the Links, was erected in 1909 for 20 patients. The Academy is a handsome building, surmounted by a dome, and there are many other educational establishments, and numerous societies, both religious and benevolent. The Free Public Library, in Castle place, erected in 1905 at a cost of about £9,000, is an edifice of brick and stone, and contains a general reading room, ladies' and juveniles' reading rooms, reference library and a lecture hall with librarian's house attached; there are 11,258 volumes in the lending and 2,425 in the reference department, among which is a very valuable collection of local literature. Another library, in Museum street, was instituted in 1785, and contains over 30,000 volumes. This was the first library in Scotland to introduce the open access system. The Museum, founded in 1837, is in Panmure place. The market is held on Friday, and hiring fairs are held on the Friday after Whit-Sunday and Martinmas. The parish of Montrose encloses an area of 4,232 acres; rateable value landward, £15,078. The population of the civil parish in 1911 was 12,669, viz.: burgh, 10,974; on Rossie Island, 185; landward, 1,695, and military in the barracks, 126. Included in the total population, 125 officials and 683 inmates of the Montrose Royal Asylum, and 78 inmates and 7 officials in Dorward House of Refuge, and 21 inmates in Montrose Almshouse (Poorhouse). The area of the burgh is 1,539 acres; rateable value, £59,495; the population of the ecclesiastical parish in 1911 was 8,417.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register for the year 1915 was 1,917, and in the entire district of Burghs, 8,478.

At DUBTON is the junction station for Montrose, on the Scottish North-Eastern section of the Caledonian railway.

HILLSIDE, which forms a suburb, is a quoad sacra parish in the parish of Montrose, about 2 miles distant from the burgh, and contains an Established church. The North British railway has a station here. Population in 1911, 1,722.

MELVILLE is a quoad sacra parish formed from Melrose, and has an Established church. Population in 1911, 2,245.
